First In A Series

About That Revenue Article You'll Vote On

This is the first of a five-part series explaining the proposed amendments to the Illinois revenue article. Voters will go to the polls Nov. 4 to vote on these proposals. The first four parts will deal with the article and its provisions. In the fifth part, the pros and cons of the article will be discussed.

BY JACK A. VANDERMYN

Article IX of the Illinois Constitution -- the state's revenue article -- was adopted in 1848 and incorporated almost verbatim in the state's 1870 Constitution.

Since those horse-and-buggy days, only slight changes have been written into the revenue article in the form of amendments. Five attempts to modify it to become more in tune with the times have failed at the polls.

On Nov. 4, 1966, voters will again be asked to approve radical changes in the article. The proposed provisions will be presented in the form of a blue ballot. It will require a two-thirds majority of the voters participating in the referendum to pass the amendments.

If the revenue article fails in November, it will not be resubmitted until 1970. The state Constitution does not permit submission of constitutional amendments at two consecutive elections.

Those who favor the current article -- and there is such divided opinion in both major political parties -- claim that to delay its passage for four years would be catastrophic to Illinois finance.

The proponents of the article say the gap between revenues collected and state expenditures might well exceed $500 million by 1970.

OPPONENTS agree that some revisions in the state's fiscal operation are necessary, however they prefer to work out the changes within the framework already provided.

They say that pushing the panic button is no excuse for revising the constitution.

Involved in the comprehensive revenue article are changes in Sections 1, 2, 3, 9, 10, 12 and 13 of Article IX.

IF ADOPTED BY the voters, the Illinois House of Representatives, with senate concurrence and gubernatorial approval, would have to adopt the changes.

For the purpose of this series, we will discuss Sections 1 and 2 in separate articles, combine Sections 9, 10, 11 and 12, which are far less sweeping, in a third article, discuss Section 3 in the fourth article with pros and cons in the fifth and final article of this series.

Passage of the article does not in itself impose any new taxes. Such enactment and implementation of the article is up to the General Assembly, elected by the same voters who will approve or disapprove the revenue article.

ONE OF the biggest inequities in the tax structure of Illinois is the personal property tax. Article 1 of the proposed amendment deals with the classifications of personal property and authorizes the legislature to abolish taxes on any or all of the classes created. Tangible personal property, under the article, would be classified in four areas:

1. Household goods and personal effects
2. Business and farm inventories
3. Motor vehicles, ships, boats and aircraft
4. All other vehicles and tangible personal property.

There is little opposition to the validity of classifying personal property. Current, archaic methods of lumping all personal property together make the law un-enforcable for all practical purposes.

Collection of personal property taxes in Cook County is listed at about 50 per cent. In some counties, however, such as DuPage, 95 per cent of all personal property tax bills are collected by conscientious county treasurers working with the judiciary.

Classification of intangible personal property would make taxation on stocks, bonds and bank accounts possible based upon their income producing ability.

The present system of taxing all personal property at the whim of an assessor, without any classifications to serve as guides, amounts to a confiscatory system, resulting in wholesale evasion of personal property taxes where the law is not rigidly enforced.

PROPONENTS of Article 1 believe that fair taxation of personal property could raise as much as $100 million a year.

Opponents of the article argue that it is difficult to enforce and would compound collection and administration problems while producing little actual revenue.

One serious point of controversy in Article 1 exists in a provision to exempt personal property held in trust or used by Illinois-based business for trade outside the state.

Proponents claim that such taxes of intangible property are difficult to collect and actually harm the business climate of the state.

Opponents of the article claim this item is catering to private interest groups in Chicago and has no place in the Constitution.

Other states -- California is a leader -- have levied against Illinois on intangible items distributed outside the state and have met with varying degrees of success.

It is in the area of taxation on autos, ships, boats and aircraft that the proposed Article 1 differs most from the present system.

SECTION 1 would authorize the General Assembly to levy a use, privelege or franchise tax on such items in the event other personal property taxes on them are abolished.

The proceeds from this fee or tax would be returned to local taxing districts. This provision, according to advocates of the ammendment, would insure uniform taxation throughout the state on vehicles now taxed at widely different rates by local personal property tax assessors.

Section 2 of the proposed revenue article deals with the levy of occupation, sales, use, inheritance and franchise taxes. Tomorrow's article in this four part series will discuss Section 2 thoroughly.

Boy, Do We Have Gripes

Response Immediate, Heavy

What's eating us? What are the things that irritate the people in our community?

Well, most of all, they are teed off by traffic problems -- a lot of different ones.

The next highest IQ (Irritation Quotient) is reached around stores and shopping centers. A particularly aggravating situation is the difficulty in parking caused by shopping carts abandoned by lazy customers.

HOW DO we know what's making people sore?

Recently The Day invited its readers to set forth their pet gripes in 25 words or less, with $2 to be paid for each one published. The response was immediate, heavy and vociferous.

And it's surprising how many people boil over the same things.

SINCE there are duplicate gripes, The Day will publish one on each specific subject on a basis of first-come, best expressed. The most duplicates were on abandoned shopping carts. The winner in this category we are publishing today in the accompanying column. It is from a lady who wishes only her initials to be used (readers were given this option).

We have so many "good gripes" and on such a variety of subjects that we're going to make them a daily feature on Page 1 until the supply runs out. You are invited to keep them coming.

Some readers, not satisfied with the 25-word limit, wrote letters. This does not conform with the rules. We will publish these complaints in our "Letters to the Editor." But, sorry, no two bucks.

Heat Wave, Business Booms

Comics, soft drinks, marbles and an assortment of "treasures" are the beginning of a big business operation for John Griffith, 11. John and his brother, Bob, 9, set up the stand in front of their home at 8 W. Euclid.

Bob resigned from the business Friday but John says he will continue the stand. Peggy Thelander, 12, of 14 W. Euclid, is one of the neighborhood customers that Bob serves. He says the mailman stops every day to buy a cool drink but the neighbors are his best customers.

"I'm saving my money for a rainy day," says Bob. Profits so far are 70 cents.

Car Accidents Hurt 4

Five auto accidents were reported in Arlington Heights Saturday resulting in minor injuries to four persons.

Raymond Chappel, 440 S. Forrest, was charged with four violations after an accident at Kensington and Dryden in which the driver of the other car was injured.

Karry L. Konschnke, 121 S. Dunton, was treated and released from Northwest Community Hospital. Police said Chappel's car struck the rear of Konschake's auto, then fled from the scene.

Konschake was able to give police the license number of the car and Chappel was later arrested. He was charged with driving while intoxicated, leaving the scene of a personal injury accident, leaving the scene of a property damage accident, and negligent driving.

Police said James Vrechek, 1401 Lexington, was injured when his cycle collided with an auto driven by Mrs. Diane F. Moser, 810 N. Dunton.

Mrs. Moser was ticketed for failure to yield right of way and having no vehicle sticker. Vrechek was ticketed for having no drivers license.

Miss Pamela Rhinehart of Mount Prospect suffered a minor head injury when the car in which she was riding overturned at Palatine Rd. and Kennicott.

The driver of the auto, Joseph Kelleher of Roselle, was ticketed for negligent driving.

Burl R. Jones Jr., 312 W. Cyprus, suffered a bump on the head and was ticketed for failure to yield right of way after an accident at Dunton and Grove.

Finally, two tickets were issued in an accident at Douglas and Frederick.

Police said James J. Hellensen III, 1303 N. Douglas was ticketed for driving too fast for conditions, and Douglas W. Johnson, 305 E. Frederick was cited for failure to yield right of way after the collision.

Owner of the Cellar Eager to Tell His Side

Hearing Set For Tonight

Tonight in the Village Hall the Arlington Heights Youth Commission will hold a public hearing to decide whether, in its opinion, the Cellar, a teenage nightclub at Salem and Davis, should be granted a renewed license.

The Cellar has been closed since Village Manager L. A. Hanson refused more than 4 weeks ago to re-issue a license, saying that because of a number of complaints the spot merited a "cooling-off period".

Paul Sampson, owner of the club, can't wait for the hearing.

"I'm glad that there is an interested body of people in the community that is not shirking its responsibility. If I have to be the person to give the Youth Commission teeth, fine. It hurts me financially to be closed down, for now but I believe the meeting can result in a tremendous community understanding between police, parents and the Cellar."

Sampson said he believes his spot is necessary for the teenagers in the area.

"THEY need a place to belong, and this is it. They are under one roof, they identify, and they soon learn that if they don't respect the authority of those in charge, they leave.

"Kids write their names on the walls here," Sampson said. "When they come back, they can feel 'I own this brick'."

The Cellar's owner said the charge that he needs seven off-duty policemen to control the teens is inaccurate.

PAUL SAMPSON

"I hire those men myself. Three are there to direct traffic. Any activity like this needs chaperones, and these men are the best possible."

Sampson praised police for their interest at the Cellar.

"I HAVE watched the interest these men take with the teens here. If I had to name the contributing factor most responsible for the success of the Cellar, it would be the Arlington Heights Police Department. They feel the same way about the kids as I do."

Sampson said he will propose the issuance of membership cards to those who want to use the Cellar. Cards could be issued to teens in the immediate area, and special guest cards can be made available for those living farther away.

"Outside kids are good too," he said. "There have been complaints about some of them, but I have talked to others who have come here regularly. They would never do anything to hurt the Cellar."

As to the amount of support he will receive at tonight's meeting, Sampson said he did not know what to expect.

"I haven't said anything to the kids. I don't know if any of them will be there. I don't even know if they know just when the meeting will be. Whatever happens, I want to stand on my own record."

SAMPSON expressed confidence that the results of the hearing would be favorable to the Cellar.

"I believe that most people realize it is vital and necessary to the teen-agers. I want very much to sit down and talk with them about it. I will be willing, furthermore, to attend any of their meetings to keep them informed of what is going on at the Cellar."

"But if it all ends tomorrow, and I hope it won't I would feel that I have had a tremendous experience working with these kids."

After the hearing, the commission is to make a recommendation to Hanson, who will make the final decision in the case. Hanson is in no way bound by the recommendation of the commission.

Meeting Open To The Public

Tonight's hearing by the Youth Commission on the licensing of the Cellar is an open, public meeting, according to Village Manager L. A. Hanson. Any interested resident is free to attend. The hearing will be at 8 p.m. in the Village Hall, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

Gripe Of The Day

My gripe is lazy shoppers who leave their grocery carts in the parking lot, and always leaning against my car. It happened again today and I am burned.

A.M.O.

Firemen Get 3 Calls

A grass fire and two auto fires kept firemen busy over the weekend.

Friday police and firemen extinguished a fire of unknown origin at Magnolia and Arlington Heights Rd.

Saturday firemen were called to Kirchoff and Central Rds. when an auto owned by George Richards of Mount Prospect caught fire. A carburator backfire was blamed. The fire was out when firemen arrived.

Firemen also went to 1020 Watling Saturday when the engine of a car owned by John Hart overheated in a garage. No damage was done to the auto.

2 Youths Held In Pistol Firing

Two 17-year olds were charged with unnecessary noise Friday after they fired a blank pistol at a youth in an attempt to frighten him, police said.

The two were apprehended by Mount Prospect police after their description was obtained from the youth, who lives in the 1300 block of W. Euclid.

The boys were freed on bond of $25 each and are to appear in court July 20.

4 Tires Stolen From Car Lot

Police on routine patrol Saturday night discovered a theft of four tires from the lot of Morton Pontiac Sales, 666 E. Northwest Hwy.

Patrolmen Jerry Pickett and Robert Gerth said they noticed two autos up on blocks in the lot, with the rear tires missing from each.

The officers said the hood of a third car was raised, but nothing else appeared to be disturbed.

Palatine GI Gets New Post

Airman Dolph R. Campbell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dolph W. Campbell of Palatine, has been selected for technical training at Sheppard Air Force Base, Texas, as an Air Force aircraft maintenance specialist. He completed basic training at Lackland Air Force Base, Tex.

Woman Guilty

Hendrika Hendricks, 35, of Palatine, charged with taking two pairs of shorts worth $10 and a set of earrings priced at $4, was found guilty and fined $100 in Mount Prospect court Thursday.

Chicago Firm to Build New Plant Here

An artist's rendering of the new $385,000 factory to be built by the Masten Corp. at 1117 E. Algonquin Rd. by the Masten Corp. for the production of continuous cast bronze products. Architects are Consoer & Morgan.

A new $385,000 manufacturing facility for continuous casting of nonferrous metals will be built by the Masten Corp. at 1117 E. Algonquin Rd., Carl Hilton, president, announced.

Hilton said construction of the 20,000 sq. ft. plant, which will supplement Masten's present facilities in Chicago, will begin in August. Completion is expected in December. The new plant will employ 85 people.

The single-story, steel frame and masonry building will contain modern equipment for the continuous casting of bronze bars and tubes.

Future plans for the Arlington Heights plant include expansion to enable consolidation of all manufacturing at the location here. The Masten sales offices and warehouse will remain at 3955 W. Addison, Chicago.

Nothing Like a Good Story

Tiny Tot Time at Greens and Greenbriar Parks will keep four year olds like (from left to right) Bobby Meyer, 1563 N. Highland, Scott Wood, 1625 N. Chestnut and Cathy Kapoinck, 1516 N. Kasper, amused for the afternoon hours. Parents may register children at the Arlington Heights Park District offices at Pioneer or Recreation Park

Dr. R.L. Verbic Elected To Head Oral Surgeons

Dr. Richard L. Verbic, Arlington Heights has been elected president of the Chicago Society of Oral Surgeons.

The society, the oldest dental speciality group in the state was formed in 1928. Its members comprise all of the oral surgeons practicing in Illinois.

Dr. Verbic is a graduate of the University of Illinois College of Dentistry. He earned his Master's Degree in Oral Surgery at Northwestern University Dental School, and he served a two year residency in oral surgery at Cook County Hospital in Chicago. He is a past - president of the Northwest Dental Study Group.

3 Risk Illness In Hospital Prank

Police are searching for three Chicago youths who entered a laboratory at Northwest Community Hospital last night and opened several specimen bottles containing bacteria.

Police said the three were waiting for friends who were being treated for injuries received in an auto accident in Lake County. While they were waiting they entered the lab, opened bottles and wrote on walls.

Carl Jorgensen, a lab technician at the hospital, said the bacteria from the bottles were highly contagious and caused dehydration and diarrhea.

Police said the friends of the trio would not disclose their identities to them. Lt. Irvin MacDougall said the boys should return to the hospital to be freed of the germs.

"They will be pretty sick boys," he said, "and so will anyone with whom they come in contact."

DONALD Woodcock of 606 E. Crestwood Dr., has been appointed treasurer of Chicago Steel Service Co. Woodcock is joining the company after eight years with Price Waterhouse & Co., most recently as audit manager. He was graduated from the University of Illinois in 1958 and is active in Junior Achivement. He is a member of the American Institute of CPA's, Illinois Society of CP's and the National Assn. of Accountants.

Flooding, Sidewalks On Agenda

Flooding problems and sidewalks are on tonight's agenda for Dist. 59 school board members, who'll meet at the administration building, 2123 S. Arlington Hts. Rd., Arlington Hts.

All parts of tonight's meeting are open to the public. Here's the timetable:

7:30 p.m. - Flooding problems in the Colonial Heights area, and location of new retention basin, tentatively proposed for southeast corner of school site. On hand besides board members: builder Neal Hunter and representatives of Mount Prospect.

8:15 p.m. - Sidewalk committee of school board meets to discuss Dempster Junior High School and adjacent areas.

9:00 p.m. - Regular board meeting begins.

. . . And Not Even Married

Three squad cars responding to complaints from residents in the vicinity of Gregory and Waterman last night found a college girl home for vacation and her young male companion quarreling on the street corner.

Whether the officers patched up the quarrel isn't known, but they did succeed in persuading the young couple to break off their public dispute.

No charges were filed.

Day by Day

His Majesty Regrets

by Catherine O'Donnell

An Arlington Heights family was surprised and flattered when they received a beautifully engraved invitation. The red lettering on heavy vellum boare a royal coat-of-arms. It read:

HIS MAJESTY KING PETER II OF YUGOSLAVIA requests the pleasure of your company at the Royal Ball to honor the Knights and Ladies Sovereign Order of Saint John of Jersusalem Knights of Malta, Hospitallers, Saturday the second of July at eight o'clock Oak Brook Polo Club, RSVP.

An enclosure gave the program: 7:00, Cocktails. 8:00, All guests must be present. 8:30, Guests will be seated. 8:45, Arrival of H. M. King Peter II. 9:30, Presentation of Debutantes. Presentation of Guests. Dress. Formal Dress. Military Full Dress. Decorations will be worn.

How often does an invitation to a Royal Ball arrive in Cook County? Our local family tried squeezing the man of the house into his old army uniform, into his old tuxedo and the lad of the house checked their lifetime accumulations of decorations.

The best they could come up with was a golf trophy, a twenty-five year company pin and an eight foot barracuda, stuffed. They decided to go and hang the cost.

Friday's paper shattered their dream of mingling with royalty. A well hidden item on the society page revealed that H. M. King Peter II, could not be in Chicago that day and the dinner was cancelled.

Master Builder

And add to local invitations, the eighty-five sent by Bill and Nancy Flynn to friends asking them to attend an Open House on Sunday at their home on Oakton. It was to be a meeting of good buddies with no other purpose than fun.

Nancy got quite a surprise AFTER the invitations had been sent when Bill announced that he was going to build a back porch on the house in time for the party.

Bill did not enjoy much of a reputation as a master builder in his family circle. But, build it, he did, with the help of his thirteen year old son, John.

The Open House suddenly had a theme -- THE CELEBRATION OF THE COMPLETION OF THE BACK PORCH. It was the conversation piece of the party. Ask Bill.

Backward Into Time

Insurance man Bill Griffith is a great believer in the theory that getting away from it all is the best form of therapeutic relaxation.

Last weekend, Bill and Ruth and their four children, Libby, 13, John, 11, Bob, 9 and Heidi, 4, journeyed backward in time into the Land of Lincoln. They went to New Salem and Bill heartily reccommends it as enjoyable, relaxing and educational. They were fascinated by the well preserved railroad station from which Lincoln made his farewell address as he set out for Washington and the ages.

The children were reverent and awed by Lincoln's tomb and his home in Springfield.

"It was just wonderful," said Bill, "We go as often as we can on short weekend trips. The change of pace is especially wonderful because we are reminded of this country's stable heritage."

Bill has numerous itineraries for short jaunts that he will be glad to share with anyone. His office phone is 253-5791.

Boy, Those Cubs

Nine Cubs nearly didn't make the game with the Mets last Saturday. It would have gone on without them anyway, because they were members of an Arlington Heights Cub Pack mastered by John Gallaghan of N. Derbyshire.

John was driving the car of Archie Locke, who couldn't make the trip. The car had to withdraw from the Cub Scout caravan until a friendly gas station attendant subdued the foaming radiator.

Needless to say, the kids loved the radiator caper as much as the ball game and John says they made sure that the red light did not show again unnoticed on the way home.

There were ten other Cubs escorted by Frank Spycalla and Aaron Rasmussen at the game. Everyone agreed that if the Chicago Cubs showed as much enthusiasm as the Arlington Cubs, the final score would have been much different.

Calorie Counter

Mark O'Connor, son of Harry and Peg, of Pear Tree Lane in Arlington Heights, celebrated his third birthday last week. The birthday was very nice. There even was some cake left over from the celebration.

Mark, in his usual bedtime prayers, said, "God bless Daddy. God bless Mommy." Then he added, "God, don't let Mommy eat the rest of my birthday cake."

Light Made Right

"Fine", said an Arlington Heights woman, who has learned to make every penny count, "Consolidated Edison says to bring your paid up light bills to the Dunton Court Cleaners and you can have ten free light bulbs. I did just that but the supply was so limited, I had to make a second trip to get the bulbs I really needed.

"The three-way ones cost 15 cents, some kind of charge, apiece. If we're going to get free light bulbs, then let's get free light bulbs, not a promise and a charge."

Arlington High Class of '56 Plans Reunion

The 10th reunion of the Arlington High School Class of '56 will be held July 2 at Nordic Hills Country Club in Itaska.

More than half the class is expected to attend with door prizes, cocktails at 7 p.m. and a sit-down dinner at 8 p.m. An orchestra will play for dancing.

Reservations and information may be obtained from Joe Charles, CL 3-1377, or Judi Stille, 392-6057.

Club's Back Bell Ringing

Three federated woman's clubs in Arlington Heights have urged village churches to observe the nationwide "Let Freedom Ring" program on Independence Day.

They are the Arlington Heights Woman's Club, The Arlington Heights Junior Woman's Club and the Atise (All Together in Service and Education) Junior Woman's Club.

The program consists of ringing church bells for four minutes beginning at 1 p.m. July 4.

Thermometer Causes Crisis

Allen Jensen, 6, was taken to Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, Sunday morning after he bit off the tip of a thermometer and swallowed the mercury.

He was released to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Jensen, 201 E. Circle Dr., who were told that the silver mercury in the thermometer does not break up and become absorbed into the blood stream as does red-mercury.

When Weight Sneaks Up On You . . .

COFFEE BREAK with Jerilyn Watson

The voice at the other end of the line sounded embarrassed, but the distress came through, too.

"I can't figure it out," said the caller. "I haven't been eating any more than I ever do.

"But this morning, my scales said I gained five pounds. I couldn't believe it, so I went next door to Mary's house and weighed myself there," she said.

"The total said a little less than mine, but it still showed five pounds more than I used to weigh." Then she stopped talking, waiting for us to come up with a quick solution.

"HOW OLD are you?" we inquired.

Surprised, she hesitated a second before replying: "27."

"Do you have any children?" we asked.

Yes, she said, she had two youngsters, aged 5 and 3.

"Do they keep you as busy as they did when they were smaller?"

She thought about it for a moment, then replied that she wasn't on the run as much as she was a year or so ago.

IT SEEMED to us that the caller was experiencing a common occurence, but she obviously felt alone in dumpy misery.

A doctor whom we consulted for advice said many women who never have had a weight problem seem to gain after age 25 if they continue to follow their previous eating habits.

"At a certain age, which varies from person to person, the caloric intake which previously maintained weight can become enough to put on weight," the doctor said. "Many women, without realizing it, decrease their activity once their children are out of the full-time-care stage."

THE DOCTOR'S opinion sounded grim, we thought. What does a woman do when she reaches the less active stage? Diet for the rest of her life?

"No, she doesn't diet forever," replied the doctor, a trifle impatient. "She can diet carefully to lose the pounds she has gained, and after that, she can be careful not to put them back on."

The physican finished on a whimsical note.

All this still sounded pretty grim to us. Imagine, never eating a hot fudge sundae without feeling guilty...

BACK ON the phone with the distressed mother, we imparted the doctor's wisdom. She took it much better than we did.

"Well, I suppose it's just another indication that good looks don't come easy to a lot of women," she said. "I look terrible if I don't take care of my hair, too. It's a good deal of bother, but necessary.

"Well," she said, with resignation. "What do I do now? Start on grapefruit and cottage cheese and eggs?" she asked.

WITHOUT waiting for a reply, she supplied herself with a sensible answer. She thought maybe she's go to her doctor for a checkup, which she hadn't done for a while, and see what suggestions he could make about a diet suitable for her.

"I'll let you know how this turns out," she said.

That was five weeks ago.

Yesterday, I met the caller at a local dress shop. She looked smashing.

"IT TOOK me all this time to lose the weight," she said. "My doctor said if I lost over an extended period, I wouldn't be likely to gain it back on one weekend's eating binge."

"All I did was to stop eating between meals and give up desserts completely. I never realized how much I was snitching," she said.

"I haven't felt this energetic in years," the woman said, a big smile on her now slender face.

Then she excused herself to examine the dresses on the size 10 rack.

OLIVO'S

Ever since a wit once observed that "gentlemen prefer blondes" there has been a continuing effort on the part of dark haired women to become blonde.

There are two types of blondes, the natural - looking blonde and her high fashion sister. The natural blonde is often a tint, a process which deposits color on the hair, but does not strip it. The result - - a flaxen blonde or topaz.

The high-fashion tones are a more complicated technique which lighten the hair before color is applied. The high-fashion tone may require two to four hours, a tint only one quarter the time.

Flattering high fashion hair coloring and advanced styling is todays trend in womens hair fashions. Whether sparkling hi-lites or a complete color change, we can change dull lifeless hair into radiance at OLIVO'S BEAUTY SALON ... 34 South Dunton ... Phone CL 5-6888.

Vantage Point

... by Jack Vandermyn

The 89th Congress has recognized the public's right to know.

On June 20, Congress passed Senate Bill 1160, the so-called "Freedom of Information" bill.

Congressman Donald Rumsfeld, who serves the 13th Congressional Dist., labels the action as one of the most significant ever taken by the U.S. House.

Earlier, Senate Bill 1160 cleared the U.S. Senate and its final passage by the house means it only awaits President Lyndon B. Johnson's signature to become law.

Rumsfeld, who represents the Arlington Heights-Mount Prospect area as a part of the 13th Congressional District, serves as a member of the sub-committee on foreign operations and government information, authors of the legislation that opens government records to the press and people.

The Congressman said concerning the bill, "This is a history making step, closer to the goals of a fully informed citizenry."

THE FEDERAL Public Records Law will require every agency of the federal government to make all of its records promptly available to any person upon request, provide for court action in cases of secrecy, and except from disclosure provision certain categories of sensitive government information.

Safeguards are written into the bill to protect national security. There are also provisions defining what type of documents do in fact deal with security problems.

It took Congress three sessions to adopt the freedom of information bill. It was stalled in 1964 and 1965 after it had cleared the Senate.

The logjam was broken in March and the bill moved to the House floor after clearing the government operations subcommittee in April.

RUMSFELD, again discussing the importance of the bill, said, "Government is becoming more involved in every citizen's life and communications are becoming more difficult. Therefore, it is increasingly necessary that impediments to the public's access to information on government be removed.

"Without government secrecy it is difficult for a citizen to keep informed on the great national and international problems facing our country. With government secrecy it is impossible for a citizen to exercise his citizenship responsibilities thoughtfully.

"We in this country have placed all our faith, all our hope, in the intelligence and interest of the people. We have said that ours is a government guided by citizens. From this point, it follows that government will serve us well only if the citizens are well informed.

"The freedom of information bill is a valuable tool in guaranteeing an informed citizenry," Rumsfeld concluded.

WE AGREE wholeheartedly with the congressman. We hope that the intent of open acess will be followed by the governmental bodies involved.

Illinois has long had a freedom of information bill on its statutes. In Illinois, it is illegal -- punishable by fine or jail sentence -- for a governing body to meet in secret to discuss the public business.

The law is meaningless, however, unless the intent to obey it exists among the governing officials.

FOR example, it is a simple thing to meet in someone's home and "informally" decide what board action to take. Any reporter worth his salt will soon find out about these meetings and regardless of how innocent their intent, the officials find themselves embroiled in controversy.

Thus far, we have found government officials in this area most cooperative and eager to obey the intent of the public meetings law. There have been exceptions, but, they have only been in limited cases and we have not been hindered in our efforts to provide our readers with complete reports on activities of their government.

It is encouraging to us that the federal government has at last acknowledged the public's "right to know."

St. Edna's Church

Waiting Permission to Build

BY BETTY AINSLIE

The Rectory is a reconverted farmhouse at 2525 North Arlington Heights Rd. in Arlington Heights. The living room has been made into a small, homey chapel for St. Edna's Parish, and the friendly, good-natured Father James J. Doherty is patiently waiting for the go ahead from Archbishop Cody to begin construction of a real church on this farmland.

FATHER DOHERTY

This Parish started in 1965 has over 330 families.

"We're depending a lot on our neighbor pastor's generosity as we've over a hundred children at St. Mary's in Buffalo Grove, around 40 at St. Thomas of Villanova in Palatine and 40 at St. Alphonsus in Prospect Heights," Father Doherty said.

ST. EDNA'S Parish extends to Dundee Rd., Schoenbeck Rd., Rand and Palatine Rds. -- an area constantly bristling with newly built homes.

"We have four Sunday masses in McArthur Junior High School and daily mass right here in this room," he waved a hand toward the altar covered with spotless, white linen and the folding chairs arranged about the room.

"It's small," the Pastor continued, "but someday we'll have our much needed church built right here."

Father Doherty moved into this house, known as the Stade farm, on July 8, 1965. The 80 to 100 year old house has been redone, repainted and renovated into a Rectory and Chapel.

"I've really had it so much nicer than some other beginning pastors," he declared. "Here the house is comfortable and convenient and just listen to the bird choir we have all summer."

"We're really just beginning; but our St. Edna's Womens Club is really a group of go-getters. They're all wonderful women and work hard to help raise money. They just had a big spring luncheon and fashion show at Long Grove Country Club and that was a real success," he said.

MRS. SAMUEL Hutcheson is president of the club and they have a stamp and coupon drive going on constantly to obtain funds to buy needed kitchen equipment.

The stately, old farm house sits quietly far back from the road and has several barns or sheds near by.

"Maybe in the summer we can use one of these places," he pointed out the window at the several, small buildings, "as a meeting place for our young people. They desperately need someplace to hold their gatherings. Maybe before too long we'll be building our church -- we sure need it."

The Women's Club co-operates with the St. Edna's Men's Club for a picnic and a dance.

THE PICNIC this year will be held on July 16. "Last year we all had a wonderful time," Father Doherty declared. "The picnic was held right here -- you see we've plenty of room," he said. "We're still in the country -- at least for a while -- so we can hold it nicely here. This picnic is a grand opportunity to our parishioners to get together."

The Men's Club with Ray Kulla as president has several golfing days in the summer, and a father and son banquet during the year.

"A number of the men painted this farmhouse," added the Pastor. "Most of our parishioners take a lively interest in this church and are eager to help."

THE Conformity of Christian Doctrine, the religious instruction for the children, is carried on by thirty teachers. The boys and girls are assigned, according to grade and area where they live and instruction is carried on in private homes.

"Parents help in this teaching program we have here, and so far it's been successful. I should say it has worked out splendidly and so necessary for us. We've a pretty good sized congregation right now and we're only beginning. Look at all the new homes being built all around us here. They're all big -- so that means large families -- but with neighborhood parents helping we can instruct the children."

CORDIAL, soft speaking Father Doherty was born and raised in Chicago, had his education at the Seminary in Mundelein and has been at several parishes including: St. Catherine in Oak Park, St. Ambrose in Chicago, St. Leonard in Berwyn, St. Margaret Mary in Chicago and was assigned to St. James in Arlington Heights for a year and a half as an assistant before being headed the task, by the late Albert Cardinal Meyer, of building St. Edna.

"You know," he said, "St. Edna is an Irish Saint, and this church was named St. Edna because a Chicago man offered the Archdioces fifty thousand dollars if the first new parish to be formed would be named after his wife Edna.

"Well, you don't get offers like that everyday so they scurried around and discovered there actually was such a Saint -- so that's how we were named," he laughed heartily.

"With all the extensive building going on all around us we'll probably grow too big -- it would be nice to stay a manageable size," he added. "Right now the harmony, enthusiasm and enjoyment the people seem to find in this building of their church is wonderful. Starting and running organizations helping anyway they can -- this waiting for an actual church building -- well, it will make us appreciate it all the more when we are told to go ahead with the building plans."

The farmhouse rectory at 2525 N. Arlington Heights Rd. serves as the general headquarters for the 330 families of St. Edna's Catholic Church.

"Whatever happened to the good old-fashioned riots—ones without political or racial overtones!?"

Abandoned Carts

Today on Page 1 The Day begins publishing the first of the "pet gripes" of our readers who accepted the invitation to set forth in 25 words or less the sources of greatest irritation to them.

The "beefs" sent in cover a wide range of subjects—traffic, children, The Day, little brothers and sisters, litterbugs. But the one specific gripe that led all the rest is the shopping cart abandoned in the parking lot by thoughtless customers, making parking difficult.

You must have run into this situation yourself. And you know how irritating it is. Or are you the guy or gal (pardon our pointing) who doesn't believe in pushing the cart back where it belongs?

The people who run the markets like to be indulgent with their customers and they avoid being nasty about shopping carts. But the store manager must be pretty burned, too, when he has to send out a crew to round up the carts over an acre or two of parking lot.

What's the answer?

One reader suggests telling off guilty fellow shoppers. We hesitate to endorse this drastic step. It could well lead to a purse-swinging melee.

A better remedy would be some consideration for the other fellow. But would urging this do any good?

Think about it the next time you're ready to drive off and leave that shopping cart blocking a parking space.

O.K. To Step on Gas

America's romance with the automobile is of too long a duration for everyone suddenly to begin believing that everything is wrong with everything about Detroit's leading product.

Recent attacks on the industry have had a telling effect on the public, however. Doubtless anyone who has ever owned a car has been reminded of instances when he paid good money for a vehicle which exhibited something less than care and craftsmanship in its design and construction.

One company's reaction to vociferous critic Ralph Nader -- investigation of his private life and even attempted entrapment of him in situations of doubtful morality -- left more taste of lemons in mouths than anything that was ever allowed to roll off an assembly line.

Thus it is gratifying to see the four major manufacturers abandoning a pose of outraged innocence and the plea that they be allowed to police themselves and to come out with positive support of national safety standards.

The industry wants a primary role in the writing of these standards, which seems reasonable enough. It wants the 50 states to have a voice, which does not seem quite so reasonable. It also wants to water down the power that the administration's bill would give to the secretary of commerce to set safety standards, which seems unreasonable pending further clarification.

But at least recognition has been given to the fact that American automobiles are not as safe as they could be. With continued candor and co-operation between Detroit and Washington, there is no reason why the engineers and lawmakers cannot conjointly arrive with all due speed at a safety formula which will eliminate some of the tragedy which too long has been associated with the great American love affair.

Letters to the Editor

Constructive Plan for Youth

Editor:

There has been much written in The Day, editorially as well as in other articles, concerning youth in our community. Yet, I find none of the writings offering any constructive youth plan. The youth are a dynamic force in our world, a dynamism which our community should utilize. I would like to offer a suggestion so far as community youth programming is concerned.

All of us need a place. That is why we identify with property, church, social clubs and business. This is our place. But what place is there for youth? They need a place of their own just as adults need their's. This means that a "youth place" should receive some definite and positive attention. However, such a place should be the outgrowth of youth imagination so far as its inception, program and policy are concerned, with no one out to make a profit on the kids.

With understanding guidance, youth could begin a campaign for their own place. They could seek property and funds, they could plan the building and program. Give the youth this positive responsibility and you will be surprised at what would happen.

Then when the youth have their own place, with billiards, bowling alley, dance hall and lounge, they could set the policy and program. A youth board of directors would run the place. They would set up their own youth court and police force to correct the wrong-doer and the rowdy. Then they would be responsible and the place would be well-run.

Granted this is a vision of much work and long planning, but it is worth the effort. Others have done it, churches are a witness to that. You can do it. Let's invest in them.

DOCTOR SAYS

Travel Safety

W. G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

When you register at your hotel you should inquire about the safety of the tap water unless you are in the tropics, where you had best assume that it is unsafe for drinking.

Under such circumstances you should stick to commercially bottled and capped water (not bottled by your hotel or restaurant) or you can treat the tap water with Halazone tablets before drinking it. The same applies to water used to rinse your tooth brush.

Beer, wine and hot drinks can be drunk with safety but don't count on the alcohol in your highball to purify the ice cubes. It is best to avoid all drinks, hard or soft, to which ice is added.

If you are taking medicine regularly, you should carry a supply with you, but there is no need to carry a medicine chest or drugs you might need. You can get them in the country you are visiting if you find you need them. An identification card containing pertinent medical information about yourself should be carried on your person.

You can find a good doctor who speaks passable English in almost any part of the world but, if you should need a doctor, it is sometimes good economy to place a long-distance call to your family doctor. He may be able to give you the reassurance you need and he can certainly give a foreign doctor you are consulting valuable information which may speed your recovery.

If your medical insurance policy covers the medical care you receive anywhere in the world, you should carry some application blanks for your foreign physician to sign.

Don't overdo. This is a great danger if you are on a planned tour. Unless you are very rugged or very young you should select a tour that allows an ample amount of free time because overfatigue is one of the chief causes of illness on a vacation trip.

Steve Makes Tinkering Pay Off

Steeled by the taste of victory, Steve Merril Hogy, a freshman at Forest View High School this fall, is looking for new fields to conquor.

Steve was named the Illinois winner in the first scholarship award competition conducted by The Toy Tinkers, a division of A. G. Spalding & Co., Evanston.

He earned a certificate, letters of congratulations and an opportunity to compete in the company's national finals, which was won by a fellow Midwesterner.

GOVERNOR Otto Kerner, and U. S. Senators Dirksen and Douglas, sent warm congratulatory letters to Steve for his accomplishment.

Village President Daniel Congreve commented that he is "pleased Mount Prospect has youth of this caliber. This is representative of the most important part of our community, our youth," he said. "I send by personal and individual congratulations."

For taking top place among all Illinois participants in the competition, Steve won a personally-engraved plaque from the company.

He also picked up a junior engineer certificate of award, which praises his "creative imagiantion, ingenuity and skill."

STEVE'S entry was a lift machine, similar to those used in warehouses. It was built entirely from Tinker Toy materials--and it works.

He also has constructed a truck trailer, like the kind used in cross country hauling, which has a removeable loading device on the side.

Steve's father has his own trailer repair service company in Chicago where Steve would like to work, if he doesn't become a truck driver as he thinks he might like to be.

STEVE'S mother says he is handy with everything around the house, repairing electrical as well as mechanical items.

He says he is looking forward to taking a special course of work orientation in mechanics and industrial arts in high school this fall.

At present, he's still working around the house and in his basement workshop, where he is designing more elaborate Tinker Toy machine models.

Delegate To AIA Meeting

Fred A. Thulin Jr., Mt. Prospect architect, is a delegate from the Chicago chapter again this year to the national convention of the American Institute of Architects in Denver, Colo.

J. Kenneth Galbraith, economist and former U.S. ambassador to India, is scheduled to deliver the keynote address at the convention in Denver today.

THE SECOND Purves Memorial Lecture will be given by Harvard University President Nathan M. Pusey at the Air Froce Academy after lunch in the officers' club.

The theme of this year's convention is "technology – environment – man." The first seminar will be addressed by Isidor Isaac Rabi, winner of the Nobel Prize in Physics in 1944.

THE SECOND seminar, oriented toward environment, will be addressed by Robert C. Wood, under secretary of the Department of Housing and Urban Development. He is the author of "Suburbia, Its People and Their Problems."

The third seminar on "Man" will be introduced by a guest speaker.

Thulin's duties at the convention will include attending the workshops and technical seminars as well as voting on the national officers and amendments introduced by the national organization.

Roundup For The Day

By United Press International

British Pledge Support of U.S.

CANBERRA, Australia -- British Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart has pledged his country's continued support for U.S. policy in Viet Nam. At the same time, Stewart said that Britain believes that an ultimate solution to the war "will have to be reached at the negotiating table." Stewart spoke at the opening session of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization's ministerial concil meeting in Canberra, Australia.

Outside the meeting a group of students staged an anti-Viet Nam war demonstration. Some students carried signs denouncing the roles of the U.S. and Australia in the war and urging that all troops be withdrawn from Viet Nam.

Rocks, Bottles Fly in Georgia

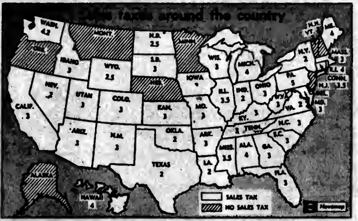
CORDELE, Georgia -- Negroes and whites threw rocks and bottles at each other last night in Cordele. The incident followed an earlier one at an integrated swimming pool where whites attacked a group of Negro adults and children. The FBI is looking into the situation.

Mississippi Voter March is Over

JACKSON, Mississippi -- James Meredith's voter registration march in Mississippi now is history. What began June 5th as one man's effort was transformed by a shotgun blast into the biggest civil rights demonstration in Mississippi history. The climax came yesterday afternoon on the lawn of the State House in Jackson as some 15,000 persons rallied for Negro rights.

Javits Rules Out Nixon in 1968

WASHINGTON -- New York Senator Jacob Javits -- a leading contender for the GOP Vice President nomination in 1968 -- has all but written off Richard Nixon for the top spot two years from now. Javits yesterday described Nixon as "a distinguished Republican who had his chance." The New York Senator listed Ronald Reagan as a possible choice for the nomination in 1968. Reagan is now running for governor of California.



Only a handful of states, nine at present, still holds out against the apparently irresistible trend toward the sales tax to meet skyrocketing government expenditures. Latest to adopt levies were Massachusetts, effective April 1, and Virginia, effective Sept. 1. New Jersey, still among the holdouts, has a tax under serious consideration. Last year, sales taxes brought in an estimated $7 billion, approximately 25 per cent of all state revenues. Figure gives percentage of tax for each state.

Teen Day

Well-Trained

By Lee Strobel

Dozens of teen-age volunteers have been specially trained for today's opening of Clearbrook Center's Summer Day Camp, for the mentally handicapped.

The youths who will instruct at the camp are from 14 years of age through the college level. Only the senior counselors, or college instructors, will be paid for their work. The high school instructors will receive a free swimming pool pass as compensation.

The program is co-sponsored by the Clearbrook Center for the Mentally Retarded and the Arlington Heights Park District. The youths are from Palatine, Wheeling, Elk Grove, and the Schamburg area.

Each of the counselors will be assigned 1 child at the camp which will hold its three sessions at Recreation Park.

TRAINING for the youths took 2 days, according to Marsha Ashley, 14, of 1616 Eastman, one of the trainees.

During this period they learned how to handle and watch the children as well as becoming acquainted with the schedule of activities which will be used during the program.

Most of the time will be devoted to organized games and activities as planned by the senior counselors. This includes a 'playtime' for the children with the use of the park's recreational facilities. At noon, the swimming pool will be used by the group for further instruction.

One problem that confronts the camp is that it is in the middle of the community. Last year, one of the children was seriously injured when he was struck by a bicycle rider going through the park. This year, youths and adults alike are urged not to use the park as a thru-way during the camp sessions.

Place for Dancing

The term orchestra is originally derived from the Greek which meant a place for dancing. In the ancient Greek theater, dancers and instrumentalists performed in a semicircle between the audience and the stage.

Arlington Legion 9 Tops Mt. Prospect

BY DALE HOFMANN

The visiting Blue Sox hung a 4-1 decision on the Prospectors, picking up all four of their runs on five Mt. Prospect errors. The victory coupled with an 11-0 conquest of Evanston yesterday moved the local squad's record to 7-0 in league play.

MT. PROSPECT still managed to hold onto a piece of second place by tripping Park Ridge Red yesterday 2-1. Manager Mark Thorne's crew is now 5-1 against conference competition.

Neither team really seemed interested in the league lead Friday, as all five runs were unearned, and the two arch - rivals compiled a staggering nine miscues. Mt. Prospect's J. D. Thorne and Arlington's Jerry Donahue matched six - hit route jobs, with Thorne striking out four, and Donahue three.

The Prospectors gave Thorne all the support he would get in the first inning when they jumped out to a short-lived 1 - 0 lead. Jim Gumz led off the frame with a walk and was promptly erased when Maury Gallagher repped into a force play.

PAUL PETERSON followed with a single, and a throwing error on Thad Woodard on the same play allowed Gallagher to score.

Arlington came back with three of its runs in the third, when Thorne was victimized by three errors, two of them on second baseman Peterson. John Loughman reached on a boot and advanced to third on a Jim Jorgenson single. Tom LeStarge then singled and Loughman scored on an error. LeStarge stole second putting Blue Sox on second and third. Both scored when Peterson booted a Mark Frase ground ball.

THE VISITORS collected an insurance tally in the sixth when Brad Somers reached on an error and was knocked home on singles by Donahue and Woodard.

Mt. Prospect, paced again by indomitable Dave Kingman, redeemed itself somewhat yesterday with its triumph over tough Park Ridge Red. Kingman picked up his fourth league victory without a defeat, going all eight innings in the overtime contest.

The towering righthander surrendered only one hit, the fifth he has given up in four starts. He wasn't as sharp as he might have been though, as he yielded nine walks and whiffed the same number.

Mt. Prospect's two runs came when Thorne led off the eighth with a single, Tom Manderscheid followed with a walk, and the Park Ridge shortstop failed on a Kingman grounder. Robby Robinson's single did the rest of the damage.

ARLINGTON LOOKED far more impressive rolling over Evanston yesterday than it did in the Mt. Prospect contest. Jim Friedl got the win for the Big Blue in what Manager Lloyd Meyer called his best performance of the season.

Friedl fanned three and gave up one hit in four innings before giving way to Mark Newman. Meyer's charges scored once in the first and once in the second before exploding for a seven - run third. Seven Blue Sox batters managed hits in the frame.

The local nine made it a perfect weekend Sunday by mowing down Morton West in a non - league affair 7-4. Steve Allen went all the way for the winners, allowing four hits. Three of them came in a three - run Morton fourth inning. Allen struck out eight.

AGAIN ARLINGTON used the big inning to extend its streak. This time it was a five - run fifth highlighted by a double by Frase and a triple by Woodard.

Both local teams will be back in action tonight. Tom Lundstedt will start for Mt. Prospect against Evanston at the Prospect High School field at 6 p.m. Arlington will play host to Morton Grove at Recreation Park at 6 p.m.

Arlington's Bob (Sideburns) Young warms up in preparation for tonight's American Legion tilt against Morton Grove at Recreation Park. Young will be trying to keep the Arlington Heights Legion nine unbeaten - string alive. They have won seven straight league games. (Bob Richardson photos)

Elmhurst Tops Local Netters

The weather was hot Saturday and so was the Elmhurst Tennis Club. The combination pinned losses on the Arlington Heights Tennis Club in three of four divisions in their league encounter with Elmhurst.

THE ONLY bright spot in the Arlington scoring was in the A division, where Arlington won a 6-1 decision. The Arlington B team lost 5-2, the Arlington women's team bowed 3-2, and the Arlington junior team lost 4-1.

The A team won all but the number-one doubles match against Elmhurst. Don Johonson won the number-one singles 6-2, 6-3, and Dave Johnson won at number-two, 7-5, 6-2.

BOB FINK won the number-three singles match 6-3, 7-5, and Larry Brown won at number-four 6-2, 6-1. Jim Jakubiec won at number-five, 6-1, 6-1.

Fink and Jakubiec teamed to take the number - two doubles 6-3, 6-2, but the Johnsons lost at number-one, 6-3, 2-6, 7-5.

Dave Milligan started things properly in the B division, beating his number-one singles foe 7-5, 6-2. But Elmhurst won the rest of the singles and the number-two doubles.

JIM ROMAN of Arlington Heights bowed at number-two singles 6-4, 6-3, and Jim Tindall lost at number-three 8-6, 6-1.

Fred Ruprecht lost at number-four 6-2, 6-1, and Dave Bone bowed at number-five 6-0, 6-1.

Milligan joined Bob van Ee to win the number-one doubles match 6-1, 6-2, but a default cost Arlington the number-two match.

The Arlington women's team was paced by Donna Cunningham's win at number - two singles, but the only other victory was at number-two doubles—by default.

MARGE FINK lost at number-one singles and Terry Miller lost at number-three. Arlington's team of Audrey Cox and Yvonne Foley lost at number-one doubles.

MATT WEEG lost at number - two 6-3, 6-0, and Jim Coleman bowed at number-three 6-2, 6-2.

Rick Tindall and Ken Jorgenson lost their number-one doubles match 6-4, 6-2, and Greg Harris and Chuck Gibbel lost at number-two 6-2, 6-1.

Brad Somers of the Arlington Heights American Legion junior baseball team leans into a pitch in yesterday's shut-out win over Evanston. The Arlington crew, unbeaten in seven league tilts, resumes play at 6 p.m. at Recreation park today against Morton Grove.

Keeping Score

WITH BOB CASTERLINE

MUCH OF THE humor in sports revolves around umpires and referees.

There's a story, for instance, about the time a Washington Senator batter sent a hard line drive over into the left field stands.

The third-base umpire raced over to judge the ball, and at the same time, he saw a woman being carried out of the bleachers on a stretcher.

Later the ump asked the late Nick Altrock, then a Senator coach, if the woman had been hit. "No," answered Altrock. "You just called that one right and she passed out from shock."

Don Blasiegame, now with the Senators, was at bat one days, and was annoyed with the ball and strike calls being made by Frank Dascoli, the plate umpire.

After Blasingame had been called out on a third strike, Don turned to Dascoli and barked, "Listen, Freak, how can you sleep with all these lights on?"

THEN THERE was the time Lew Burdette was pitching for the Milwaukee Braves and Norm Larker was batting for the Dodgers. Larker was convinced that Burdette was throwing spitters, and complained to plate umpire Frank Secory.

"Those aren't spitters," said Secory. "They're sinkers."

"Sinkers," snapped Larker. "One of those sinkers just splashed me in the eye!"

There's a story about Bobo Newsom, one-time hurler for the Brownies, that goes like this: He was trailing some team 15-0 as the Browns came to bat in their half of the seventh.

ONE OF HIS teammates, sitting next to him on the bench, sympathized, "Gosh, Bobo, they're really beating you today."

Newsom reddened and screamed, "Nats! How d'ya expect a pitcher to win games if his club don't get him any runs?!"

They kid a lot about how dumb football players are supposed to be, even though most are college-trained and the teasing isn't very accurate. Still, there once was a sign posted in the New York Titans (now the Jets) locker room over an equipment hamper that read:

"Throw T-shirts, socks, and shorts in this basket and please remove them from your body before throwing."

At the opposite end of the pole are those coaches who do what they can to offset the doltish image set by an occasional player. After being hung in effigy, Kansas State coach Doug Weaver blandly remarked:

"I'm glad it happened in front of the library. I've always emphasized scholarship."

THERE IS ALMOST as much kidding about football players' money as there is about their IQs. For instance, when all-American quarterback Jake Gibbs of Mississippi reported to the New York Yankees to begin a baseball career, he was greeted by Whitey Ford.

"Hey, Jake," Whitey said. "I just took a phone call for you. Your coach at Ole Miss says you forgot to pay income tax for your last two years there!"

Woody Hayes, one of the better story-tellers in football, tells this one on himself.

ONE DAY HIS son, Steve, came home from school with a big grin on his face. "Look, Dad," he exclaimed, holding out his report card. The Ohio State football coach looked — and saw three As and two Bs.

"It's fine, Steve," he said. But, ever the perfectionist, he added, "Don't you think it could stand some improvement?"

The boy's face fell and Woody realized that he had made a mistake. "I'm sorry, Steve," he said, trying to make amends, "hat I was visiting with Bud Wilkinson last week, and he told me that his son, Jay, had made straight As."

Doak Walker and Bobby Layne have been close friends all through their football lives. They have tremendous respect for each other – and loyalty:

"Bobby never lost a game in his life," says Doak. "Time just ran out on him a few times."

AND RED SANDERS, an old UCLA grid coach, always came up with a quick quip when the occasion demanded.

Once, when his Bruins had scored on Stanford, Sanders looked at the Stanford stands and said, "They were so quiet it was as if a world convention of undertakers had just been told that somebody had finally discovered the secret of eternal life."

THE DEAN, THOUGH, of comic coaches is Adolph Rapp, the University of Kentucky basketball coach.

Once he was driving to Atlanta where the Wildcats were to play Georgia Tech.

He stopped at a gas station and, while waiting for the attendant to finish his work, he spied a strange figure shooting an imaginary ball at an imaginary basket.

"What's that guy doing," he asked the attendant.

"Oh," came the reply, "he used to be our high school basketball coach. Don't pay him any attention. He's slightly off his rocker."

"Tell him to keep on shooting," replied Rupp. "If we lose this game to Tech, I may be back here to guard him."

Boys' Baseball Report:

Rally Lifts Sox To 4-3 Victory Over Tiger Nine

A four-run rally in the bottom of the sixth inning brought the Red Sox from a 3-0 deficit to a 4-3 victory over the Tigers Saturday in the American Division of the Arlington Heights Boys' Baseball League.

The rally opened when an error allowed Bo Broderick to reach first safely, and then Tim McGuire, the winning pitcher, singled him to third.

Kevin Sweeney walked to load the bases after two batters struck out, and Roy Brooks walked to force in a run. Russ Kirchhoff, the Red Sox catcher, then singled home the tying runs, and Brooks scored the game-breaker on the play when the right-fielder's throw got away from the first baseman.

McGuire fanned six and walked four en route to his four-hit victory. Mike Cook suffered the loss, fanning eight and walking five while allowing only four hits.

Both teams are now 2-1 for the second half of the season.

Other major division scores over the weekend were:

AMERICAN: Athletics 9, White Sox 6.

Bill Cardinell tossed a neat three-hitter at the Lions for the Redlegs Saturday in their Varsity I Division battle, leading the Redlegs to a 3-0 win.

Cardinell struck out 12 en route to the victory, and was backed by his teammates' six hits off losing pitcher Scott Gunnison.

OTHER VARSITY I Division scores were Knights 6, Generals 2; Raiders 3, Knights 2.

Rick Cowan and John Powers teamed to limit the Dragons to only one hit as the Mohawks downed the Dragons 7-0 in the North Blue Intermediate Division Saturday.

A five-run first inning gave the winners a comfortable lead and Steve Lear's two hits and Cowan's homer kept the losers off balance.

Other Intermediate scores:

NORTH BLUE: Colts 5, Colonels 3.

The Sioux scored in four of five innings played to nip the Beavers 8-7 Saturday in their South Blue Junior Division clash.

Bruce Johnson eased the pain for the Beavers slightly by getting a home run for the game's only extra-base hit.

Other Junior Division scores:

NORTH BLUE: Blues 12, Boxers 2; Larks 8, Rebels 5; Apaches 11, Sox 10.

NORTH RED: Badgers 8, Trojans 0; Panthers 11, Rockets 7; Millers 8, Gulls 5.

SOUTH WHITE: Hurricanes 14, Stags 11; Wrens 20, Hurricanes 3; Bulldogs 17, Jays 5; Stags 10, Jets 7.

NORTH WHITE: Aztecs 27, Owls 8; Owls 17, Wolves 8; Wolves 21, Bisons 15; Gophers 12, Robins 8; Bees 7, Cyclones 4.

SENIOR DIVISION scores over the weekend were: Browns 5, Mustangs 5 (tie); Indians 2, Warriors 1; Bengals 9, Hawks 2; Mustangs 5, Hawks 2.

Nordin Joins Semi-Pro 11

Bob Nordine of Arlington Heights is expected to be one of the candidates for a starting halfback position on the Lake County Rifles semi-pro football team in the Central States League this fall.

Nordin, a graduate of Arlington High School, was an all-state halfback for the Cardinals and played four years as a running back at the University of Dubuque.

The Rifles, who open their season against Canton, Ill., Aug. 13, will play their home games at Weiss Field, Waukegan. The team's pre-season training camp opens July 12.

It's Going to Be Willow High School

Pick Name For 6th High School

"Willow High School, Rah, rah, rah,"

That may be a cheer for Dist. 214 students who will attend the district's sixth high school.

Last night the board of education voted to name the school Willow High, but the only one who cheered was Board President Hal Armstrong because a name finally was selected.

Superintendent Harold Stichcamyer told the board that the Board of Trustees of Arlington Heights had agreed to have the street name of Thomas or Willow coincide with the high school name if either was selected. The street is called Thomas west of Rand Rd. and Willow east of Rand. The sixth school site is east of Rand on Willow.

In a recent student poll on a name for the new school John F. Kennedy drew the most votes.

"I WOULD suggest Kennedy on the basis of the poll but I will honor the request of the village of Rolling Meadows," said Dr. Frank Smith, chairman of the committee to name the school.

The district has purchased a site in Rolling Meadows and a request had been made to name that school for the late President.

Smith made a motion for Herbert Clark Hoover High School. Smith and Richard Bechhuber voted yes, Hal Armstrong and Earl Thompson voted no and Arthur Aronson passed. The motion failed.

"We have a Willow Rd. and we have other schools named for their geographical locations. I think we should do the same here and Willow is a nice sounding name," said Thompson, who made the motion for Willow High School.

THOMPSON, Armstrong and Aronson voted yes. Dr. Smith changed his vote from no to yes after the roll was called and the motion passed. Board members Mrs. Leah Cummins and William Griffith were absent.

The board has been trying for several weeks to select a name. Winston Spencer Churchill and Herbert Hoover failed to be approved at previous meetings.

Pinch Was a Snap

They had a "snappin' " good time at the Arlington Heights police station last night. Patrolman Robert Atkinson answered the routine call, " . . . there's a turtle in my yard!" And there was! The snapper, weighing in at some 15 pounds, was removed from the yard of R. T. Davis, 236 S. Princeton, without a struggle. Mr. Turtle was held without bail.

Teens and Parents Jam Hearing on Cellar

Back Plea To Reopen Night Spot

A crowd of more than 125 teen-agers and parents turned out Monday night to support Cellar owner Paul Sampson at a hearing held by the Arlington Heights Youth Commission.

The hearing was held prior to a meeting today between the commission and Village Manager L. A. Hanson to discuss whether the Cellar should be reissued a license.

No final decision was given by the commission. But after the three-hour meeting, everybody seemed to agree that it was a productive session.

Commission President Anthony Bohorfoush started the meeting by saying it was not the purpose of the commission to close the Cellar.

"We did not close it, nor are we here to see that it stays closed. We are here to investigate ways in which problems with which we are faced may be coped with."

Bruno Waara, a member of the commission and principal of Arlington High School, stated what, in the opinion of the commission, were the main objections to the Cellar's operation.

WAARA SAID there have been 18 reported complaints against the teen night spot since its opening in 1965. He said each complaint involved the under-age use of alcohol.

A second objection is that the age spread among the teens is too great, Waara said.

"This has a deleterious effect on the younger people," he said. "Responsible observers have commented on the growing lack of respect and the accelerated social relationships between boys and girls in the lower age levels."

He said the Cellar attracts "undesireables" from a wide area.

Waara also commented on the police chaperones.

"Something must basically be wrong with any activity that requires seven off-duty officers to maintain order," he said.

During the winter, Waara complained, the Cellar cuts down the attendance at and participation in high school activities.

The court room of the Municipal Building was filled to capacity with teen-agers and their parents supporting Paul Sampson in his bid to regain a license for the Cellar. More than 125 persons were present at the Youth Commission hearing.

Dist. 25 Board Debates Survey

What were the strong points and weaknesses of the recent study of School Dist. 25 done by the Midwest Administration Center at the University of Chicago?

To find the answer the school board last night met with its Citizens' Advisory Committee, which was appointed to meet with the researchers as the report was prepared.

Board President Harold Sortor expressed the consensus at the end of the two-and-a-half hour meeting: "You get an unsatisfied feeling from it -- but it can be a useful tool."

The major complaints of the committee were:

--The form of the study was predetermined and thus the committee members had little say in the approach of the researchers.

--Members received progress reports only shortly before their reactions to the reports were sought by researchers.

--The report was incomplete and sketchy in spots.

In defense of the report President Sortor pointed out that it cost only $3,700 and that a complete report, such as that sought by some committee members, would cost about $50,000.

Board member Theodore Seiler, defending the researchers' methods, said, "It might be well to point out that the Citizens Committee was to react to, not make the report."

"The statistics used are copied out of the district's financial reports. These are useless, because we have no bench mark, no standard, to compare them to," Beacham said.

"It was my belief this was to be a financial study, yet this is the weakest chapter in the report," he said.

Mrs. Charles Aldag of the American Assn. of University Women, a committee member, defended the report. She felt the researchers' methods and results were valuable to the district.

But Mrs. Edith Jolly of the Wilson PTA found discrepancies in the statistics used by the researchers in different parts of the report.

President Sortor concluded the discussion with the warning, "This report can be valuable, but we cannot use it as a bible."

The next meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p.m., July 5.

N. Viet Leader in Red China

LONDON -- Diplomatic reports in London say North Vietnamese President Ho Chi Minh may have gone to Red China for talks with Mao Tse-Tung. The reports say the consultations, and others in Moscow, could concern the war. They might also be connected with Red China's refusal to participate in joint Communist aid to North Viet Nam. There have been suggestions that Ho may want to clear North Viet Nam's future attitude toward possible peace developments or a stepped up war.

Rusk Reviews War at SEATO Meet

CANBERRA, Australia -- An American spokesman at Canberra said Secretary of State Rusk reviewed all aspects of the Vietnamese war effort during a closed session of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization today. The spokesman said he put forward no new plans or policies.

Clearbrook, Mental Clinic Get Grants

Gov. Otto Kerner today announced state grants totaling $4,056,588 for mental health clinics, day centers for the mentally retarded and other community mental health projects.

The grants, awarded through the Illinois Department of Mental Health, for the fiscal year starting July 1, total about $500,000 more than last year.

The Northwest Co-operative, Mental Health Clinic, Arlington Heights was awarded a grant of $50,000.

Clearbrook Center for the Retarded, Rolling Meadows, received $60,000.

Most of the money comes from the state's Mental Health Fund, an appropriation by the General Assembly from payments by patients and their relatives for care in state mental institutions.

Accused Church Burglar Wins Court Continuance

The trial of accused church burglar Walter Milke of McHenry was continued again in Arlington Heights branch of Circuit Court.

Milke, who is accused of the Easter Sunday burglary of St. Peter's Lutheran Church, was arrested on a warrant issued by Judge James Maher when he failed to appear in court June 13.

Milke told Judge Maher that after a sanity hearing at the Chicago State Hospital May 10, which was ordered by the court, he was released. He said he understood that the charges against him had been dropped.

Judge Maher informed him the charges were still pending and ordered him to appear in court July 18. He said a public defender would be present.

Milke was released on his own recognizance, but the judge warned him that he must appear on the stated date.

"I want you to understand that it will be very bad for you if you don't show up," he said.

School Aide Martin Gets A $600 Raise

Jack Martin, assistant to the superintendent of Township High School Dist. 214 has been voted a $600 salary increase by the board of education.

Martin's full time duties include personnel and public relations for the district at a current salary of $12,300.

The board changed the index for the job from 1.25 through 1.50 to 1.35 through 1.60. The index scales are based on teaching experience and educational backgrounds.

Martin, who has a master's degree, is earning 1.35 times the amount he would make as a teacher for the administrative position.

Ford Dealer Gets Award For Achievement

Roselle Ford, at 333 E. Irving Park Rd., Roselle, has been selected to receive Ford Motor Company's distinguished achievement award.

The award is presented "in recognition of progressive management ... modern sales and service facilities ... sound merchandising practices ... high quality standards ... and continuing interest in rendering superior service to Ford owners."

Price Tag On Willow Going Up

Board of Education members were dealt a costly blow last night when architect Kenneth Unteed told them the sixth Dist. 214 high school, now Willow High School, may exceed $400,000 to $800,000 over the original estimate.

In Feburary the voters passed a $6,800,000 referendum for the new school and the purchase of an additional site.

At that time it was estimated that the school would cost $6,500,000. An additional site has been purchased in Prospect Heights for $300,000.

"Use a wider brush on this paint job instead of a fine one," Unteed said.

He suggested that the board consider alternate bids for some areas of the proposed building. The fieldhouse which will cost an estimated $250,000, the track and football field and bleachers and the shop area were some of his suggestions for alternate bids.

"IF WE can possibly cut back in any areas we will. But we don't suggest using inferior material that will have to be replaced in a few years either. If we can arrive at a group of alternates we may be able to cut the cost." Unteed said.

Sept. Harold Stichenmyer said the work shops had to be included for the school to maintain the North Central rating. The fieldhouse and service building he said, would be eliminated for a while.

Slichenmyer said the equipment cost for the school would come from the educational fund and it may be possible to increase the tax rate to the maximum of 1.38 for two years and then drop to a lower rate.

Unteed said his firm of Berger, Kelley, Unteed & Associates first encountered the problem of rising costs with two of their contract schools in Indiana. Unteed said he wanted the board to be aware of the problem so it could be considered in future action.

At the meeting last night the board of education voted to give the architects the responsibility for purchase of the fixed equipment in the areas of science, homemaking, audio-visual, and miscellaneous counters and cabinets in the classrooms.

Unteed stressed the need for co-ordination and economy in planning the building. He said his firm would agree to any decision the board made but warned them that the entire project would have to be co-ordinated almost inch for inch if the board wanted to save any money.

He said the architects have to have certain specifications for plumbing, electrical, heating and ventilating connections before continuing with plans.

THE BOARD expressed hope that the new purchasing agent, John Brooks, would be able to buy much of the equipment. Unteed said that Brooks or another man assigned to the job, would have to spend a lot of time supervising the construction and planning the equipment materials to fit fixed connections. Brooks will assume his duties July 11.

In previous high schools the architectural firm acted as a purchasing agent for several items and was able to coordinate the building program.

"When we get into mixed responsibilities we get into a gray area and we sometimes have trouble," Unteed said.

He also said that new building code requirements are more strict and require much more planning.

WITH THE planning of the new high school Supt. Slichenmyer said he felt the board could handle the fencing, track, tennis and parking areas.

"I'm opposed to it," said Unteed. He said if his firm were to prepare the site plans he would not want another party to interpret them.

The board voted to let the architect handle the site development with the exception of the seeding and planting on the grounds.

Paul Sampson speaks to Youth Commission members at the hearing. Commission President Anthony Bohorfoush sits in the foreground. Both Sampson and commission members indicated that the session was "very productive" in helping to solve the problems faced by the Cellar.

Jam Hearing

Finally, he said, objections have been made as to the quality of music and the lyrics of some songs that are sung there.

Regarding the 18 complaints, Sampson answered that this was trivial in relation to the number of teens attending.

"I am not proud of one of these complaints, but when you consider that we handle an average of more than a thousand young people over a weekend, 18 complaints for a year and a half is not that significant."

SAMPSON said that teenage drinking is a hard thing to curb.

"We must face up to the fact that this is going on and it is hard to prevent the kids from doing it no matter where they are. But when a teenager comes to the Cellar and we find he has been drinking, we are in a position to do something about it. If we can't help them by talking to him, we can take away his privilege to attend.

Sampson said he had never felt that the age spread was a serious detriment.

"When the kids are within the confines of the Cellar, there is a great understanding for one another. And if there is any growing lack of respect, I have never personally seen it."

In answer to the objection that the place attracted "undesireables," Sampson commented:

"I don't believe it right to turn any kid away. I believe, rather, it is my duty to sit down and talk with them and try to help them. If no progress is made, then we can, take steps to keep them out."

Sampson said he never tried to conflict with school functions, but added that he felt many teens need to be away from school after school hours.

ALSO, school spirit may be improved if a more winning team could be produced," he said.

Finally, Sampson commented on the quality of music and lyrics.

"All of us do not have to agree that rock and roll music is their cup of tea, but it is accepted generally as a valid form of music and is popular with teens. The groups I employ are of a very high quality."

Sampson said that all the lyrics were examined by him before they are performed at the Cellar, and if any are in any way objectionable, they are modified.

A number of comments were then accepted from the audience.

John Carroll, a teen who admitted, "I don't even go to the Cellar much," said he felt Sampson should be allowed to continue in business. He also commented on the police situation to Waara.

"They have policemen at basketball games, too. Do you think we should eliminate them?"

CARL BLOOM, a parent, pointed out that the Cellar was the only place in the village where teens who did not own cars could go.

James Kauffman said when he moved to Arlington Heights, the [illegible] objection he had to the village was that there was nothing here for teens to do.

"The Cellar has taken care of that," he said. "The drinking problem is up to the parents to solve. It isn't Paul's fault."

After all arguments were heard, Sampson's attorney, Jules Laser, suggested to the commission that, should the recommendation be made that the license be re-issued and Hanson accepts the recommendation, a yearly license should be granted.

"Paul pays $50 a night for a license, which has to be applied for on a weekly basis. This averages $5,100 a year for licenses," Laser said.

He presented the village ordinance which pertains to places similar to the Cellar and said the yearly license charge for these places of public amusement is $100.

LASER also said he felt it would be helpful if Sampson met regularly with the commission.

Bohorfoush said it might be helpful, if Sampson were made a permanent member of the commission.

Sampson said he would be "extremely pleased" with such an arrangement.

The commission did not indicate what its recommendation would be to Hanson, but said that, hopefully, a decision would be made within the next few days.

The Youth Commission was to meet with Hanson in his office at 8 a.m. this morning.

Likes His Job, Wants to Lose It

That's what he told members of a steering committee to study a possible school-community co-operative work program for Dist. 214 students Monday afternoon.

Theodore is director of the district's Neighborhood Youth Corps Program and gave a report to the businessmen and school personnel on the committee.

Theodore said that as of June 10, 151 students had been identified as eligible for NYC participation. The federally-subsidized program is for students from 16 through 21 from low income families.

Currently there are approximately 50 students participating in the summer program at the five high schools and the administration center.

"WE WANT to see that these students complete their high school education," Theodore said. "We know that we have some potential dropouts. It is necessary also that they compete with their peer group. We are trying to put ourself out of business. Our goal is to go down to zero. Every NYC director in the U.S. is attempting to get students out of NYC and into jobs."

Jack Martin, assistant to the superintendent of Dist. 214 said, "The NYC program is not a vocational training program. It is primarily set up to serve an economic need so the students can earn some money to stay in school. On this program we are not teaching them a trade."

NYC counselor Don Schroeder added, "This is not a make-work situation either. These students are performing jobs that have to be done. We try to form work habits which is an important part of the program also."

Martin continued concerning the development and progress of the program:

"We aren't saying that NYC is the only way to do this job but it has been a successful way. We see problems if industry were to take these students too. When the program was first introduced there was the argument that there was no need for it in the district.

"Now the attitude has changed and we are trying to find out how we can help these students. In this project the school district deals directly with the federal government. The funds come from the same source as funds for programs that have been going on in the district for several years," said Martin.

HE TOLD the group that they were not being asked to find an answer about the NYC program but to make recommendations on how industry and schools can better serve the working needs of the school students.

Members of industry present questioned Theodore and the counselors about the ability of the students to assume jobs in industry and local business.

"Most of our students could handle jobs now but not all of them," said Theodore.

Transportation was a big issue he said in the NYC program. His current summer budget allows $600 for transportation and the teachers and counselors have to provide transportation for some of the students now.

During previous meetings school representatives explained other work programs in the district.

The group will meet July 25 to make recommendations that will be presented to the board of education. A possible suggestion on the continuance of the NYC program may come from the group.

Flood Basin OKd On Jr. High Site

School Dist. 59 will allow a retention basin for storm water control to be built on its newest junior high school site.

Builder Neal Hunter, developer of Colonial Heights, and the school district will go 50-50 on construction costs. In addition, Hunter will give the district $1,000.

After the basin is completed, it will be dedicated to the village of Mount Prospect to fence and maintain. If, at any future time, the basin is not needed as part of the drainage system, title to the land will revert to Dist. 59.

Hunter appeared before school board members Monday to discuss the proposal. So did Mount Prospect trustee Robert Teichert, who told The Day he was there as an individual, and not in an official capacity.

Describing the recent storms, Hunter said. "We have had no flooding in Colonial Heights. We sent a man over to clean out the catch basins, and we drained the area in 20 minutes."

Teichert countered, "I was standing in two feet of water."

The Sanitary District, said Teichert, has decided there will be no more building unless there is a way to take care of the storm water.

School board member Joe Schefter questioned the retention basin location, asking, "At what point do you stop giving school land away?"

He later joined the board in unanimously approving the co-operative proposal.

Burglar Just Practicing?

The Robert Spiaks family returned from a four-day camping trip last night and found that someone had removed a rear screen and entered their home at 917 N. Forrest.

Inside nothing was taken. Nothing was even touched as far as Spiaks and the police could determine.

100th Birthday

Palatine Set to Celebrate

A two day Centennial Day - Independence Day celebration will blend the fun of a birthday with the excitement of an old fashioned Fourth of July in the Village of Palatine.

The village Jaycees are sponsoring the July 3-4 festivities. There will be dances, parades, band concerts, fireworks and political speeches, not to mention an art fair, a special performance by the local theatre group and the Miss Palatine Pageant, part of the Miss America preliminaries.

The village has received letters of congratulations from President Lyndon B. Johnson, Governor Otto Kerner, Senators Paul Douglas and Everett Dirksen and Congressman Donald Ramsfeld.

Sheriff Richard B. Ogilvie will be the main speaker of the July Fourth afternoon program. Other speakers will include Tom Kearns, Jaycee president; David Yeats, village president; and Howard Olsen, township supervisor.

THE PALATINE Northwest Hwy. Merchants' Assn., in conjunction with Day Publications, is sponsoring a treasure hunt prior and during Centennial Days. Grand prize is a two weeks vacation in the U.S. with all expenses paid for two. The winner, who will select his prize from several dozen trips, will be picked July 4th.

Northwest Hwy. Assn. is also featuring "Red Carpet Days" in which participating merchants on Northwest Hwy. are installing indoor-outdoor carpeting from entrances to sidewalks.

PALATINE, like many northwest suburbs, began first as a little town along the railroad tracks. When the Northwestern line reached the area in 1853 about four homes were erected. By 1855, the railroad had erected the first depot, and there the first public meetings were held.

The Village was not officially incorporated until March 19, 1866, when five trustees and a police magistrate were elected. By 1940 the village population was 2,222. But since it has been part of the rapid Northwest suburban growth. Today more than 20,000 live in Palatine.

THE CENTENNIAL activities will get under way Sunday, July 3, with the art fair from Noon to 5:00 P.M. Artists from the Chicagoland area will compete for cash prizes.

At 4:45 P.M. a popular teen combo will begin playing for an outdoor dance which will last until 6:30 P.M.

At 7:00 P.M. the Stage, Inc., Players (formerly Winston Little Theatre) will feature a special centennial performance highlighting acting styles — past, present and future.

ON THE Fourth activities will begin at 11:30 P.M. with a parade through town. There will be floats and many marching bands. The theme of the Parade will be "Past is Prologue." Sheriff Ogilvie's speech will follow.

During the afternoon there will be childrens games and a water fight between members of the Palatine Fire Department. At 6:00 P.M. the Village Band will present a special one hour concert. The Miss Palatine Pageant will begin at 7:15 P.M.

The celebration will conclude with the traditional fireworks display.

Pickpocket Gets 60 Days

A man caught picking pockets at Arlington Park race track Saturday will be deported from the country after he serves his jail sentence, according to police.

Police said Jaime Quiroz, 34, gave his address as New York, N. Y., when arrested by track security police. It was later determined that he was in the country illegally and immigration authorities were notified.

Quiroz was sentenced to 60 days in Cook County Jail Monday by Judge James Maher, Arlington Heights branch of the Circuit Court, on the pickpocket charge.

Day by Day

Do You Remember When?

How would you like to sit on the grass under the stars, listening to wonderful music on a summer night? Ravinia? No, it's Palatine's answer to that famed place and it's free to the public.

Every Friday evening, from now until August 12, a band of fifty fine musicians under the direction of Fred Elliot perform in the village built Bandshell, behind the Fieldhouse in Palatine Community Park from 8 until 9 p.m.

The band concerts started at the end of the last century and were the favorite Friday night entertainment of folks for miles around, who came to town for the weekend. They ceased sometime ago but the band was reactivated in 1958 by 14 ambitious citizen-musicians.

The present president of the band, Paul Siegert, who plays the cornet, was one of that fourteen. He has watched the band grow to its present number. There are still openings for more musicians. Most of the present members are adult but exceptionally good young players are invited to join.

Vice president in charge of personnel is Albert Isaacs of Arlington Heights, who can be reached at CL 5-9432. Des Plaines, Roselle, Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights, Palatine and Barrington have musical citizens in the band.

The music ranges from classical to Dixieland. Each week, there are featured performers. Director Eliot is music director of Forest View High School during the winter.

The reaction of the children in the audience is always fun to watch. They invariably get up and dance. There is pop, popcorn and candy available in the field-house.

For a real nostalgic night, if you're older or younger than springtime, there's no place like the Palatine Band Shell on a Friday night in summer.

One of the busiest places in Arlington Heights and one of the most difficult to find is the local Western Union office. It is just around the corner from Nichols Insurance company at 1312 W. Northwest Highway.

Not too many local people realize that there is a telegraph office in the village with a very active key presided over by Elinor Nichols who just happened to inherit the job. The telegraph office has been there for more than two years.

Elinor sometimes helped her husband, Jedd, in his insurance business. About a year and a half ago, the girl who worked in the Western Union office left and Elinor started to answer the telephone and she's been at it ever since.

When the race track opens, the office is busiest although money orders are sent all year long. On an average summer day, forty to fifty people come into the office to send a message of [illegible]

Coronets Champs Again

The teen-age girls will compete in the Illinois State Fair championship Aug. 14. They won it last year.

DURING the three day convention Alex Angeloff, post quartermaster, of 121 S. Vail, was awarded a pin for his outstanding job as quartermaster. Edward R. Doyle, of 1221 S. Pine, received a citation in the community service scrapbook contest.

Mail Piles Up On Postman

Frank Embrey Jr., 108 W. Palatine, piled sacks of parcel post a little too high in the Post Office annex, 311 S. Arlington Heights Rd. Sunday night.

The mountain of mail fell over on Frank, and he was taken to Northwest Community Hospital for examination.

Embrey told The Day that he suffered strained back muscles from the accident, and will have to stay home a few days. Officials at the Post Office said Embrey will be instructed the safe height to pile mail sacks when he returns to work.

Boys Are Different

As the Frenchman said, "Vive la difference!"

Yes, boys ARE different from girls. Any mother who has one of each will be quick to tell you.

Girls are sugar 'n' spice and everything nice, while boys are crew cuts and Band-Aids and crumpled T-shirts parked under the bed.

Teachers and educators, though, have known for years that in school skills, boys tend to mature much later than girls. In reading, coordination, attention span, and general readiness to learn, the girls generally outrank the boys.

This summer, Forest View Elementary School is trying out a pilot program in its first grade readiness classes.

THE GIRLS group (no boys allowed) is emphasizing more feminine activities. They're working with embroidery, "playing the mother role," dancing out such records as "Alice in Wonderland."

Boys, instead, are working with wood and tools. Their classroom features trucks, trains, and planes. In art, they're making animal pictures (while the girls are doing flowers). Because they tend to be more self-conscious about acting in front of a group, they are drawing to music as part of their creative rhythm experiences. "Peter and the Wolf" currently is their favorite record.

Mrs. Alan M. Lawson leads the girls' group, and Miss Judy Bengston is in charge of the boys. Each section has language arts, creative dramatics, and creative art every day.

What to Do About Storm Damaged Trees

High winds seem to be the common thing in Chicago in spring. As a result, numbers of old established trees have been completely destroyed or heavily damaged.

During such storms, hardwood trees are flexible and more capable of bending. They often escape with little or no damage. However trees with soft, brittle wood, such as silver maples, willows, and poplars suffer extensive damage.

Most of the tree repair or recovery work should be done by licensed tree experts. However, small work can be done by the homeowner.

Cut off the smaller broken branches and treat the damaged areas. Wounds and cuts should be covered with a wound paint to reduce further damage by decay. The paint may be applied with a brush or from one of the pressurized spray cans. Be certain to determine the wind direction so you will avoid having the spray blown in your face.

Vantage Point

... by Jack Vandermyn

Best Republican news we have heard in Wheeling Township in some time was the announcement last week by Gene Schlickman that a concerted effort will be made to hold one fund raiser to benefit all Republican organizations in the township.

It takes money to operate a political organization. With a concerted effort on the part of all Wheeling Republicans, that money can be raised through the planned Oct. 8 dinner dance.

Schlickman announced the fund raiser to the Regular Republican Club at a so-called "get well" party in Arlington Heights last week.

The newly elected committeeman scored points with the club by assuring them they would participate in the proceeds of the fund raiser.

Tom Novotny, president of the Republican Club, still has seven months to serve in that post. It would have been easy for Schlickman to read the club into a background position in the township, however, he recognizes that all Republicans are going to be needed to rally the party through in November.

The apathetic voter turnout in the June 14 primary indicates that there is a lot of work at the precinct level to be accomplished between now and Nov. 8.

ARLINGTON Heights Village Manager L. A. Hanson has a problem. With a tight budget already drawn, he has to find revenue sources to provide more than $150,000 to pay for storm damage and clean up activities from the June 9 tornado.

Hanson has just one out. The village has not passed appropriation ordinance and it will be a relatively simple thing to tag an appropriation for the $150,000 into that ordinance.

That is where the simplicity of the situation ends. It's easy to appropriate, but where is the money going to come from?

While many area residents who were hard hit by the storm will argue, the federal government says the damage was not severe enough to bring federal aid into the area.

We wonder where Congressman Donald Rumsfeld was after the storm hit. It would seem to us that, as the congressman representing the area, Rumsfeld would have felt the storm important enough to make a tour and report from the scene to Washington on the severity of the situation.

In Du Page County, we recall a storm much less severe than the one that raked Wheeling Township and Congressman John Erlenborn made a flying trip back to the district to inspect the damage, meet with newsmen and make a pledge of federal assistance to those damaged by the storm.

Now it is up to Hanson to scrape up $150,000. Some vitally needed development programs in Arlington Heights will have to be pushed back a year or two -- or the tax rate will climb next year. Both alternatives are unpleasant for the present Arlington Heights administration to contemplate.

This is one area where few conservatives would argue the merit of federal aid. It would appear to be one of the major roles of the federal government to provide communities with disaster relief.

LISTENING to Cpl. Rich Harbour discuss the situation in Viet Nam last week brought the war much closer to us.

Brad Brekke, former cameraman with the Arlington Day back in the "old days" is now in training at Fort Polk, La. He said that the cadre at the basic training center is composed of Viet Nam veterans and that they are deadly serious about the situation.

Brekke, who hopes to be a combat reporter - photographer, said the theme of basic training, is, "You are going to fight a war ... this is not a peace time army."

Harbour, a former Arlington Heights resident who was a Boy Scout under the leadership of Gene Schlickman, confirms that there is indeed a shooting war in Viet Nam.

We wonder when the Washington administration is going to acknowledge this fact?

Section Two: Sales And Income Taxes

This is the second article in a five part series on the proposed revenue article that will be submitted to Illinois voters in "Blue Ballot" form on Nov. 8.

BY JACK A. VANDERMYN

Section 2 of the proposed amendments to the revenue article of the Illinois Constitution has been labeled all things to all people by its opponents.

This is the section of the proposed change in Illinois' 1870 Constitution that enables the legislature to levy a flat rate income tax of 3 per cent.

It is also the section that would bring to Illinois a sales tax in the true sense of the term.

Perhaps it will come as a surprise to those who have had 4 per cent taken off the top of all of their purchases in the past. Illinois does not in fact have sales tax.

Levy of a sales tax was specifically forbidden in the state Constitution. What is now being collected is known as a retailers' occupational tax. Simply stated, the retailer pays the state 4 per cent for the privilege of doing business -- and passes the hike along to the consumer.

Section 2 authorizes "..the levy of occupation, sales, use, inheritance, privilege and franchise taxes, uniform as to objects and subjects taxed within the jurisdiction of the authority levying the tax and uniform as to exemptions granted from any such tax on or measured by gross receipts shall be non-graduated and shall be imposed uniformly upon persons and corporations."

SOUND complicated, well, after the legal verbiage is stripped away it boils down to this.

--The legislature has the right to recompute and refigure current inheritance tax procedures.

--The legislature can levy a true sales tax, exempting such necessary items as food and drugs.

--The legislature can levy a flat rate 3 per cent income tax.

--All taxes levied by the legislature would be on a flat-rate basis, non-graduated and be imposed uniformly upon individuals and corporations.

Taking these provisions point by point, it is agreed by most observers of the house of representatives that there is no intention among the membership to change what experts describe as an equiable, graduated inheritance tax system.

Staunch opponents of the article, however, contend that courts would be forced to change the inheritance tax structure to a non-graduated basis to conform with the language of section two.

Proponents of the article, in pushing for its passage, believe that the state supreme court would never overrule a levy so well established as the state inheritance tax.

There are much the same arguments presented on the adoption of a true sales tax. Those in favor of the amendent feel that exemptions could be made in the area of necessities (food and drugs) while those opposed believe that the uniform language of the section precludes such exemptions.

IT IS the provisions for a state income tax that brings the most discussion -- and dissent -- to Section 2.

The revenue article does not impose a state income tax. It does give the legislature authority to levy a flat-rate three per cent tax on all personal income. Exemptions and credits could not exceed those permitted under the U. S. Internal Revenue Code.

This would prevent the legislature from exempting the first $5,000 or $10,000 of personal income, as many economists have recommended to stimulate spending among the middle and lower salary classes.

Any income tax levied under section two would have to be imposed uniformly on persons and corporations. The clause specifically eliminates any chance for the state to levy separate corporate income taxes.

The legislature could levy any amount of tax up to three percent. If it decided more than a three per cent income tax was necessary, it would have to go the voters for permission to increase the levy.

In no event could a state income tax exceed six per cent, under the provisions of section two.

Perhaps the biggest selling point in favor of section two is that should the income tax be levied, personal property tax must be abolished within four years of the levy.

The current tax on personal property is universally recognized as archaic and unenforceable, although there are countys where collections range between 90 and 100 per cent.

The present system of taxing personal property was applicable when the state's economy was agricultural. Today, however, the economy is industrial and proponents of the article contend that rural areas are being unfairly taxed.

There was an attempt in 1932 to levy a state income tax. At that time, the supreme court ruled in the now historic Bacrach vs. Nelson case that a graduated income tax was unconstitutional.

Opponents of the revenue article, and these include some of the finest legal minds in the state, contend that the court would reverse itself today and allow the legislature to levy an income tax without restriction as to amount.

Proponents of the article counter that the controls of section two, limiting such a tax to only three per cent without voter approval, are vitally needed to protect the Illinois taxpayer from excessive taxation.

Primary opposition to the section comes from those who believe that the clause taxing corporations and individuals on the same basis is unfair. They point to competitive advantages and limited liabilities of corporations and believe it is reasonable to expect corporations to carry a larger share of the tax load.

Secondary opposition is leveled against the non-graduated nature of the income tax provision. Opponents maintain that a flat-rate tax is regressible and that only a graduated tax is fair to the majority of the citizenry.

However, proponents of section two point out that if a non-graduated tax is viewed in terms of actual dollars paid, it is apparent that the wealthier citizens will still make greater financial contributions.

There are provisions in section two for a one percent rebate to communities from the income tax. Projected, this indicates local municipalities throughout the state will receive about $40,000,000 less than they now receive from their share of personal property tax collections.

It would be necessary to rebate one - and - one quarter percent which would yield the municipalities about $300,000,000 or as an alternative, rebate to the municipalities the vehicle taxes provided for in section one.

It is in the area of municipal rebates of income tax collections that opponents of the article feel trouble lies ahead for the legislature. They contend that the legislators would never be able to work out a formula acceptable to all concerned.

Proponents of the bill feel that a rebate formula is possible and that the legislature needs only the incentive to work things out equitably for both urban and rural areas of the state.

Sections three, nine, 10 and 12 of the proposed revenue article contain provisions for schedule and conforming regulations to sections one and two. They will be discussed in the third article of this five part series.

To Every Home Owner:

A drastic Federal forced housing law now being considered by the Congress would destroy your basic rights— unless you act now!

Here's what it is:

"Title IV" of the so-called Civil Rights Bill—H.R. 14765 and S. 3296—is the forced, not fair, housing proposal that threatens to deprive you, as a home owner, of basic freedoms.

Here's what it would do:

1 Deny you freedom to contract with a person of your choice in the sale or rental of your home, or a room in your own home.

2 Deny you the right even to mention a preference for a person of your own religion in advertising for a roomer or tenant.

3 Subject you to suit by the U.S. Attorney General to force you to sell or rent to a person other than the person of your choice.

4 Delay indefinitely a rental or sale, pending final court disposition of allegations against you.

5 Subject you to payment of unlimited damages if you insist on exercising preference in a sale or rental.

6 Discourage sale of your home because the prospective buyer could not be assured of taking title until the deed is actually recorded.

Because we are concerned about the human rights of all Americans . . .

- We protest a law that gives one person the right to force another to enter into a contract against his will.
- We protest this attack on the human right of freedom of choice in disposing of private property.
- We believe progress in race relations will be retarded, not advanced, by this bill. Equal opportunity in housing is making progress under the influence of voluntary efforts of church, school and people of good will.

How can you make your protest heard?

The Congress will reject the forced housing features of this bill if you and other home and property owners write your Members of Congress and make it clear that you oppose this legislation because it would destroy rights of all Americans.

Cities Yell: 'Ouch'

It's no news that the nation's cities are [illegible] of troubles, and the troubles [illegible] under a variety of headings -- Pollution, Traffic, Crime, Housing, Schools.

Of all of them, the last mentioned seems to constitute the most serious problem for the most number of cities. A just-published, three-year survey by the Stanford School of Education of the nation's 14 largest cities finds the overwhelming majority of them caught in a situation of double jeopardy. Their school populations are climbing at the same time as their ability to finance education (and everything else) is declining.

Of the 14, only two - Los Angeles and Houston - showed population gains in the last census. All the others lost.

Most significantly, the losses were typically caused by the migration of middle-income small families to the suburbs. This left the cities with a smaller over-all population but a higher concentration of low-income families, both white and Negro, which characteristically have a larger number of children to send to school.

As one example, San Francisco registered a 5 per cent population loss between 1950 and 1960 but a 25 per cent increase in school population.

"Local taxpaying ability is the most important determinant of social policy in American cities," says the report. "Until we find the means to reverse that equation, and let special policy determine the resources to be allocated to education, we face a sea of rising troubles in our cities."

If the nation's mayors hadn't read the Stanford report, they acted as if they had at the recent meeting of the U. S. Council of Mayors in Dallas, Tex.

One resolution, presented to the city heads by Mayor Henry W. Maier of Milwaukee and approved by them by a sizable margin, called on the federal government for assistance in forcing the suburbs to share with cities the cost of housing and schools for people who live in the cities.

Just how the government is supposed to do this wasn't spelled out. As of now, the mayors' resolution is just a resolution -- a cry for help.

But it is a cry which will inevitably increase in volume and range.

Letters to the Editor

Builders Arrive, The Juice Goes

Editor:

I feel this letter should have been written many moons ago, and then maybe this problem would not have come up again.

Today I was just beginning to do the housework while listening to the radio. I am used to all these various noises so it seemed awfully strange when the whole house became silent. The washing machine stopped, our clocks stopped and the radio was no longer playing Herb Alpert's new song. Look down the street and you can see many trucks coming and going from various construction jobs. Right now, a job is being done to complete the new expressway off of Palatine Road.

I am suddenly aware of the fact that these jobs are robbing us of our electrical power. I guess the housework will have to wait.

At first I thought that I might have blown a fuse but then [illegible] everything in the house that runs on electricity would be off.

If my mother were writing this letter, she would not be so kind as to state bluntly what I am discontent about.

I checked with the neighbors on either side of us and with the neighbor across the street. All three reported no power, and they, too were just beginning to do some of their housework.

The clock in the kitchen, which operates on batteries, reports the time as being 10:15 a.m. Our electric clock in the other room reports the time as being 9:53 a.m.

As soon as the washing machine returns to its task of washing clothes, I will know that we have had our power restored. But when will that happen?

This is not the first time this has happened. I don't mind the inconvenience once in a while, but it seems to me that every time a school is built or remodeled, a road is being constructed, or a street is being repaired we become the victims of thievery.

Can't someone do something so that a whole block of electric power does not have to be stolen for a construction job to be completed?

The Down Comes Up Like Thunder—

Carroll, Stull Nuptials

MRS. STULL

Miss Judith Elsa Carroll, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Luke Paul Carroll of Barrington, became the bride of William John Stull in afternoon ceremonies June 25 at St. Anne Church, Barrington.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William John Stull of Arlington Heights.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of white peau de soie with an empire waist. Her fingertip veil was adorned at the crown with rosepoint lace given by the bride's grandmother.

Miss Deborah Carroll of Barrington, the bride's sister, was maid of honor. Miss Louise Nora of Tiskawa and Miss Susan Carroll, another sister of the bride, served as bridesmaids.

FLOWER girls were the bride's sisters, Geraldine and Frances Joanne, and Elizabeth Baur of Barrington, daughter of friends of the bride's family.

Joseph Presson of Quincy served as best man. Ushers were Paul Carroll of Barrington, the bride's brother; Jonathan Stull of Arlington Heights, the groom's brother, and John Shaw and Richard Daeschner of Arlington Heights and Robert Wittenburg of Palatine.

THE REV. Paul Gilgallon, C.S.V., officiated at the ceremony, for which the church was decorated with daisies, gladiolas and baby's breath. Pew bows were made of green and white ribbons adorned with daisies.

The bride's mother wore a pale pink silk dress with matching coat and a pale pink woven chiffon hat. The groom's mother wore a pale green silk suit with bone accessories. Both wore white orchids.

OUT-OF-TOWN guests included Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Herick of LaCrosse, Wis., and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stull of Evanston, the groom's grandparents; and Mrs. Francis Murphy of New Fairfield, Conn., the bride's grandmother.

Mr. Stull and his bride were graduated from Northwestern University June 11.

After an extended motor trip through Canada later in the summer, the couple will live in Cambridge, Mass., where the bridegroom will attend Harvard University Law School.

Secret to Fashion Success

Stick to Styles Flattering to You

BY JERILYN WATSON
Women's Editor

She lives with her husband, three children, Collie dog, Siamese cat and three goldfish in a pleasant local subdivision.

Mona is a so-called average suburban woman in many respects, average in family income, residence, education and interests.

But her looks aren't average — they're chic. That's the reason we've singled her out.

PROTECTED by anonymity, she agreed to tell Day readers about the staples of her smart summer wardrobe.

Mona, young looking for 31 and petite by modern standards (five feet three, 112 pounds), prefers dresses to separates.

"The all-in-one look is better for me," she said, "because it doesn't break my height and lends a more mature look."

She keeps her brown hair short (easier to manage while playing mother to her brood), but has invested in several Dynel hairpieces that cost a total of about $21.

ONE IS a switch, styled to hug her head just behind bangs that start about two inches in front of the crown. Its ends were shoulder length, so has had the switch cut to a more mature length that stops just below the jaw line.

"I really have enjoyed the switch for informal wear," Mona said. "It's been well worth the $18 I paid for it, because it can be clipped in for wear with sports clothes."

THE OTHER hairpiece Mona acquired by accident.

"I was just ready to check out at the grocery store counter when I spotted a head band of Dynel fashioned like a braid," she recalled. "On impulse, I picked it up for something like $1.50, took it home and dyed it to match my own hair."

The braid, purchased for not quite a song, has become Mona' constant companion at dressy parties.

ANOTHER part of the secret is that she likes to counter current fashion trends. Today, when many fashionable women are wearing low-cut, cut-out or otherwise bare clothes, Mona opts for the covered look.

"My favorite party dress is a chiffon, long-sleeve shift with a sequined high collar," she said. The dress, which looks like it cost much more, actually took $60 out of Mona's clothes budget. (In rayon over a crepe lining, by Kip Carpenter, sizes 6-14, Young Elite dresses at Saks Fifth Avenue.)

IN SPORTS clothes, Mona's fancy turns to pants.

"I don't like shorts very well on me because my legs are not exactly long-stem roses," she said. "Actually, I built my sports wardrobe around a pair of hip-hugger pants."

WHEN SHE goes out, she's likely to cover up with a favorite Madras jacket. For informal entertaining, Mona wears the pants with dressy cut-out white shoes with a small sturdy heel she bought at a Joseph Shoe Salon.

Topping the outfit is a multicolored, fringed rebozo her husband bought her on a business trip to Mexico City.

There's a Mexican accent to Mona's new A-line shift, too. Sleeveless, it flows freely from a high neck and an embroidered yoke. (Ship 'n Shore, available at Wieboldt's)

"It's a cool cotton," Mona said, "with just the right look for errands and driving the kids around.

"I mean, it's dressed, but not stiff," she said, sweeping one arm upwards to help with the explanation.

MONA SAYS she spends nearly as much money on accessories as clothing, tries to buy versatile outfits that can be dressed up or down.

She considers herself better dressed now than in her college days, during which she says she spent "a good deal of money" on her wardrobe, much more then now.

"The secret, if there is one," said Mona, "is finding out what basic styles are flattering, then sticking with them."

Calling All Alumnae Of Cottages 40 and 43

The women, onetime residents of cottage 40 and 43 at Angel Guardian, seek to contact other women who lived in the cottages.

Persons who know where former residents of the cottages can be reached may call Joanne Coffey (Krutek) at 878-5659 between 9 a.m. and 2 p.m.; Maureen Kalafut (Fitzgerald), 471-1869, between 2 p.m. and 10 p.m., or Rita Carroll (Costanzo), 334-3510 in the afternoon.

Alexius Historical Tea Sunday

The St. Alexius Hospital Auxiliary will conduct a historical tea from 1 to 4 p.m. Sunday, July 3 in the Cardinal Stritch Room of the hospital.

Photos tracing the history of the Alexian Brothers Hospital in Chicago from its founding in 1866 will be displayed. Also to be shown are a religious habit similar to those formerly worn by the Alexian Brothers and newspaper stories and photos dealing with the growth of St. Alexius.

Ground for the hospital, located at 800 W. Biesterfield, Elk Grove, was broken in December, 1963. The 225-bed hospital was dedicated this month by the Most Rev. Cletus F. O'Donnell, auxiliary bishop of the Chicago archdiocese.

Modern medical equipment will be contrasted with equipment used in 19th century hospitals.

Planning the tea are Mrs. Donald Froehlke, Auxiliary public relations chairman; Mrs. George Cassara, Auxiliary delegate to the Elk Grove Tencennial Committee, and Mrs. Josiah Smith, hospitality chairman.

Turn Extra Closet Into Baby Bath Center

If your first child is expected soon, you're probably busy making preparations to convert your adult home into a practical headquarters for baby.

A bath center for your child can be located in — of all things — a closet if you're short of space.

Any large closet of the type common in today's homes will provide ample room for bathinette, diaper pail, hamper and storage of diapers and accessories. Folding doors can be used to conceal contents.

Norma Brown, homemaking consultant to the Masonite Corp., suggested closet adjustments for a full-width shelf which just clears the bathinette. Her plan calls for adjacent space for a diaper pail, clothes hamper and a built-in waste receptacle which serves as a center support for the shelf.

PEG-BOARD installed on the back and side walls provides space for wood shelves on brackets for baby powder, oil and other toiletries. Under this system, Miss Brown said, supplies will be within easy reach of the mother bathing her baby.

For the shelf immediately above the bathinette, she suggested a curved "baby dryer" made by your husband or a friend in his workshop. It can be easily assembled with a piece of hardboard fastened to a simple wood framing.

Covered with foam rubber and a blanket, it becomes a safe, shallow trough for after-bath routines.

FRESH diapers and towels may be kept in handy carrying kits placed on the shelf over the hamper. These holders are formed of Peg-Board joined with yarn or cord at the bottom and carried by means of a wood dowel attached at top center.

A short pipe at one side of the closet holds small garments on hangers. Out-of-season clothing may be stored on a pipe suspended high in the closet.

Most modern closets have an electric light. An electric heater, if needed, will keep baby warm during the bath.

Secretaries Workshop

Six Dist. 57 administrative secretaries attended a state-sponsored managerial services workshop in DeKalb this weekend.

Dorothy Patton, secretary to the superintendent, Ann Minkoff, secretary to the psychologist, Myrtle Spaulding, secretary to the business manager, and Anita Robertshaw, secretary to the assistant superintendent for instruction, participated in the day-long sessions.

Virginia Hennsberry, who operates the district's accounting machine, and Dorothy O'Neil, secretary at Fairview School, also attended the conference, which discussed the secretary's role in education, public relations and ungraded schools.

Legion Nine Prepares For Northbrook

BY GARY YEAST

It's showdown time tonight at Glenbrook North High School. After blanking Morton Grove 4-0 last night, Arlington Heights' American Legion baseball team will seek to protect a string of eight straight league victories against Northbrook's pre-season title favorites.

THE NORTHBROOK TEAM is staffed primarily with players from the 1966 state championship high school squad from Glenbrook North. While the Brookers have dropped one league game, Arlington Coach Lloyd Meyer still rates them as the greatest threat to his charges' championship aspirations.

Yesterday's victory over Morton Grove kept the legionaires alone in first place in the league scramble. Bob (Sideburns) Young provided the pitching for the Blue Sox, striking out six and allowing six hits in another seven-inning route job.

For all practical purposes everyone could have gone home after the first inning when Arlington broke loose for three runs. Back-to-back errors by Morton Grove and a walk to Thad Woodard gave Meyer's crew all it needed.

JOHN LOUGHMAN and Jim Jorgenson also scored in the inning on Doug Fink's single. Both reached base on singles of their own.

Fink scored the Big Blue's fourth run in the third inning. After he doubled to spark the rally, Fink came trotting home while Morton Grove was playing a private game of shuffleboard between the first baseman and the pitcher on Jerry Donahue's ground ball.

THE DEFENSIVE PLAY of the game was recorded by Donahue in the fourth. Donahue, playing right field, grabbed a single off the bat of Greg Luzinski. With a man on second breaking for home, he threw a perfect strike to catcher Mark Frase, who tagged the sliding Morton Grove runner.

Coach Meyer said the game tonight is the big one, as far as his legionaires are concerned. Meyer said, "It will be close all the way unless they break it open early in the game."

MEYER COMMENTED to his players after the game, "I know we are as good as they are, but we can't let down in the late innings as we have been doing."

Coach Meyer said he would go with Donahue on the hill, with John (Honey Bear) Frieidl rested for relief duty if necessary.

Donahue commented that Northbrook has a tremendous hitting team. He said, "I will primarily try to go with my fast ball. It's by far my best pitch."

The showdown is scheduled to start at 6 p.m. on the Glenbrook High School diamond.

The Springers needed 55 strokes to complete the front nine of the Mt. Prospect Country Club course playing alternate shots. But their handicap dropped them to a 16 net.

Two teams tied for low gross honors at 44. They were Evelyn and Gene Goodman, and Ina and Bob Lea.

Misty Isle 'Cap Set Saturday for Sophomore Fillies

The $30,000 added Misty Isle Handicap highlights a big week for three-year-olds Saturday, in the Arlington Park Jockey Club's phase of the 103-day co-ordinated Arlington-Washington Park meeting.

Clifford Lusky's Justakiss heads a list of the nation's top sophomore fillies entered in the Misty Isle event to be run at a mile and one-sixteenth on the infield grass.

AN OLD ARLINGTON favorite, Justakiss posted wins in the Majorette and Mademoiselle Stakes at the local track last year and added a victory in the Bewitch at Keeneland. A five-time winner as a two-year old, the sophomore daughter of Irish Lancer and Log House chalked up victories in the Ashland and Oaks Prep Stakes this year and is fresh from a six-length win in the Cleopatra.

Justakiss will be ridden by Johnny Sellers, the leading jockey in the recently-completed Balmoral Jockey Club Phase of the spring-summer meeting.

Other probable starters in the Misty Isle are Cologne, Swinging Mood, Maidni Diam, Neat 'N' Sweet, and False Fashion.

COLOGNE, who has shown a fondness for grass, was runner-up to Neat 'N Sweet in the Cinderella Handicap. A four-time winner last year, she will be ridden by Mickey Solomone. Neat 'N Sweet posted one victory last year, winning the Duranna Stakes.

Swinging Mood was second to Justakiss in her first stakes race this year. An injury sidelined the rapidly-improving filly earlier in the season, but she seems to have regained top form.

MAIDNI DIAM has four straight third place finished to her credit, while False Fashion has claimed two allowance wins this spring.

Also on tap for three-year-olds and over is the $25,000 added Meadowland Handicap, a sprint test at 5 1/2 furlongs. An early favorite for the Meadowland is eight-year-old Uncle Percy, winner of the opening day Clang Handicap.

Grid Honors Available For 1966 Collegians

The race for all-American football honors looks wide open this year.

Departing by graduation were 18 members of the 22-man 1965 United Press International All-American teams.

Quarterback Bob Griese of Purdue is the lone survivor of the first offensive team. The only players returning to Collegiate grid action from the first defensive team are tackle Lloyd Phillips of Arkansas, and Charley Smith of Michigan State, and halfback George Webster of Michigan State.

Shawhan Pitches Indians to 5-1 Win Over Hawks in Senior League Clash

Steve Shawhan twirled a neat five-hitter yesterday to lead the Indians to a 5-1 conquest of the Hawks in the Arlington Heights Boys Baseball Senior League.

SHAWHAN WHIFFED eight Hawks and walked none, as the Indians launched their second-half slate on an optimistic note. Greg Esty took the loss in an abbreviated contest called after six innings because of darkness. Steve Sinclair doubled for the Tribe's only extra-base blow.

In the only other Senior League game, the Bengals trimmed the Browns 6-3 behind the four-hit pitching of Steve Stratton. Darrell Castle was the batting hero for the winners, going two for three at the plate and taking part in three of their six runs. Steve Grant got three hits in three trips for the Bengals, while Rick Tully doubled for the Browns.

THE HORNETS buried the Cadets 16-0 in the North Red Intermediate League with Bill Ganzer picking up the win on a five-inning one-hitter. Ganzer struck out 12 and walked six. Ed Helleson paced the Hornets' 12-hit attack with a home run and a double. Mike Donate chipped in a triple as did Ganzer, and Tom Goury doubled for the winners. Glen Glassie was tagged with the loss.

The only South White Intermediate contest scheduled saw the Royals rip the Solons 15-9. Dave Mack bested Tom Cronin in the five-inning affair, contributing a home run to his own cause.

In Junior League action the South White Bulldogs collected their second win 17-5 over the Padres. Mike Pietsch struck out 12 and walked two to take credit for the win.

Dan Smith tripled for the Bulldogs.

His Wife Thinks So, Too!

Little Black Book Is Important to Lloyd Meyer

LLOYD MEYER

BY BOB CASTERLINE

A little black book, to most men, is a possession they surrender — or at least, hide very carefully — upon marriage.

But in Lloyd Meyer's house, it's an item that gets careful attention, and if it's ever misplaced, Mrs. Meyer helps Lloyd look for it.

He is one of only two men the Mets have in this area, and though he just began working for the Mets this spring, the team has already signed one of the prospects he scouted with his black book.

Byron Von Hoff, a Batavia High School pitcher, was the Mets' second draft choice after Meyer described him as "the best high school pitcher I've ever seen." Von Hoff was signed to a five-figure contract and sent to one of the Mets' triple-A farm clubs.

A salaried scout, Meyer is paid to birddog the Chicago area, and he sends in reports whenever he comes across a prospect. Ordinary ball players are written up on a white form-sheet, while the red-hot ones get a pink sheet.

The forms include boxes for rating the prospect's fielding, throwing, speed, and batting, including separate places for batting power and batting ability. In addition, the scouts send along information on size, weight, age, and what level the scout thinks the prospect is capable of making, from Class D up to the majors. Additional information is supplied on pitchers, rating the player's curve, fastball, change-up, and control.

"There are a lot of good prospects in this area," says the legion-team coach, "but very few really good ones. Even the top prospects need a lot of work, and I find it hard to recommend many players for much more than double or triple A baseball."

One of the first things Meyer looks for in a prospect is a strong throwing arm. "Without a good arm, a kid is dead — unless he's such a powerful batter that he can play first or third base," he says.

"An average thrower can only make the grade if he can do other things quite well — like hit or field. He should have speed, too, if he hopes to play anything but first, third, or catcher," says Meyer.

Another thing he looks for is size. "It's a lot more important than I thought," says Meyer. "My boss, Walt Millies, put it to me this way: 'How many guys on major league rosters do you see who are under 6-0 or 185 pounds?' he asked me.

"The little guy can make it once in awhile, as Bobby Shantz and Albie Pearson have proved. Still, durability is important, because a player is supposed to be ready for 162 games each season, plus the spring exhibition schedule. In order for a little guy to make it, he really has to be outstanding," says Meyer.

One of the big problems Meyer encounters as a scout in the Chicago and suburban area is the number of multi-sport athletes that want to go on to college.

"Actually, a boy is worth more to the major league teams at 18 or 19, fresh out of high school, than he will be at 22 or 23 after college," he explains.

"A younger player commands more money than an older one at sign-up time because at 18 or 19, he has a couple of years in which his learning ability is at its peak. If he signs then, he'll play a lot of summer and spring baseball on a farm team, and after a couple of years he'll be ready for a shot at the parent team.

"A college player, though, gets in maybe 30-40 games at most, and by the time he's ready to sign, there isn't much time left for him to make up the experience he lost by waiting.

"In the suburbs, many of the good baseball players are also fine football or basketball players, and they want to go to college on a ride. So they go to college to play basketball and in a sense, they waste their baseball careers away.

"One pitcher at Ripon College in Wisconsin could have signed for $50,000 a couple of years ago, but he's committed himself to college ball. So he'll graduate at 22, and after three years of service, he'll be too old to do much with, unless he is lucky and gets into some kind of good league that allows him lots of action in the summer," says Meyer.

As far as Meyer's personal future in scouting is concerned, he says he's perfectly happy with the situation he has now. "I wouldn't want to be a full-time scout, like Millies, because it's such a rat-race. One guy I was talking to said he had been home only two nights between February and June. You're running all over the country and eating restaurant food on the run and staying in motels. That's not for me," he says.

"If ever the exactly perfect thing came along, I might be interested in college coaching, but I have so many specific requirements for such a job that I doubt if any would ever come along that would suit me," he says.

"Right now I'm happy with what I've got. I'm in business in the family dairy, and I get to do some coaching with the American Legion team and I have a side-interest in major league ball through the Mets. As far as I'm concerned, this is just the right set-up," he said.

Boat Can Protect In Attack

BY JACK WOLISTON

In the event of a nuclear attack on this country, a pleasure boat could provide one of the best means of protection from radio-active fallout, according to Civil Defense authorities.

The use of pleasure boats and other small craft such protection is discussed in an information bulletin issued this month by the Suffolk County Department of Civil Defense, Patchogue, N.Y. It was prepared in cooperation with state and federal Civil Defense officials.

The bulletin points out that a stocked community shelter, or a home shelter, if either is available, would in most instances provide the best type of protection. It says the best alternative would be in a basement area if steps were taken fairly quickly to provide a mass of shielding material over and around an area which can be used as an expedient shelter. Then it adds:

"SHOULD NEITHER of the foregoing options be available, a boat with an awning or canopy would provide protection comparable to that found in the basement of an ordinary frame house.

"This is so because, as the radioactive dust settled in water, the water itself would provide the required mass to attenuate the radiation being emitted by the fallout dust.

This would tend to limit over-all exposure of a boat's occupants to the dust that was settling through the air, and the limited amount that might accumulate on the boat itself.

THIS CONTRIBUTION would be only about one-tenth of what could be expected from dust that landed on a solid surface instead of settling into the water around the boat."

THE BULLETIN lists three basic procedures which would be followed if protection from radio-active fallout is sought on a boat:

--The boat should be located in a minimum of three-to-five feet of water and not closer than 100 feet from the shoreline. The hazard from radiation exposure will be decreased as the depth of the water and the distance offshore is increased.

--Radio-active dust should not be allowed to accumulate on the boat. As much as 80 or 90 percent of the fallout can be disposed of if provision is made to wash or sweep the topside whenever a visible deposit is observed.

BY KEEPING the boat underway during the period of fallout, the effect of the wind would also remove much of the loose contamination.

DOCTOR SAYS

Self-Confidence

W. G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Some children are more susceptible to teasing than others just as some are more inclined than others to be bullies. If your child is unduly upset by teasing this would sug- can't be accomplished overnight but with patience much can be done.

Often a child who has been teased becomes upset because he senses that you are disturbed over the situation. Your first step then must be to make sure that you view his problem casually. You must avoid rushing to his defense or scolding his tormentors but rather instruct him how to deal with bullies by himself.

If he being teased by his own siblings you may want to deal with them later in private but even this often backfires and must be done with wisdom.

The quickest way to resolve the problem is to find a nursery school where your child can be with others his own age and learn the lessons of give and take that he will need throughout his life.

Q — Since a fever is the body's way of fighting an infection, why doesn't the disease disappear when the fever leaves? Shoud a child be allowed to run a low-grade fever (101 or 102) without the aid of aspirin or alcohol rubs?

A — When the fever leaves the body there may still be millions of body cells that have been damaged by the infection. It takes time to replace these and reduce inflammation.

Efforts are made to reduce a high fever to make the sick child more comfortable, prevent dehydration, conserve his strength and prevent convulsions. If the temperature is not over 102 there is no need to worry about it but a close check on it should be kept because it may shoot up very quickly.

The best way to combat a high fever is to sponge the child with lukewarm water or rubbing alcohol. Most doctors advise against the use of aspirin to reduce the fever in a child because sometimes it is not readily eliminated and poisonous concentrations build up in the child's blood.

Problem Solved, Then A Surprise

by JAN BONE

Does your wife complain she's nothing but a chauffeur for the kids? Must she constantly plan her day around pickups at pools, library, movies, and meetings?

If so, then she should meet Leonard G. Garasha, 819 N. Harvard, principal of Mount Prospect's Robert Frost School.

His job—to plan bus transportation for more than 1,200 summer school students.

Enrollment in School Dist. 59's classes didn't reach its unprecedented high until June 18, the weekend before school began. Though a majority of the 2,572 students would be walkers, bus schedules had to be planned to arrange economical pickup routes.

Although Dist. 59 receives state aid for its classes this summer, no transportation reimbursement is possible. Garasha was given a $ 5,000 budget—and stayed slightly under that figure.

his planning: several junior high lab classes, originally planned for Dempster, had to be rescheduled for Grove, necessitating a shuttle bus, and the distances between district areas from which children would be coming.

For example, some of Forest View Elementary School's summer students live east of the United Airlines complex on Algonquin Rd. Several of their classmates, however, live west of Arlington Heights beyond the Nike site near the Illinois Tollway.

Still others come from the Surrey Ridge and Airy Trace sections of Arlington Heights.

GARASHA'S solution? To use the schools as pickup centers wherever possible. Students would walk to their usual school, and be bussed when necessary to their summer classes.

All buses carried large colored squares in their front windows. Matching colored tags were mailed to children, who've been wearing them for identification.

THOUGH the first day was hectic, problems had been pretty well smoothed out by Garasha and Davidsmeyer Bus Service before the end of the week.

One situation they hadn't planned came up, though.

Three extra children turned up Tuesday at Forest View Elementary School. "End of the Line," said Garasha, who called their parents to retrieve the boys.

They were en route to YMCA day camp, but followed the other kids onto the school bus. Were they surprised!

Ticketed

Richard Lakes of Chicago was ticketed for improper signal equipment and driving with a suspended license Monday. Patrolman Michael Schenkel said Lakes was driving on Northwest Hwy. near Chestnut and that his auto had no signal or brake lights.

car, Lakes could produce no license. A check with the Secretary of State's office showed that Lakes' license had been suspended.

DISCUSSING plans for the forthcoming general election campaign at a meeting held for suburban Democratic committeemen are Oliver C. Dilks of Palatine Township, Cook County Assessor P. J. Cullerton, James Stavros of Wheeling Township and Arthur J. Haggenjos of Barrington Township. The meeting was held at the Bismarck Hotel in Chicago.

ROBERT P. BITTER, of 1433 W. St. James Pl., Arlington Heights, special agent in Des Plaines for the Dan. A. Kaufman Co., General Agency of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co., was a $1,000,000 producer for the company during 1965-66. He will be honored at the annual meeting in Milwaukee, July 24-25.

New President

Cooney, 41, resigned as vice-president of the Central National Bank of Chicago to take the post June 1. He is a former chairman of the Chicago Home Modernization Credit Group and has served on the Credit Bureau Reform Committee of the Illinois Bankers Assn. With his wife LaVon and son Jimmy, 12, he has lived in Elk Grove Village three years.

Missing, Air Conditioners

The theft of two air conditioners from apartments under construction was reported to Arlington Heights police Monday. Art Green of Zale Construction Co. of Skokie said the units were taken from apartments at 1114 N. Dale. The thefts occurred sometime over the weekend, he said. No estimate of the value of the units was given.

Kiwis Host Students

The kiwi is a strange looking New Zealand bird that cannot fly.

The Kiwi is also an attractive former airline stewardess who—like her namesake is grounded. There are quite a few of these in our area.

The students Richard Khalidi, Saudi Arabia; Phillip Davies, United Kingdom; Joji Shimanouchi, Japan; Lini Fuhrman, United States; and Christine [illegible]akowski, Switzerland; were guests of honor at a barbeque held at the Northbrook home of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Eastman.

Each of the students had received a "discover America" award from the airline, and Chicago was one of their cross-country stopovers. The students were also taken on a boat tour along Lake Michigan followed a luncheon with American Airlines representatives and kiwis.

THERE ARE 108 members in the Chicago Chapter—one of 52 in the United States, France and Germany. In May many members attended the biannual Kiwi Convention in Boston. The Chicago chapter won first prize for its scrapbook, prepared by Mrs. MacLeod, and for their original nametags. The group also won second place for their skit entitled "Swinging Red Coats."

Kiwi meetings are held on the second Wednesday of the month in the homes of members. They are now making preparations for the July 23 Summer Luau Party. This will be followed by the November 3 Casino Party.

Kiwis have their serious side too. In the past five years the Chicago club has raised $15,000 for the Park Lawn School for the Mentally Retarded Children in Evergreen Park.

Any American Airlines stewardesses who might be interested in joining the flightless ranks of the Kiwis can call He-7-1082 for details.

Wier is charged with the May 13 stabbing of 24 year old airline stewardess Myrna Maloney of Mount Prospect. The stabbing allegedly occurred near 702 W. Willow, just outside Arlington Heights.

Military Ousts Argentine President

BUENOS AIRES — Argentine President Illia has left his official residence. He was escorted by a group of his civilian supporters. They shouted "death to dictatorships" and "death to evil military men" at troops surrounding the Buenos Aires "White House." It is not certain whether Illia was leaving voluntarily or under military orders, nor was it clear where he is going. The military announced that Illia resigned last night. And, there were unconfirmed reports that the military told him they would throw him in prison if he doesn't get out of the country.

Illia was under fire from the military for his failure to deal decisively with the South American nation's political extremists, especially the Peronists.

N.Y. Newspaper Strike May End

NEW YORK CITY — Publishers of the World Journal Tribune reportedly hope to print their first editions July 5th following an agreement to end the two-month New York Newspaper Guild strike. The settlement in principle was announced this morning. It now must be ratified by Guild membership. Two other unions remain out, the mailers and pressmen. Another, the newspaper deliverers came to terms after the Guild agreement was announced.

THE DINOSAURS ARE COMING TO RANDHURST

JUNE 29th thru JULY 4th . . .

The age of the dinosaur will return when the Sinclair Refining Company brings its famous World's Fair Exhibit to Randhurst.

This amazing display of life-size dinosaurs recreations include accurate detailed replicas of an era that dates back as far as 2½ billion years ago, about half the reputed age of earth.

See dinosaur creations that measured 100 feet in length . . . and weighing 50 tons. Sinclair's insistence on accuracy required that each detail be fashioned by expert historians and sculptors.

Sinclair

Knowledge of dinosaurs was first unearthed in the 19th century. Sinclair's interest dates to about 30 years ago, when it sponsored expeditions to Wyoming, Texas and other states in search of dinosaur world evidence. Thirty years later, the total of all this research is evident in the famous recreated Sinclair Dinosaur Exhibit.

Spray Guns Meet First Mosquito Invasion

BY JACK A. VANDERMYN

Summer's first influx of mosquitoes buzzed into the area late last week and were greeted by the spray guns of the Northwest Mosquito Abatement Dist.

The mosquito abatement district is a taxing body seldom in the news until the flying pests make life miserable in the residential neighborhoods.

Then, everyone calls all at once and wonders, "what's being done to curb the mosquitoes."

Wilber Mitchell, director of the district, maintains offices at 142 Hintz Rd. in Wheeling. He said the entire staff is now working around the clock to bring the first wave of mosquitoes under control.

Twelve of the district's 14 spray units are pouring the mosquito killing DDT into the Arlington Heights - Mount Prospect area this week. By the weekend, the first barrage of spraying in Wheeling and Elk Grove Townships, is expected to be completed.

In addition to constant spraying in the district, which covers the entire Northwest suburban area, day crew are constantly spraying ponds and retention basins, favorite breeding spots for mosquitoes.

Mitchell said there are nine trucks out daily inspecting for mosquito larvae throughout the district. In addition, three spray carts are keeping the situation under control in catch basins and small ponds.

There is not much individual residents can do to avoid mosquitoes, Mitchell said. He did advise that water in bird baths, portable swimming pools be changed regularly.

Even small pools of water are breeding places for mosquitoes.

When the abatement district, which is supported by a tax levy of .024 for each $100 of equalized assessed valuation, discovers an invasion of mosquitoes, such as the wave that recently hit, it begins a systematic spraying plan intended to blanket the entire district in the shortest time possible.

This spraying minimizes the problem. Mosquitoes are hardy insects, though, and they must be combatted on a day-to-day basis.

Officials in both Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights emphasize that the villages themselves are not in the mosquito control business.

One official in Mount Prospect said that when the mosquito problem is serious, residents tend to call the village hall to complain.

All of the spraying in the area and all of the mosquito control programs, both inside and outside corporate limits of district municipalities, is controlled and scheduled by the mosquito abatement district.

Plan to Beautify Rail Tracks Studied

BY JERILYN WATSON

First steps toward beautifying the three-mile-long strip of Chicago & North Western right-of-way in Arlington Hgts. were discussed yesterday at a meeting in the office of Village Manager L. A. Hanson.

Mrs. Stephen Jurco, president of the Arlington Heights Woman's Club, led a delegation of seven club members in presenting a proposal for cleaning and landscaping the right-of-way, which stretches across the village from about Wilke rd. on the west to Arthur av. on the east.

The site proposed for improvement is between the North Western tracks and Northwest Highway. The right-of-way varies roughly from 20 to 30 yards in width.

Arlington Heights is considering leasing the property from the railway, Hanson said. A sample lease agreement was brought to the meeting by railway representatives A. F. Mason and O. W. Smith. Mason is senior lease agent in the real estate department; Smith is division engineer.

The railway charges no rental fee, Smith said.

The representatives said the railway would have no objections to beautification projects if the North Western's safety standards are met. They promised to provide the Woman's Club and village with a set of safety specifications, which include height of foliage and dimensions of the roadbed.

Chicago & North Western Railway representatives listen intently to a proposal for beautifying the railway right-of-way in Arlington Heights. O. W. Smith (left), is division engineer, and A. F. Mason, senior lease agent in the real estate department.

Mrs. M. Ran Hart, chairman of the club Conservation and Garden Dept., said preliminary plans for improvement would include:

--Removal of old ties and debris on the right-of-way fronting on Northwest Highway.

Hanson suggested that the club members get an estimate of the cost of plantings from a landscape specialist retained by the village.

Hanson estimated the cost of the project at several thousand dollars, and stressed that the village hasn't committed itself to helping finance the project.

"The contours of the right-of-way would enter into its final appearance," Hanson said. "And the right-of-way currently is uneven."

Mrs. Jurco said public opinion as gathered by club members indicates widespread support for beautification, adding that many Arlington Heights residents have offered their help for the improvements.

Community beautification is an official project of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, she said.

Depression of Tracks Up For Discussion

The proposed depression of the railroad tracks in downtown Arlington Heights will be the main topic of discussion at tonight's Plan Commission meeting.

The hearing will be part of a continued public hearing on the Master Thoroughfare Plan for the Village prepared by Tec-Search and Associates, a planning firm.

The meeting will be at 8 p.m. in the Municipal Building.

Roundup For The Day

By United Press International

Planes Strike Near Hanoi, Haiphong

SAIGON -- U.S. warplanes struck at the edge of Hanoi and Haiphong this morning, destroying an estimated 40 per cent of North Viet Nam's vital oil supply. The raids were also the closest air strike yet to the Communist capital and the key port city. Navy jets first pounded oil storage depots just two miles from the center of Haiphong. Twenty-five minutes later Air Force Thunderchiefs hit petroleum facilities three miles from the heart of Hanoi.

The bombing attacks sent smoke spiraling almost seven miles high in mushroom clouds that spread out for 50 square miles. More than four hours after the attacks both storage areas still were reported in flames. During the missions the pilots were up against heavy anti-aircraft fire. One Air Force pilot said flak was as thick as a blanket. Radio Hanoi claims that seven U.S. planes were shot down but American military officials in Saigon made no mention of losses.

SEATO Backs U.S. in Viet War

CANBERRA, Australia -- All the members of the Southeast Asian Treaty Organization -- except France -- have given the United States a vote of confidence in its determination to win the Viet Nam war. The SEATO group ended three days of talks in Canberra today.

House Deadlocked Over Housing

WASHINGTON -- The House Judiciary Committee is deadlocked over President Johnson's request for a Federal fair housing law. As things stood going into a closed committee meeting this morning, the committee could neither approve nor kill the controversial measure.

Kennedy: Draw, Don't Draft

WASHINGTON - Massachusetts Senator Edward Kennedy says a lottery would be a workable substitute for the current method of drafting young men for military service. In a prepared statement, Kennedy told the House Armed Services Committee he disagreed with Selective Service Director Lewis Hershey on the feasibility of a lottery. Kennedy suggests that all mentally and physically qualified males be assigned a number when they become 19. A national drawing would be held each year and those whose numbers fall at the top could count on being drafted.

3 Pct. Utility Tax Urged To Pay Storm Damage

Would Affect All But Water

BY JIM ROSS

Village Manager L. A. Hanson has recommended that the Board of Trustees enact a 5 per cent tax on all utilities except water to finance the village's tornado cleanup effort.

The recommendation was submitted to the Finance Committee of the board last night. Hanson said the tax is permitted under a 1955 act of the General Assembly.

He explained: "The State Legislature, at the time recognizing that the various utilities were regulated and under the jurisdiction of the Illinois Commerce Commission as to rates and services, passed a bill permitting the utilities to pass on the cost of such a tax in the form of an additional charge to the customer."

The following items are totalled into the charge, he said.

--An amount equal to such municipal tax or any part thereof;

--Three per cent of such tax, or any part thereof to cover the cost of accounting, and

--An amount equal to the increase in taxes and other payments to governmental bodies resulting from the additional charge.

Hanson said if the board enacts the tax it would take about 90 days before it could be put into effect. At that time there would be seven months left in the 1966-67 fiscal year which would result in approximately $214,000 revenue.

TWO OTHER alternatives were mentioned. The possibility of tapping the contingency fund in the board's budget was discarded immediately.

"This would be, in effect, deficit financing," Hanson said. "Such a move would exhaust the fund, and with 10 months left in the fiscal year, it would be extremely dangerous."

It was also suggested that the real estate tax could be increased. Hanson argued, if this tax were increased to the maximum allowed, it would net only about $38,000.

"We have already spent more than twice this amount in the cleanup, so this is hardly practical," he said. Hanson estimated earlier that the total cost to the village of the cleanup operations would run between $150,000 and $175,000, plus an added $15,000 for the replacement of trees.

BOARD members Roy Bressler and Frank Palmatier indicated they felt the village should raise the real estate tax to the maximum before it resorts to the utility tax.

"It might not result in much money," Bressler said, "but I believe residents would be concerned if we don't go to the limit on one tax before imposing another."

Village President John G. Woods told the committee that he hoped it would consider some other long-standing projects which could also be financed by the utility tax.

Among those mentioned were additional parking facilities, a refuse disposal site, additional fire stations and court facilities.

The Finance Committee will meet to discuss the question again, probably next Wednesday, before the matter is referred to the Board of Trustees as a whole.

Electricity 'Theft' Cleaned Up

The fears of some north side residents that their electrical power was being "stolen", by construction projects in the area, were quieted Tuesday by Public Service Co. officials.

A letter from a young lady living on the 1800 block of N. Patton, printed in Tuesday's Day, reported electrical power in the area was broken last Friday. She said apparently the construction project at Route 53 and Palatine Rd. was robbing the residents of their power.

A check with Charles Harnach, area manager for the Commonwealth Edison Co. cleared up the problem.

Harnach said that a four-square-mile area around the construction project was without power for several hours Friday. But the cause, he said was a broken line, not electrical thievery.

"A crane moving a temporary bridge at the construction site broke through two of our main lines causing the break," he said.

Harnach said that this is apt to happen at such a project, and is the cause of concern to the power company and to the construction companies.

But he said there has never been any interference with local power by such a project tapping electricity.

"Whatever electricity they use at a construction site," Harnach said, "is supplied by a line which our company lays down especially for them. They are never on a residential supply line."

Transfer $20,000

The transfer of $20,000 to the imprest fund of Dist. 214 has been approved by the board of education. The money will be used for current expenditures in the four cafeterias and the athletic departments and to pay bills in advance of regularly slated board meetings.

The fund will be deposited in the Bank of Arlington Heights July 1.

Congressional Record Prints Day Editorial

A guest editorial printed in The Arlington Day on June 14 has been reprinted in full in the June 23 edition of the Congressional Record.

The editorial, entitled "Flag Day -- 1966" was written by Sfc. Dudley C. Gould, a soldier stationed at the 45th Artillery Brigade Headquarters here.

Rep. Donald Rumsfeld (R., Ill.) submitted the editorial, saying it was a "fitting tribute to our flag."

Gould said he wrote as he did "in an attempt to clarify some of the muddled thoughts I am sure must remain in the minds of some readers following the recent flag-stomping experiment in symbolism-- not to revive the argument, I hope."

Girl Admits $140 Thefts

A 13-year-old girl has admitted to police that she took a total of nearly $140 from the Arlington Bowling Lanes, 8 N. Vail in three separate instances.

Police said the girl admitted she took a key to the establishment from her brother, who worked there, and used it to gain entrance.

Woman Tells Of Seeing UFO

Unidentified flying objects were reported sighted in the southeastern sky last night by a village resident.

Mrs. Barbara Ward of 311 S. Reuter, said that between 11 p.m. and 1 a.m. she made three separate sightings of the objects. In each case the objects were white-yellow lights that moved in erratic fashion, seeming to dart skyward and out of sight as planes going into O'Hare passed overhead.

The tower at O'Hare said they observed no UFO or other unknown blips on their radar screens. Apparently no other residents saw the light, because Mrs. Ward's was the only report received by police.

The Cellar Clears 1st Hurdle

The Arlington Heights Youth Council has recommended that the Cellar be re-licensed; but the fate of the teen-age nightclub will remain unsettled for at least a week.

A report presented to Village Manager L. A. Hanson Tuesday morning stated:

"Accepting the fact that at present the village offers no type of gathering place for this type of activity and in view of Paul Sampson's committments regulating activities, the Youth Council after its meeting with Paul Sampson recommends that the Cellar be granted a permit to re-open."

IT IS up to Hanson, however to make the final decision. He said Tuesday that before he makes that judgment he wants to confer with Village Attorney Jack Siegel. Siegel is vacationing and will not return until next Tuesday.

"The council made a number of suggestions with their recommendation," Hanson said, "and I want to consider all of them before I decide what to do." Some of those decisions would require legal advice.

The basic suggestions presented by the council concerned solutions to physical problems at the Cellar, which is located at Salem and Davis.

IMPROVEMENT of parking facilities, upgrading of exterior lighting and improved access to streets were problems which the council asked to be solved.

Hanson said he also wished to consider Sampson's request for a yearly, rather than a weekly, license.

Just in Time

Two youths were turned over to juvenile officers after they were discovered wiring M-1 torpedo firecrackers to the Randhurst intercom system.

Shortchanged

They Grit Teeth In Water Crisis

BY TOM STANTON

Pure fine white sand is great on the beach but it's a mess when it comes out of the faucets.

--It clogs up drains, toilets, water heaters and water softeners.

--It ruptures garden hoses.

--It plays hob with anything mechanical: faucet valves, washing machines, dish washers, and what have you?

--And it causes people to worry about the purity of their water.

Just such a household calamity has hit the recently-annexed subdivision of Arlington Vista on the northeastern edge of the village.

Apparently the well which services the subdivision caved-in about 400 feet down, and pumps began to bring up fine sand with the water.

The trouble reportedly started about three weeks ago. Last night the Village tried to turn off the well and start pumping Village water into the subdivision. But problems continue and the work was to go on today.

The job of connecting the subdivision into the main village water supply is now in its third day. In the process the backyard of the William Gasser family at 1713 Lilac Tr. was pretty well torn up.

"They came in here at 8 a.m. Monday and started tearing down the back fence. I wish they had at least come to my back door and told me what they were going to do," Mrs. Jeannine Gasser said.

The well is behind the Gasser lot at about 1710 E. Palatine Rd.

"I asked them: 'Are you going to put it up again?' " she said. "And the workman said: 'I don't know, you'll have to call the guy who heads the water department.'"

Mrs. Virginia Thomas, of 1928 Cherry Hill Dr., whose water supply apparently was most severly hit, voiced fear that the water might not be pure.

Billy Gasser, 9, his sister Laurie, 7, and their dog Chris play in the Gasser backyard on a mound of dirt atop one of their mother's shrubs as men from the water department work to shut down the well supplying Arlington Vista.

Neighborhood Crisis - Sand in the Water

"I just question how safe the water is. If it has sand in it, what else might be in it?" she asked.

Mrs. Thomas has been borrowing drinking water from her neighbors, the Freismuths. The Freismuth house at 1937 Evergreen Tr., is behind the Thomas house, yet the Freismuths' water has been free of sand.

Mrs. Thomas does not feel satisfied with the service she received from the Water Department. She said it was not until the sand had completely clogged the pipes and she could get no water at all, Sunday, that the department sent out a repairman.

"Every time I called them about the service, a woman would answer and ask: 'Is it about your bill?'" she said.

"They ought to have a night emergency number. To get your water fixed after 5 p.m. you have to call the police," Mrs. Thomas said.

Village Manager L. A. Hanson, who ordered the Arlington Vista well shut down, explained that though there is sand in the water, the water is pure.

"All that water is chlorinated," Hanson said.

He said he did not know the exact cause of the trouble in the well, but said, "It was probably a cave-in."

Mrs. Gasser said they could not shut off any of the faucets in the house.

"All of them are clogged with sand and I can't use my washer," she said.

Her greatest fear is that the village will not repair her fence and shrubs.

But Manager Hanson promised, "Anything damaged, we will replace."

Dist. 214 Approves Bank

The Bank of Elk Grove has been approved by the Dist. 214 board of education as the depository for the activity funds for Elk Grove High School. It has been a policy of the board to provide a depository for the funds in a bank located in the same community as the high school.

2 Boys Hit By Autos

Two youngsters were hospitalized Tuesday after being injured in separate accidents.

Mark J. Steerup, 8, of 621 N. Chestnut, was reported in fair condition in Northwest Community Hospital. He suffered a fractured leg and multiple cuts and bruises when he was struck by an auto at Euclid and Walnut.

About a half hour later Michael Marsh, 9, of Elk Grove, was struck by a bicycle while playing at Recreation Park.

He also suffered a fractured leg and was admitted to Northwest Community Hospital where his condition was listed as fair.

Over 50 Club Trip Thursday

Members of the Over 50 Club will meet at Westgate School in Arlington Heights on Thursday, June 30 at 10 a.m. A trip to Lincoln Park will be preceded by luncheon at the Encore Restaurant in Edison Park. New members and friends are invited.

Non-Resident Swim Rates Set

The Mount Prospect Park Dist. has established its rates for swimming pool passes for non-residents.

Thomas Cooper, district superintendent, disclosed that non-residents may purchase the passes at the district office between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. at 600 S. See-Gwun Monday through Friday.

A family pass costs $30; one for an adult more than 14-years old, $16; one for a child 7 to 13-years old, $13.

Residents are required to show proof of residence, Cooper said. Non-residents will be required to show where they live.

High School Gets GM Help

Among the items of automotive equipment donated to Forest View High School by General Motors was a Pontiac engine. Robert Freeman, power mechanics instructor at Forest View (from left) and M. Morton, president of Morton Pontiac, Inc., of Arlington Heights, were present when Peter Titre, supervisor of the industrial education program accepted the gift from K.E. Longbine, General Motors assistant zone manager for the area.

Forest View High School received a group of automotive components yesterday from General Motors for use in the school's industrial arts program.

The equipment includes a 1966 Pontiac six - cylinder overhead cam engine, transmission, several power brake units and a variety of special tools and devices needed to adapt the material for classroom use.

Peter J. Titre of Arlington Heights, supervisor of industrial education, accepted the donation with Robert Freeman, power mechanics instructor, from K. E. Longbine, Pontiac Motor Division assistant zone manager for the area.

Longbine said the donation is in keeping with the company's interest in education and is one of many such gifts made to help train young men in the field of automotive engineering.

General Motors' interest in education includes scholarships and major fund grants. For high school students the company provides instructional films, charts, kits and safety education aids. Dealers lend cars for driver education training programs and GM sponsors a national 4-H safety program.

Morton Pontiac, Inc. of Arlington Heights is currently furnishing three driver education training cars to Dist. 214, one of which is used at Forest View.

Football Hero

By Catherine O'Donnell

A four year football scholarship to Vanderbilt University has been awarded to Jim Brophy of S. Drury Lane, Arlington Heights.

Jim, who graduated earlier this month from Campion Jesuit High School, in Prarie du Chien, Wisconsin, is the son of the James Brophys.

The family is equally proud of their daughter, Barbara, who won a degree from the College of St. Teresa, in Winona, Minn., this month.

Jim attended St. James before he went to Campion. He started playing football with the Arlington Heights Park District almost as soon as he was old enough to handle a football.

How's That?

If there was one thing positively proven by last night's meeting between the owner of the teenage spot called the Cellar and the Arlington Heights Youth Commission, it was, that the Village Hall meeting chamber needs to have something done with the acoustics. With rare exceptions, all of the speakers sounded like a meeting of laryngitis victims.

It was almost impossible to hear anyone speak, although the boys and girls present were quiet and attentive. This happens everytime anyone speaks in the trustee chamber. It usually makes the speaker sound as if they were uttering their last weak words.

It's a frustrating feeling for an interested spectator, whether the meeting concerns village affairs or anything else.

Send A Card

Friends of Dororthy Harrison, who is slowly but certainly recovering from a very bad automobile accident early this year, will be happy to learn that she is home again with her husband Ray, and their six children. She has just returned from St. Luke's Presbyterian Hospital, where she had her third tracheotomy.

The restrictive cast has been removed from her injured leg and she is able to walk but once again she must resort to sign language to be understood.

She is being spoken of by her friends and neighbors as "the bravest woman we've ever known." She would welcome cards and visitors to her home at 1129 N. Bevarly.

Stalemate

When nine year old Bob Buckley of Williams Rd., in Palatine, found a five dollar bill on Babcock Rd., right there on the ground in front of him, he was pretty excited.

He ran into the house and announced his find to his mother, Mrs. Richard Buckley. She explained to him that they would have to find the owner. They called around and no one seemed to be missing any money, least of all, a five dollar bill. They inserted an ad in a newspaper.

Before the ad was published Bobby was visiting his cousins who were also being visited by his grandmother, Mrs. Irene Buckley. He told them the story of the money. His amazed grandmother told him that she had lost the money and never did know where.

She had visited his home but never thought of mentioning it to his family because she'd almost forgotten about it.

Right now there is a stalemate between Bob and his grandmother. She wants him to have the money and he wants her to have it. Meanwhile the entire family is well surprised at the coincidence that reunited the money and the owner.

Chicken?

A traveling business man of our town has just returned with a new recipe for breakfast.

He was in Boston and ran into the hotel coffee shop counter for a quick pre-plane breakfast. A woman next to him ordered an "Orange Jullus". The counter girl squeezed six oranges and broke two raw eggs into the juice and mixed it well on the blender.

The diner explained to the interested villager that makes breakfast easy, economical and energy filled. Try that on your blender some morning.

Perpetual Silence

Central Australia's Warramanga people require all female relatives of a deceased male to remain silent for a year or two as a form of mourning. The restriction includes remote kin and thus most tribal women usually are condemned to perpetual silence, so they become proficient in sign language.

OBITUARIES

Louise Meyer

Mrs. Louise Meyer, 79, of 428 S. Windsor, Arlington Heights, died yesterday in Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines.

Preceded in death by her husband Walter, she is survived by a son Larry Johnson of Arlington Heights; a grand daughter; a brother Frank Wilkin of Chicago and two sisters Mrs. Barbara Haase and Mrs. Angela McMillen both of Chicago.

Visitors may call at the Lauterburg & Oehler Funeral Home in Arlington Heights after 7 p.m. tonight. A funeral mass will be offered Friday in St. James Church at 10 a.m. Entombment will be in Queen of Heaven Cemetery.

2 tbsps. salad oil
1/2 cup Chun King Soya Sauce
3 tbsps. salad oil
1/4 cup Sherry
1/3 cup water
2 cans (16-oz. each) Chun King Chinese Vegetables, well drained
1 can (5 oz.) Chun King Water Chestnuts, drained and sliced

Trim fat from steak; cut into 1/8 to 1/4 inch strips. Pour 2 tbsps. salad oil into wide fry pan, tilt to coat bottom completely.

Saute meat strips (do not overlap) over medium-high heat until meat loses its red color -- about 1 minute.

Combine soya sauce, salad oil, and Sherry in large bowl. Add browned meat strips. Add the water to pan in which meat was sauted and boil, scraping loose all the browned particles. Add to meat-sauce mixture. Mix meat and sauce well, cover and chill.

Drain Chinese Vegetables; chill. When meat and vegetables are chilled, drain meat (reserving liquid) nad arrange on top of vegetables. Pour sauce over, garnish with sliced water chestnuts.

Serves 8.

Designed especially with the hungry male in mind, this cold Polynesian beef salad provides a quick and colorful answer for a summer meal.

Enjoy Your Child's Vacation

Need a lift and a challenge in your summer routine?

Mrs. Kathryn M. McElroy, principal of Kensington School in Arlington Heights, recently gave some advice to school parents which may help you and your family.

Mrs. McElroy said: "With all the excitement of closing the school year, there comes a twinge of nostalgia. In the task of clearing out desks, one finds a pasty homemade valentine, a piece of Christmas candy, a hastily written note, a 'lost' pen...

"Another year is over, and yet not really, for in the business of teaching young children there actually is no beginning and no end. It is as it should be, a continuing process, a never ending project," she said.

"ALL SUMMER long there may be a break in the lock-step of schedule and regular hours, but the quest for finding new experiences goes on and on.

"So, be prepared to enjoy it with them as parents. Let the dust gather. Use paper plates. Tramp woods and have a prairie picnic. Permit yourself the all-too-brief chance for recapturing your own wide-eyed and eager childhood.

"Autumn will be here almost before we realize it, and our children will be anxious (though some won't admit it) to come skipping back to new adventures. School will once again become the most important thing in their lives and we will fall easily into a semblance of serenity, but with purpose. Meanwhile, enjoy a happy, relaxed holiday!"

Experiment in Education

French for Youngsters In a Back Yard Class

BY JERILYN WATSON
Woman's Editor

The freckles on the faces of the 17 youngsters seated on a shaded lawn at 537 S. Pine couldn't have been counted in a month.

Dressed in play clothes and tennis shoes or sandals, they looked like any group of American children liberated from school for the summer.

The language they spoke, however, wasn't English. Sometimes their phrases were halting, but the language was clearly and recognizably French.

The children were guinea pigs in an educational experiment based on the theory that children up to age 11 are potentially bilingual -- that they can absorb a new language without resorting to comparisons, as adults frequently do. Basic tools of the methods are imitation and repetition.

Their teacher, a 20-year-old French major at Wooster (O.) College, led the children in the final lesson of a three-week session that began June 7.

"Je m'appelle Ellen," said the teacher, Ellen Everhart of the S. Pine address. "Comment vous appellez-vous?"

The children thought about it for a minute. After a couple of false starts, they answered with their own names.

WITHOUT offering written material or giving an English translation, Ellen had taught the children the meaning of a simple phrase.

In the hour-long class, one of three she taught daily, Miss Everhart never resorted to an English word.

When the explanation she had to give in French was too complex for the youngsters, none of whom had studied the language before, the Arlington Heights girl used teaching aids -- a chalkboard, stuffed animals, a watch on a chain, a fork, clothing articles, a paper plate clock with movable hands.

All were placed on a table in the outdoor classroom, from which Ellen presided near a tree trunk.

MOST noteworthy about the unusual school was its atmosphere. The youngsters, who ranged in age from 6 to 11, lacked the self-consciousness that often plagues older students trying to learn a foreign language.

One little boy, who looked as though he'd be formidable on a football field, was among the most anxious students.

"I know, I know," he would pipe as Ellen called on other students for answers.

"A Francais," Ellen rebuked, smiling a little at his eagerness.

ELLEN'S class never faltered a moment for lack of assignments. Armed with a teaching plan, she sped from reviewing previous lessons to introducing new material to leading songs and games.

The children sang "Frere Jacques" as a round, clapped and stomped to a French version of "Brother, Come and Dance with Me" from "Hansel and Gretel."

"They know a number of songs," said Ellen after the session.

She smiled. "I'm really pleased with their progress, especially because this is the first time I've had the chance to teach French to grammar school children."

"They're completely open, and don't get shy about trying to say different-sounding words," she said.

ELLEN SAID she became interested in the experimental method of teaching French to youngsters -- without use of textbooks or attempts to impose grammar -- when she first learned of it in college.

"I wanted to try it," she recalled, "because it sounded like a fun method and because, success probably is obvious to frankly, it didn't sound at first like it would work."

Changing her mind about the feasibility of the method, Ellen asked her mother, Mrs. Donald Everhart, to help her enlist neighborhood youngsters.

That the experiment was a their parents, now subjected to barrages of French from proud children.

Speaking so much French helped Ellen, too. The day after her backyard school closed, she left for Europe, where she'll study at the University of Geneva and travel for the summer.

Ellen Everhart gestures with fingers as she teaches a French class to youngsters on the Everhart lawn at 537 S. Pine.

Third in a Series On the Revenue Article

Proposed Relief for School Districts

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third article in a five part series discussing the proposed amendments to the Illinois Revenue Article. These amendments will be presented to the voters in "blue ballot" on Nov. 8, 1966.)

BY JACK A. VANDERMYN

In case you're interested, section 13 of the current Illinois revenue article authorizes the state of Illinois to sell bonds to help finance the World Columbian Exposition of 1893.

Language such as this is one reason many political leaders of the state are relying support for amendments to the present revenue article, written in 1848 and adopted in the constitution in 1870.

In sections three, nine and 10 of the proposals, there is little if any controversy and both opponents and proponents of the revenue article agree that if sections one and two are going to be implemented, updating of the language in sections three, nine and 10 is mandatory.

Section three provides that income and property tax exemptions may be granted by the legislature under the general law to schools, and to religious and charitable organizations.

Section nine authorizes local taxing bodies to make improvements by special assessment and to continue to levy real estate taxes.

In accordance with the provisions of section one, discussed in the first article of this series, real estate in the local districts shall constitute one class, except in Cook County.

Reasons for the exemption of Cook County from the uniform requirement of one class real property classification will be explained in detail in the next article in this series, discussing section 13 of the revenue amendment.

Section 10 requires local municipalities to meet their bonded debt commitments and prohibits these authorities from selling private property for the payment of municipal corporate debts.

SECTION 12 is another of the important sections of the proposed amendments. This section, which is aimed toward providing relief to school districts operating grades one through 12, is often overlooked in discussions of the revenue article.

Most school districts in the state of Illinois are community consolidated districts, operating grades kindergarten through eight.

Another completely separate school district and school board of education operates the high school districts. Usually, three or four elementary school districts feed students into one high school district.

Many educators believe that it is better educationally — and more economical — for one board of education to operate both high school and grade school districts within a community or set of communities.

One of the main reasons this is not practical at this time, at least not in fast growing suburbia, is the fact that under the present revenue article bonded indebtedness is limited to five per cent of assessed valuation for each school district.

Thus, when one school district serves only elementary students, it is limited to five per cent of bonding power. When a high school district serve the same overlapping area, it is given an additional bonding power of five per cent and for all practical purposes, the bonding power on assessed real property in an area served by two districts is raised to 10 per cent.

A school district operating elementary and high schools is limited to the same five per cent.

Where growth problems are a consideration, the five per cent bonding power just does not give a broad enough financial base to the schools to cope with the building booms now being experienced in most urban areas of the state.

SECTION 12 is intended to give relief to the bonded debt limit of school districts maintaining grades one through 12 schools.

The proposed amendment would keep the bonded indebtedness limit at five per cent in areas where two districts are maintained and would raise the limit to 10 per cent where there is one district serving 12 grades.

Opponents feel that this will stimulate consolidation of elementary and high school districts. While the financial savings in the consolidated districts may not be overly significant, the advantage of having uniform curriculum for all students entering high schools from feeder elementary schools is expected to be great.

Many areas in fast growth situations are already operating unit school districts. It is the intent of the provisions in section 12 to provide them with relief and bring their bonding power in line with that now enjoyed by dual districts.

Vantage Point

. . . by Jack Vandermyn

Frank Von Arx's heart will be broken. He goes away on vacation and what happens. The board of education officially changes the name of Slichenmyer High School to Willow High School.

It makes sense, though. If the football team has a bad year, they can name them the Weeping Willows.

Or how about the wrestling team's slogan ... come wrestle with me, I'm from old Willow tree.

What are they building out there on the far north outskirts of Arlington Heights, a high school or an arboretum?

Woe on the board when Von Arx hears what happened to his one big cause.

The Dist. 214 board of education has brought the wrath of Some Day to bear ... not to mention the wrath of the Chicago Tribune, Des Plaines Suburban Times and perhaps even the good old accepted influence .....

Willow, indeed.

WHAT RED blooded American boy wants to say that he graduated from a high school named after a street that was named after a tree — and a weeping tree at that.

What red blooded American girl wants to say she graduated from an institution named Willow High School?

The damage is done. Willow it will be. At least, Willow it will be to the board of education. We think that popular sentiment will carry the cause of Slichenmyer ever forward.

After all, they don't go around naming trees after educators. Why name high schools after trees?

Can you imagine ... a whole grove of Slichenmyer trees surrounded by Gilbert bushes in a field of Martin grass?

Willow High School, indeed. What are they going to call the cheer leaders, Willowy Chicks? Doesn't Slich's Chicks have that ring to it?

THE MORAL to this story, Mr. Some Day, is don't be a loud mouth about a cause, then run off on vacation. Even Frank Smith chuckled as he cast his vote, "Von Arx will never know."

So we are going to have a Kennedy High School in Rolling Meadows, some day and that's fine.

But what about the other three schools that Dist. 214 projects in the future? Has the trend been set? Will we have an Oak High School for our little acorns (ouch) one day?

Or will the board choose Sapling High School for all the little saps in the district?

How about Pine High School or Peach Tree High or Apple Knocker High? All doors are open in the face of this shocking, precedent setting move by the board of education.

Those who fought the good battle for Slichenmyer High School will live to fight another day. In the meantime, a whole generation of children are condemned to Willow High.

IN ALL seriousness, we have enjoyed poking a little fun at the Board of Education and we hope that the campaign for Slichenmyer High School was accepted in the manner it was intended.

It is a credit to an organization like school district 214 that it can solve the multi-faceted problems confronting it and still enjoy an occasional laugh, even at its own expense.

We hold retiring superintendent Slichenmyer in high regard and we would have liked to see his years of effort rewarded by having one of the high schools named for him.

Such was not to be and mainly because the man himself refused to give the one little nudge that could have put the campaign over.

Slichenmyer is not the type to look for self-exploitation. His satisfaction in retirement rests in the sound knowledge that he leaves behind a job well done.

There are a lot of statistics that could be quoted to tell the job of Slichenmyer in Dist. 214. They are unimportant at this point.

What is important is the warm feelings in the hearts of those who will carry on in the Slichenmyer tradition — even those who are eventually assigned to Willow High School.

Equal Rights?

The U. S. Supreme Court has ruled that if any suspect "is alone and indicates in any manner that he does not wish to be interrogated, the police may not question him."

Enters a shifty-eyed character carrying a small black bag. He heads for the police sergeant's desk.

SERGEANT: Good morning, Sir. May I help you?

CHARACTER: So who needs help? I'm helpin' YOU, pal. Fact is, I just heisted a bank for the six grand in the bag here, and I wanted you to be the first to know.

SERGEANT: Well, now, this IS news. Thank you for reporting it, sir. Do you have an attorney?

CHARACTER: So who needs one?

SERGEANT: Unless you have one with you, sir, it would be illegal as well as unethical for us to discuss the bank holdup with you. Such incommunicado custodial interrogation could be interpreted as an effort on our part to induce you to incriminate yourself. This, of course, would mar our public image.

CHARACTER: So who digs that jazz? All I know is I don' want no mout'piece. 'Cause I ain't gonna blab to him or nobody else. Savvy, copper?

SERGEANT: It's entirely up to you, sir, of course. I merely felt it might make you feel better to get it off your chest.

CHARACTER: It ain't hurtin' my chest, Mac. An' if you don' butt out, I'll put the finger on you cops for infringin' on my rights an' for police brutality. Then see what happens.

SERGEANT: As you wish, sir. But if you change your mind, please feel free to come see us — accompanied by an attorney, of course. Come at your convenience. We're open here night and day. Ha!

CHARACTER: Well, don't wait up for me, chum. S'long, sucker. Be seein' ya in court some o' these days.

So the character leaves with his right of silence, his freedom of action — and his little black bag full of loot.

Each and every American is entitled to his rights, of course, as the Supreme Court says.

Presumably, this includes the public, law enforcers, and even the victims of crime and violence.

Open New Model at Sunset Heights

A new model home has been opened in the Sunset Heights development of Schavilje and Kauth, two fathers and two sons building team.

The Gleam, in the Sunset Heights West section in Mount Prospect, features an elegant foyer that leads to a step-up living room. Decorative wrought iron railing separates the living room from an elevated dining room. Both are covered by a high vaulted, cathedral-type ceiling to provide an atmosphere of airiness and dignity.

The U-shaped kitchen with built-in oven and range, formica-topped custom cabinets and a spacious dinette offers a full view of the family room and backyard.

The family room leads through a sliding glass wall to the patio and garden. It has a large closet and powder room so that the children can run in and out of the house without tracking mud on the carpets.

The quiet area, a few steps up, consists of a large master bedroom with three walk-in closets and a private compartmented ceramic tile vanity bath.

The Gleam, an elegant split level, 8-room home with four large bedrooms and 2 1/2 baths. The two-car attached garage and basement give more than ample storage space. The model homes are in Sunset Heights, Mount Prospect, on Golf Rd. 1/2 mile west of Elmhurst Rd.

The Gleam is offered at $37,500. Other Bilevel, ranch and raised ranch models are offered from $31,900.

The model homes, on Golf Rd. (Rte. 58), 1/2 mile west of Elmhurst Rd. (Rte. 83), are open weekdays from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., and weekends from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m., or any time by appointment.

Short Money May Change Home Plans

Many American homeowners, whether on the buying or selling side of the market, are going to have to change some of their plans this summer due to the growing scarcity of mortgage money, the United States Savings and Loan League forecast today.

In its May issue of the monthly Trends Report, the nationwide savings and loan trade organization reported that while home builders have already felt the impact of tight mortgage money, mid-summer will see its first effect on the home-buying and home-selling public.

"The home owner will learn that the sale of the home from which he is moving has been slower than anticipated because the prospective buyer has to muster a bigger downpayment," the publication stated. "The family on the move will also find that at the other end of the line, the carpeting and furniture replacements for their new home may have to be delayed. The money intended for these purchases will be used for a bigger downpayment on the home into which they are moving."

THE PUBLICATION reported that on existing homes, downpayments in 1965 averaged about 28 per cent of sales price. It said that this is the kind of schedule that the American family had become accustomed to over the past several years.

"An ample flow of funds into financial institutions specializing in home mortgage lending made such downpayments part of the planning of the highly mobile American," it said.

"This summer mortage terms will be tougher as lenders, short of loanable funds, ration their resources."

Blue Exciting In Furnishings

The new color in upholstered furniture fabric is blue.

Manfred Steinfeld, chief executive officer of Duo-Bed Corporation, says that "blue in every shade and hue" will be seen on upholstered furniture and dual-sleep furniture pieces next season.

"Blue is one color that pleases nearly 80 per cent of all Americans," Steinfeld pointed out. "Furniture and bedding makers have discovered that there isn't any psychological adjustment problems in introducing blue fabrics."

He noted that light blue fits into the pastel popularity trend while royal, cobalt and midnight blues "are marking the trend back to the solid, strong colors of the past."

THE OLIVE tones, along with gold, completely dominate the home furnishings scene today. Olive is found in fabrics on contemporary, traditional and even Early American lines.

He expects olive to continue in popularity, followed by gold and then beige. But the new exciting color to look for, he predicted, is blue.

Ten years ago bold vibrant colors were in demand — and very few consumers wanted pastels in their upholstery fabrics. Beige and off-whites also were popular a decade ago.

Early in the 1960s, Steinfeld said, there was a new interest in pastels and emphasis was based on new color combinations — such as olive and gold — as the "basic beiges" began to fade from the scene.

The executive, who also heads two other furniture firms, said that the home furnishings industry has done more for the acceptance of color than any other industry.

"There are not two colors in the spectrum that cannot be made to go together and it is the home furnishings industry," he pointed out, "which created this acceptance."

He also paid tribute to the homemaker for her willingness "to be bold, and to experiment, in decorating her home."

Countertops Desired

More countertop space is the kitchen improvement most sought by homeowners, says the Tile Council of America. The trade association of the nation's ceramic tile manufacturers says that even an extra foot of countertop goes a long way toward alleviating the problem of too - little working space.

Longer-Lasting Fluorescent Lamps

Fluorescent lamps that last longer and give better light owe their improved performance in large part to a space-age version of Grandma's gas broiler.

Recently adopted by the electric lamp manufacturing industry is a high-speed automated "lehr" that heat - processes flourescent tubing in two-to eight-foot lengths at speeds of more than 4,000 tubes an hour.

Scientifically controlled radiant-cup burners in the roof of the lehr "broil" the slim tubes evenly as the long glass cylinders are conveyed through the curing zone on rollers.

The radiant-warmth treatment does three jobs at once, engineers of the Selas Corporation of America explain. It dries and cures the fluorescent coating inside the glass tubes, it anneals the glass to make it tough, and it straightens any tubes that need it.

AIR IS forced through the tubes as they roll through the "broiler." This speeds the burning and removal of fumes given off by the still-wet fluorescent lining.

Normally each tube would tend to cool at the end, where the air comes in, and overheat along the rest of its length as the fumes inside catch fire. In the Selas process, heart from the radiant burners overhead is precisely patterned in such a way that it automatically compensates for these hot and cold spots, and each tube is heated uniformly.

Hardboard Resists Weather

Exterior hardboard panels framed with 2 by 4 wood posts or beams make a tough, weather-resistant privacy fence for the patio or backyard.

The panels are engineered to withstand hard abuse, and will not crack or splinter. For added attractiveness, paint the panels in contrasting colors and set potted plants along the wood frame.

Textured Walls Add To Decor

There's nothing so flat as a flat wall. But take texture, add it to a wall, and you've literally added a new dimension.

Color is one way to give a wall character. The use of accessories is another. But the modern — and permanent — way to invest a wall with dramatic interest is by giving it depth.

It is a simple matter to add texture to a wall. V-grooved and striated hardboard paneling, both vertical and horizontal, are two popular ways of doing this.

Among the newest trends in this direction are walls with burlap, wicker, basket weave and louver patterns.

DOCTOR SAYS

Snow blindness

W. G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Q — Is there such a thing as snowblindness? Is it serious?

A — Exposure of the retina to the rays of the sun reflected by snow will cause a sunspot (blind spot) due to exhaustion of certain chemicals in the retina. The same effect is produced by exposure to the direct rays of the sun as in watching an eclipse, exposure to the light of an electric arc welder or exposure to an ultraviolet lamp of the ozone-emitting type.

A certain amount of conjunctivitis (pink eye) is usually associated with this condition. The severity of the injury depends on the duration of the exposure and its intensity. The latter depends on the amount of atmosphere through which the sun's rays travel — more severe if you are at a high altitude or when the sun is directly overhead. Thus the blind spot may clear up in a few minutes or it may be permanent.

Q — Do bleeding piles ever turn into cancer? Why would they suddenly stop bleeding after bleeding off and on for eight years?

A — Both cancer near the outlet of the bowel and piles may be associated with blood in the stools, but piles do not predispose to cancer or vice versa. If piles that have been bleeding for a long time stop bleeding it may be because clots inside the hemorrhoids have turned to scar tissue or because you are having softer stools than formerly.

Q — An X-ray of my upper bowel shows polyps. Is there any way to get rid of them without an operation?

A — If your polyps are believed to be cancerous, or precancerous, they should be removed without delay. Most polyps in the digestive tract are benign and require no treatment unless they become so large as to obstruct the passage of the digesting food. There is no other way to get rid of them, however, than by surgical removal.

Northbrook Wins 7-1

Arlington 9 Suffers 1st League Loss

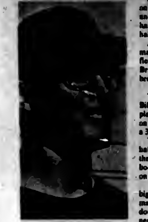
BY BOB CASTERLINE

Northbrook's American Legion team spanked Arlington Heights 7-1 last night at Northbrook to snap the losers' eight-game league winning streak.

The loss didn't cost the Blue Sox their first-place standing in the league, though, as both Northbrook and Mt. Prospect are tied for second with 6-1 cards, putting them both one game back of the leaders.

LAST NIGHT'S defeat puts the pressure on the Arlington nine tonight, though, as they face Glenview at Glenbrook South High School.

A loss to Glenview would severely crimp the defending league and state champs' hopes for a title-repeat.



Jerry Donahue, last night's losing pitcher against Northbrook, will get a second chance against the same team when they meet at 6 p.m. Friday at Recreation Park.

Coach Lloyd Meyer will go with John (Honey Bear) Friedl in an attempt to avoid such a situation. Friedl was one of three hurlers Meyer employed last night in vain, but Friedl worked to only five batters.

JERRY DONAHUE started on the mound for the Big Blue, and had a 1-1 thriller on his hands until the Northbrook half of the fourth.

After two outs a bunt put a man on first, and then a right-field fly ball got away from Brad Somers, allowing a tie-breaking tally.

THE BATTER, shortstop Bill Zarit, went to third on the play and scored seconds later on a single to give Northbrook a 3-1 lead.

The Brookers fattened that bulge to 5-1 in the fifth on three hits and an error, and boosted it to 7-1 in the sixth on four hits, including a triple.

The rally might have been bigger had not a Mark Newman-Tom LaStarge-Doug Fink double play wiped out two runners.

ARLINGTON'S lone run scored in the second inning and gave the Big Blue a temporary 1-0 lead.

A single by Jim Jorgenson started the threat, and Doug Fink was safe on an error. On the play, though, Jorgenson was nipped trying to score, and Fink went to third. LeStarge then hit him home.

Arlington wasn't much of a threat at the plate after that, with only one batter reaching second base. That was Newman, who made it to second in the fifth when the Northbrook third baseman erred on a throw over the first baseman's head after fielding Newman's grounder.

THE LOSS was pinned on Donahue, who gave up four runs on five hits and two walks while fanning one.

Friedl was responsible for one run and two hits with no walks and no whiffs. He gave way to Steve Allen in the sixth, who gave up two runs, four hits and no walks. He fanned none.

Northbrook's winning pitcher, Frank Battaglia, allowed the lone run and five hits while walking one and striking out eight in seven innings.

THE ARLINGTON crew will get its second crack at Northbrook Friday night when the Brookers invade Recreation Park. Game time is 6 p.m.

Coach Lloyd Meyer has indicated that Donahue will get the call again Friday, while Coach Art Kunde of Northbrook is undecided between Battaglia, Paul Brubaker, and Scot Krause.

MEYER, WHO is usually a pepper-pot anyway, was livid after the game, spoke disgustedly of several costly mistakes his team made. Still, he refused to alibi for the loss, and indicated his team was emotionally ready for the game — not overly excited or tense.

"It was just another game," he said. "It could have gone either way — if we had gotten the jump on them, it might have been entirely different. I don't believe they're better than us. If I wasn't scheduled for tomorrow night, I'd be looking forward to Friday's game already," he said.

Sox Plan 3 Special Events

A busy Fourth of July weekend is on tap for Chicago White Sox fans when the Boston Red Sox come to town for a four-game series.

THE WHITE SOX management has planned three special events for the weekend beginning with Teen Night Friday. Pre-game dance contests will be held to the music of Chicago dance combos and leading radio disc jockeys will be on hand for an autographing party. Teen night festivities will begin a half hour before game time at 8 p.m. Ticket prices will be reduced for the teenagers.

SATURDAY WILL be family night at White Sox Park when children 16-years-old and under will be admitted free if accompanied by a parent. Game time is 6 p.m. A big fireworks show will take place after the game.

Sunday has been set aside as White Owl Night, as White Owl Cigar dealers from the Chicago area will be the guests of the White Sox. As a special feature, the White Owl Bell Rocket Belt pilot will blast off from left field and soar high above the grandstand between games of the double-header.

Infielder Paul Parish is all smiles thinking about the hits he hopes to get tonight for the Arlington Heights Legion team against Glenview at Glenbrook South High School, Euclid and Pfingsten, in Glenview.

Arlington Net Star Advances

Bill Von Boeckmann, Arlington Heights' number-one junior tennis player, worked his way into another tournament finals yesterday, winning quarter - final and semifinal matches in the Chicago Tennis Center Tourney at River Forest Tennis Club.

By qualifying for this morning's finals match against Al Dunton of River Forest, he also qualified for the National Boys' Tourney at Kalamazoo, Mich., July 31-Aug. 5.

In yesterday's 16 and under quarter-finals he beat Jim Stocker of Hinsdale 6-4, 4-6, 6-3. His semifinals victim was Mike Medura of Evanston who fell 7-5, 2-6, 6-4.

En route to the finals, Dunton subdued Winnetka's Brian Hewitt in the semis.

Tile Team Still Atop Golf Loop

Coloramic Tile continued to dominate the Northwest Suburban Y.M.C.A. Twilight Golf League last week, expanding its lead to 12 points over an otherwise tightly bunched field.

Only three points separate the second through seventh place teams, with Novak and Parker claiming the runner-up spot with 22 1/2 points.

Ed Nixon carded a 38 in last week's matches, to take low gross honors from Bob Rohrback, Max Pemoller and Dick Dixon who fired 39's. Low net laurels went to Bob Rohrback with a 30. John Bowder, Wes Stock, and Bob Frink all netted 31's.

Only five birdies were received in last week's action. Pemoller, Bowder, Wally McCoy, Mike Swartz, and Dick Tank got those.

Boys' Baseball Report:

Two No-Hitters Highlight Action In Boys' Loop

Bob Pishe threw his second no-hitter of the season for the Red Sox in the American Division, beating the Yankees 3-0.

En route to his no-hitter, he struck out 11 and walked seven. The win boosted his team into first place in the division with a 3-1 record, and dropped the Yankees to a 1-2 mark.

JIM MERKEL led the winners' five-hit offensive with three safeties in as many trips plateward. The losing pitcher was Terry Ormsbee, who fanned five and walked four.

HE STRUCK out eight and walked none and got seven-hit support from his teammates.

Chip Graham was the losing pitcher, and Gary Schoeneck rapped the game's only extra-base blow — a double.

The Mustangs nipped the Warriors 6-5 in the Senior Division, with Brad Baumgarner getting the win and Ron Doles suffering the loss.

The Cougars wrapped up their sixth win against one loss in the Varsity II Division last night, trimming the Phillies 10-7.

Wolamski and Paul Raeder both doubled for the Cougars and George Purtha, Mike Bari, and Churck Herschline all doubled for the Phillies.

RANDY HALL pitched the Vikings to a 10-4 Varsity II win over the Bears last night despite the batting of the Bears' Tom Harris. Harris homered and went three-for-three for the losers.

The Marlins topped the Barons 7-5 last night in their South White Intermediate clash. John Lynch got the win and Paul Kocie absorbed the loss.

MARK DICK tripled and doubled for the winners and Bruce Hanson, Jim McGrath, Tom Mueller, and Tom Cole all doubled.

The losers' attack was paced by doubles by Doyle and Kenning.

Other Intermediate Division scores last night were:

TOM TEUCHERT was the winner, striking out eight and walking one while John Yeazel lost but fanned 14 and walked only four.

Other junior division scores:

NORTH WHITE: Bisons 5, Owls 1; North Blue: Bendix 11, Sox 5; Atoms 12, Stags 4; North White: (Monday) Gophers 9, Wolves 4.

Peters Is Leader In Golf Loop

Peters and Co. turned its first-place showdown match with Haire Funeral Home into a romp last week in the Old Orchard Scratch League golf race.

PACED BY Len Arnold's 36, Peters bombed the second-place squad 7-1 to open its league lead to 3 1/2 points. Allan Peters collected Haire's only win in the match.

Bruno Waara sparked third-place Arlington Realty to a 5-3 win over Graft Builders by carding an even-par 35. The showdown between Mike Spinello and Andy Toth was postponed when Toth was unable to play. Spinello came home with a 36 and a victory by default.

SKOKIE VALLEY Drywall cooled down L-Nor Cleaners 6 1/2 - 1 1/2 behind a nine-hole 36 by substitute Dave Borgardt. Steve Quiff, another substitute, got the Cleaners' only win with a 36.

Joe Conley's 37 prevented a whitewash for Baird and Warner, which fell 6-1 to Busse Flowers.

Lister, Scherer Share Honors In Golf League

Jim Lister and Ron Scherer took the individual honors last night in the Twilight Golf League's Tuesday Night Division.

Lister carded a 43-14-29 score for low net honors, while Scherer posted a 36 for low gross laurels.

In team action, Thunderbird Bowl beat Kruse's Tavern 6-4; Licht's Paint beat Busse - Biermann Hardware 8 1/2-1 1/2; Mount Prospect Electric Construction trimmed Keefer's Pharmacy 7-3; Wille Lumber and Fuel white-washed Moler Barber Shop 10-0; Kersting's Garden Center beat Illinois Range 5 1/2-4 1/2; and Kirchhoff Insurance tied Carter Music 5-5.

Here Are Boating Tips For July Fourth Sailors

Millions of Americans are looking forward to a three-day weekend next week as the nation celebrates the 4th of July.

Many of the persons will build their holidays around the water and boats of all shapes and sizes. To insure a safe holiday, the Red Cross offers these 10 safety reminders:

1. EQUIP your boat with life jackets for every passenger, anchor, oars, boat hook, extra line, fire extinguisher, tool kit, and first aid kit. Running lights are a must for night boating.

2. Check the U.S. Weather Bureau forecasts before taking your boat on open water. Stay in port when squalls are predicted.

3. Don't overpower your boat. The dealer can tell you the safe size of motor for your craft.

4. BEFORE leaving shore, tell someone where you're going, and then stick with your cruise plan.

5. Know how to swim.

6. Don't overload your boat. Rowboats and small outboard motor boats aren't designed for more than four passengers.

7. Insist that children and non-swimmers wear life jackets.

8. OPERATE your boat according to the nautical rules of the road. Enroll in a Coast Guard Auxiliary or U. S. Power Squadron boating course.

9. Don't smoke while refueling.

10. IF YOUR BOAT capsizes or becomes swamped and there are other boats nearby to help you, stay with your craft until help arrives. It will make you easier to find, and most boats will float, even when filled with water. If you must swim to safety because of extreme cold or because you're in a dangerous area, use live-saving gear, such as life jackets or boat cushions to help you.

Prospecting

WITH DALE HOFMANN

There has always been a sizeable group of boys' baseball critics who have maintained that our kids are being over-organized. They insist that the nation's youth is being pushed into competition, and that you can't find a game in a vacant lot anymore where someone hasn't come along to slap uniforms on the kids, erect stands around the field, and invite parents to cheer their siblings into a nervous breakdown.

Try to tell that to the baseball players at Wheeling High School.

With a couple of exceptions, the Wheeling High kids have no where to play ball this summer. Only two members of last spring's Wildcat varsity have qualified for organized area teams.

THE PROBLEM started for many of the Cats' ball players this year because their school got too big. Until this summer Arlington Heights and Mt. Prospect residents who attended Wheeling could play on their home town American Legion teams.

But that came to a shuddering halt because of a rule on the American Legion books which limits the number of schools a Legion team can draw from. Under that rule, no team can take players from two or more schools whose combined sophomore, junior, and senior classes total more than 3,000 students.

The local players were in the clear up until now, because Wheeling had no senior class. Now it does, and Wheeling plus Prospect High School or Wheeling plus Arlington High School easily totals over 3,00 enrollment.

Since Wheeling has no American Legion post of its own, the Wildcat athletes have nowhere to go.

The two exceptions to the rule are Arlington's Mark Newmann, and Prospect's Tom Manderscheid. They get privileged status because they played with their respective teams last year.

NOT SO PRIVILEGED are Skip Grant, Jon Hittman, and Dan DeVito to name a few. The Prospectors were counting on Grant to plug some of the holes in their pitching staff, while DeVito, an all-conference pick, and Hittman could have added punch to the Arlington attack.

American Legion league president Bob Engberg is as unhappy as anyone about these youngsters' exile, but there isn't much he can do about it. Rules are rules even if they are rather outdated ones, and in the words of Engberg, the Wheeling players "are just kind of stuck."

They have been "kind of stuck" everywhere they have tried to go this year. At one time Wheeling was a power to be reckoned with in the local Colt League which took in boys up to 16. But that league folded.

Erected in its place was the Northwest Suburban Baseball Conference which might have solved the problem. The conference is labeled a midteen league which provides a home for players up to 18 years old. It is the haven, for instance, for Forest View's varsity ball players who are also pretty much unincorporated.

BUT THE LEAGUE filled up without Wheeling, which was having its problems finding a coach anyway. Wheeling High School Coach Steve Chernicky didn't want the job, understandably enough, because summer is about the only time he gets time to see his family with anything approaching regularity.

The Wheeling fans are now kind of half-hoping that they can get a summer high school team going. Under this arrangement the team members can play together, using high school equipment and paying summer school tuition.

High School leagues are operating with some success in suburban schools like Evanston and New Trier. But there are plenty of problems connected with this arrangement, not the least of which is financial.

Forest View tried it last year, but had to drop it because the team was not supporting itself and the school district was not inclined to pick up the tab.

IN ANY EVENT, it's far too late to start a summer high school team this year. The Wheeling High School players are just going to have to do without organized baseball this summer, and they are a little too old and a little too proficient for vacant lots.

A Busy Weekend For Forest View Hams

BY MAXINE TYMA

WA9SKH had scored another point.

Ontario, Canada, Kansas, Minnesota, Texas, New York and North Dakota scored points for the students.

The Forest View High School Amateur Radio Club members were on a field day and the states they reached represented points for the club.

The group was participating in an international field day for "ham" radio operators. They contacted "hams" from various parts of the country who were doing the same project.

The week end was hot and sticky but the teens were too busy to notice. They were camped in a field on Algonquin Rd. five miles west of Route 53. Friday, Saturday and Sunday they lived in tents, did their own cooking and operated the "rigs" all night.

Their power came from a gas generator. Saturday night some of the boys used the power for a portable television set and tape recorder in their tent.

"THE PURPOSE of the field day is to prove that in case of a national emergency this may be an effective way of communication," said Peter Titre of 312 S. Patton. Titre, a teacher at Forest View High School, is the club sponsor.

"This is the second year our club has participated in a field day and I'm really proud of the boys," Titre said.

For some of the students the "ham" hobby is a preparation for career training. Denny Barfuss of Rolling Meadows was graduated from Forest View this month and plans to attend South State University in Menominee Falls, Wisc. and major in electrical engineering. Mike Langston of Elk Grove Village, another Forest View graduate, will be attending Rose Poly Technical Institute in Terre Haute, Ind., and will major in electrical engineering.

The students who are in high school say they plan to continue in the field.

"Most of the "hams" that we contact are really friendly. They would give you the shirt off their back," said Barfuss.

"In some ways we are doing a public service by being prepared and by helping people contact each other," said Ellesson.

More than 15 boys were camped in the field.

"We are enthusiastic about this project. If we weren't really serious we wouldn't be here," was the general comment.

The spirit of cooperation and the maturity of the teens was obvious to any visitor. Several parents came to the camp to visit and check the progress.

Titre brought the family camp trailer and a kitchen and cool resting place was available.

"Some of the boys don't have clubs at their school so we let them join us," Titre said.

"CQ,CQ" (calling any station) and the blip, blip of the radio waves were constant sounds for the three days.

The group was most successful in contacting the eastern states but California, Kentucky and Nebraska came in also.

The hams and their sponsor are serious about the project. The days were still hot. The boys were still teens. But the group on the hill didn't seem to notice.

Arizona was too important.

School sponsor Peter J. Titre of 312 S. Patton, Arlington Heights (left) explains the gas generator system to a visiting parent Eric Ellesson of 1204 Birch Dr., Mount Prospect.

Several parents who share the enthusiasm for the ham radio field day visited the camp. Mr. and Mrs. William Werter of 510 S. Crestwood, Mount Prospect listen while their son Bill makes a contact. Bill will be a senior at Forest View in the fall.

Jon Wennerberg of Elk Grove Village (left) and Tyler Giles of Des Plaines are two participants in the Forest View Club who are not regular members but share the activities. Jon was graduated from Forest View, attends Wright Junior College and is an honorary member of the club. Tyler attends Maine Township High School West and joined the group for field day.

Start Building Friday

Construction will begin Friday in Northbrook for the future home of the Daniel Woodhead Co., Chicago-based manufacturer of the Safety Yellow line of electrical specialties.

The new plant will be located in Northbrook-Edens Industrial Park at Huehl and Frontage Rds. Completion is set for spring, timed for opening to coincide with the company's 45th anniversary.

GROUND will be broken by Daniel Woodhead Jr., chairman of the board.

The company now has offices at 15 N. Jefferson, Chicago, with its factory at 5539 Ravenswood, Chicago.

James A. Edmonds, company president, said the new plant will make it possible for Woodhead to house its manufacturing, sales and executive facilities under one roof.

Construction will begin Friday in the Northbrook-Edens Industrial Park for the new home of the Daniel Woodhead Co. of Chicago.

Teen Day

A New Status Symbol?

By Lee Strobel

"A motorcycle in a suburban garage is getting to be a status symbol!" claims a leading suburban motorcycle dealer.

Throughout the nation, the motorcycle craze has grown and grown, mainly with teenagers but also with adults, and Arlington Heights hasn't failed to keep pace.

Over 170 Arlington Heights residents are now the owners of these cycles, according to Arlington Police Lt. Maurice English. These include a variety of people, many teenagers and adults interested in obtaining low cost transportation.

LOCAL motorcycle dealers can testify to the fact that more and more teens are buying cycles.

The sales manager for Zuzuki Motorcycles of Palatine says, "Our sales have been exceptionally good lately," and adds that most of the cycles he sells go to youths from 16-20 years of age.

Cycling, he predicts, will be a "new way of life."

This brings about the question, just how safe are motorcycles?

Sixteen motorcycle accidents have occured in the village limits since Apr. 29, 1964, according to Lt. English.

"Most cyclists are pretty careful," he said, "mainly because they have a lack of protection that a car might have."

In short, cyclists are careful because they are aware that if they ever tangled with an automobile, they would get the worst of it.

NEW DANGERS confront all cyclists which aren't present in automobile driving. For instance, if an auto struck a good-sized stone at 35 m.p.h., he might have a blow-out and swerve a little. But if a motorcycle struck it at that speed, he would probably take a serious spill.

A good percentage of the 16 traffic accidents mentioned before occured between automobiles and motorcycles. Often, a cycle will slide onto its side after striking something, and both the machine and its driver will sprawl into or under an automobile.

There is another difference between cars and cycles.

"Motorcycles aren't as safe as some other forms of transportation," English commented, "so cyclists have to be 'educated' as to what dangers are there. But due to the increasing number of cyclists, now automobile drivers also must be 'educated' to the motorcycle dangers."

BUT despite these problems, the motorcycle fad plunges on. But just how long will it continue?

Police estimate that it will die out in a few years, with people using them but without the overwhelming numbers predicted now.

But motorcycle dealers claim that this is the wave of the future, and someday the streets will be filled with cycles and few automobiles.

Or at least they hope.

QUICK QUIZ

Q—Who was the last veteran of the American Revolution to become president?

Fact

Buccaneers were not the same as pirates. They had more in common with the so-called privateers. Buccaneers were English, French and Dutch sea adventurers who haunted the Caribbean and the Pacific seaboards of South America during the second-half of the 17th century. They were hostile to the Spanish, who then regarded the seas as their monopoly. The word is derived from the French boucan, a grill for smoking dried meat, for use in ships at sea.

Petroleum Jelly Will Ease Sunburn Pain

Children, reluctant to come out of the pool or cover up, often suffer uncomfortable sunburns. Ease their pain and promote healing by using a petroleum jelly. Apply to their lips to prevent splitting and peeling from overexposure during their playtime in the sun. (Johnson & Johnson)

Ceramic Tiles Are Durable But Eventually Need Repair

While it is true that ceramic tiles will last just about as long as the house in which they are installed, nevertheless there will be times when minor repairs will be necessary.

A tile can be cracked or broken accidentally when bumped with a hard object. Occasionally one or more tiles may become loose. Often it becomes necessary to open a wall to get at plumbing or wiring, or to remove tiles to install fixtures.

Tiles may become loose due to poor installation. The foundation settling may cause them to get loose, or a bump, or moisture in the wall.

Replacing the tiles is not the chore it might seem. There was a time when ceramic tiles were installed with mortar made of Portland cement. Replacement called for the same process.

Ceramic tiles are easy to install.

In recent years there have been developed adhesives strong enough to hold ceramic tiles, making them as easy to install as tiles made of plastic or metal.

If you are simply replacing loose tiles, make certain that all of the old cement has been scraped from the back of tile and that the edges are clean. Smear a generous amount of adhesive on the back of the tile and press firmly into place. If the tile has a tendency to slip and not line up with adjoining tiles, set small wood wedges in the cracks around it.

Ready Mixes Available

Wait until the adhesive is dry before filling the open joints with grouting. Again it is not necessary to mix mortar for this job. Ready-mixed grouting materials are available. Rub the grout into the open joints with your fingers and wipe off the excess from the tile surface with a damp sponge. If you have a number of tiles to take care of, spread the grouting with a small brush, then wipe away the excess.

Removing tiles because they are damaged or having to open the wall is what frightens most homeowners. They have visions of whole walls crumbling.

Start by scraping away the grout around the tile you are using. Use a putty knife. Next you will have to break the tile. A hammer and cold chisel will be needed. Start tapping at the corners since there is generally less mortar or adhesive in the corners and the tile will break easily.

After the corners are taken care of you can tap out the rest with chisel and hammer, using the chisel to pry off the rest of the material. Surrounding tiles can be pried out easily.

Spares Needed

Replacement tiles are available at most large dealers. Get a few more than you need. If you have to cut a tile you will have replacements on hand in case of error.

Use a glass cutter to cut ceramic tile. Score the tile with the cutter as you would a piece of glass, running the cutter along the line at which it will be broken. Place a straight edge below this point. A thick nail will do. Then snap down both sides of the tile. Some people step on both sides with their feet to break the tile. If you scored the tile deep and straight, it will be a clean break.

If you must cut a curve to place a tile around a pipe for example, score the outline with the glass cutter. Then score a number of lines in the waste portion. With a pair of pliers, chew away the waste. Smooth the edge with a file.

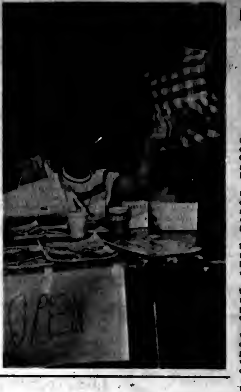
Heat Wave, Business Booms

Comics, soft drinks, marbles and an assortment of "treasures" are the beginning of a big business operation for John Griffith, 11. John and his brother, Bob, 9, set up the stand in front of their home at 8 W. Euclid.

Bob resigned from the business Friday but John says he will continue the stand. Peggy Thelander, 12, of 14 W. Euclid, is one of the neighborhood customers that Bob serves. He says the mailman stops every day to buy a cool drink but the neighbors are his best customers.

"I'm saving my money for a rainy day," says Bob. Profits so far are 70 cents.



Teens and Parents Jam Hearing on Cellar

A crowd of more than 125 teen-agers and parents turned out Monday night to support Cellar owner Paul Sampson at a hearing held by the Arlington Heights Youth Commission.

The hearing was held prior to a meeting today between the commission and Village Manager L. A. Hanson to discuss whether the Cellar should be reissued a license.

No final decision was given by the commission. But after the three-hour meeting, everybody seemed to agree that it was a productive session.

Commission President Anthony Bohorfoush started the meeting by saying it was not the purpose of the commission to close the Cellar.

"We did not close it, nor are we here to see that it stays closed. We are here to investigate ways in which problems with which we are faced may be coped with."

Bruno Waara, a member of the commission and principal of Arlington High School, stated what, in the opinion of the commission, were the main objections to the Cellar's operation.

WAARA SAID there have been 18 reported complaints against the teen night spot since its opening in 1965. He said each complaint involved the under-age use of alcohol.

A second objection is that the age spread among the teens is too great, Waara said.

"This has a deleterious effect on the younger people," he said. "Responsible observers have commented on the growing lack of respect and the accelerated social relationships between boys and girls in the lower age levels."

He said the Cellar attracts "undesireables" from a wide area.

Waara also commented on the police chaperones.

"Something must basically be wrong with any activity that requires seven off-duty officers to maintain order," he said.

During the winter, Waare complained, the Cellar cuts down the attendance at and participation in high school activities.

Finally, he said, objections have been made as to the quality of music and the lyrics of some songs that are sung there.

Regarding the 18 complaints, Sampson answered that this was trivial in relation to the number of teens attending.

"I am not proud of one of these complaints, but when you consider that we handle an average of more then a thousand young people over a weekend, 18 complaints for a year and a half is not that significant."

The court room of the Municipal Building was filled to capacity with teen-agers and their parents supporting Paul Sampson in his bid to regain a license for the Cellar. More than 125 persons were present at the Youth Commission hearing.

SAMPSON said that teenage drinking is a hard thing to curb.

"We must face up to the fact that this is going on and it is hard to prevent the kids from doing it no matter where they are. But when a teenager comes to the Cellar and we find he has been drinking, we are in a position to do something about it. If we can't help them by talking to him, we can take away his privilege to attend.

Sampson said he had never felt that the age spread was a serious detriment.

"When the kids are within the confines of the Cellar, there is a great understanding for one another. And if there is any growing lack of respect, I have never personally seen it."

In answer to the objection that the place attracted "undesireables," Sampson commented:

"I don't believe it right to turn any kid away. I believe, rather, it is my duty to sit down and talk with them and try to help them. If no progress is made, then we can take steps to keep them out."

Sampson said he never tried to conflict with school functions, but added that he felt many teens need to be away from school after school hours.

ALSO, school spirit may be improved if a more winning team could be produced," he said.

Finally, Sampson commented on the quality of music and lyrics.

"All of us do not have to agree that rock and roll music is their cup of tea, but it is accepted generally as a valid form of music and is popular with teens. The groups I employ are of a very high quality."

Sampson said that all the lyrics were examined by him before they are performed at the Cellar, and if any are in any way objectionable, they are modified.

A number of comments were then accepted from the audience.

John Carroll, a teen who admitted, "I don't even go to the Cellar much," said he felt Sampson should be allowed to continue in business. He also commented on the police situation to Waara.

"They have policemen at basketball games, too. Do you think we should eliminate them?"

CARL BLOOM, a parent, pointed out that the Cellar was the only place in the village where teens who did not own cars could go.

James Kauffman said when he moved to Arlington Heights, the only objection he had to the village was that there was nothing here for teens to do.

"The Cellar has taken care of that," he said. "The drinking problem is up to the parents to solve. It isn't Paul's fault."

After all arguments were heard, Sampson's attorney, Jules Laser, suggested to the commission that, should the recommendation be made that the license be re-issued and Hanson accepts the recommendation, a yearly license should be granted.

"Paul pays $50 a night for a license, which has to be applied for on a weekly basis. This averages $5,100 a year for licenses," Laser said.

He presented the village ordinance which pertains to places similar to the Cellar and said the yearly license charge for these places of public amusement is $100.

LASER also said he felt it would be helpful if Sampson met regularly with the commission.

Bohorfoush said it might be helpful, if Sampson were made a permanent member of the commission.

Sampson said he would be "extremely pleased" with such an arrangement.

The commission did not indicate what its recommendation would be to Hanson, but said that, hopefully, a decision would be made within the next few days.

The Youth Commission was to meet with Hanson in his office at 8 a.m. Tuesday.

Paul Sampson speaks to Youth Commission members at the hearing. Commission President Anthony Bohorfoush sits in the foreground. Both Sampson and commission members indicated that the session was "very productive" in helping to solve the problems faced by the Cellar.

100th Birthday

Palatine to Celebrate

A two day Centennial Day - Independence Day celebration will blend the fun of a birthday with the excitement of an old fashioned Fourth of July in the Village of Palatine.

The village Jaycees are sponsoring the July 3-4 festivities. There will be dances, parades, band concerts, fireworks and political speeches, not to mention an art fair, a special performance by the local theatre group and the Miss Palatine Pageant, part of the Miss America preliminaries.

The village has received letters of congratulations from President Lyndon B. Johnson, Governor Otto Kerner, Senators Paul Douglas and Everett Dirksen and Congressman Donald Ramsfeld.

Sheriff Richard B. Ogilvie will be the main speaker of the July Fourth afternoon program. Other speakers will include Tom Kearns, Jaycee president; David Yeats, village president; and Howard Olsen, township supervisor.

THE PALATINE Northwest Hwy. Merchants' Assn., in conjunction with Day Publications, is sponsoring a treasure hunt prior and during Centennial Days. Grand prize is a two weeks vacation in the U.S. with all expenses paid for two. The winner, who will select his prize from several dozen trips, will be picked July 4th.

Northwest Hwy. Assn. is also featuring "Red Carpet Days" in which participating merchants on Northwest Hwy. are installing indoor-outdoor carpeting from entrances to sidewalks.

PALATINE, like many northwest suburbs, began first as a little town along the railroad tracks. When the Northwestern line reached the area in 1853 about four homes were erected. By 1855, the railroad had erected the first depot, and there the first public meetings were held.

The Village was not officially incorporated until March 19, 1866, when five trustees and a police magistrate were elected. By 1940 the village population was 2,222. But since it has been part of the rapid Northwest suburban growth. Today more than 20,000 live in Palatine.

THE CENTENNIAL activities will get under way Sunday, July 3, with the art fair from Noon to 5:00 P.M. Artists from the Chicagoland area will compete for cash prizes.

At 4:45 P.M. a popular teen combo will begin playing for an outdoor dance which will last until 6:30 P.M.

At 7:00 P.M. the Stage, Inc., Players (formerly Winston Little Theatre) will feature a special centennial performance highlighting acting styles -- past, present and future.

ON THE Fourth activities will begin at 11:30 P.M. with a parade through town. There will be floats and many marching bands. The theme of the Parade will be "Past is Prologue." Sheriff Ogilvie's speech will follow.

During the afternoon there will be childrens games and a water fight between members of the Palatine Fire Department. At 6:00 P.M. the Village Band will present a special one hour concert. The Miss Palatine Pageant will begin at 7:15 P.M.

The celebration will conclude with the traditional fireworks display.

One Day Only For Chest Check

Prospect Heights residents have only one day to receive free chest X-rays this summer. The Cook County mobile X-ray unit will be in the area on Tuesday, July 5.

The unit will be stationed at the Jewel Food Store, Route 83 and Camp McDonald Rd. from 1 p.m. to 8 p.m.

Volunteer X-ray chairman Mrs. Raymond J. Smith, 403 W. Olive, reminds Prospect Heights residents over 18-years-of-age that they can get a free X-ray.

In her capacity as X-ray chairman, Mrs. Smith is representing St. Alphonsus Women's Guild.

The summer X-ray program is a cooperative project of the Suburban Cook County Tuberculosis Sanitariam and the Tuberculosis Institute of Chicago and Cook County.

Dist. 25 Board Debates Survey

What were the strong points and weaknesses of the recent study of School Dist. 25 done by the Midwest Administration Center at the University of Chicago?

To find the answer the school board Monday met with its Citizens' Advisory Committee, which was appointed to meet with the researchers as the report was prepared.

Board President Harold Sortor expressed the consensus at the end of the two-and-a-half hour meeting: "You get an unsatisfied feeling from it -- but it can be a useful tool."

The major complaints of the committee were:

--The form of the study was predetermined and thus the committee members had little say in the approach of the researchers.

--Members received progress reports only shortly before their reactions to the reports were sought by researchers.

--The report was incomplete and sketchy in spots.

In defense of the report President Sortor pointed out that it cost only $3,700 and that a complete report, such as that sought by some committee members, would cost about $50,000.

Board member Theodore Seiler, defending the researchers' methods, said, "It might be well to point out that the Citizens Committee was to react to, not make the report."

"The statistics used are copied out of the district's financial reports. These are useless, because we have no bench mark, no standard, to compare them to," Beacham said.

"It was my belief this was to be a financial study, yet this is the weakest chapter in the report," he said.

Mrs. Charles Aldag of the American Assn. of University Women, a committee member, defended the report. She felt the researchers' methods and results were valuable to the district.

But Mrs. Edith Jolly of the Wilson PTA found discrepancies in the statistics used by the researchers in different parts of the report.

President Sortor concluded the discussion with the warning, "This report can be valuable, but we cannot use it as a bible."

The next meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p.m., July 5.

New President

Cooney, 41, resigned as vice-president of the Central National Bank of Chicago to take the post June 1. He is a former chairman of the Chicago Home Modernization Credit Group and has served on the Credit Bureau Reform Committee of the Illinois Bankers Assn. With his wife LaVon and son Jimmy, 12, he has lived in Elk Grove Village three years.

A Good Scout Honored

A Mount Prospect man has set the pace for the completed membership drive of the Northwest Suburban Council, Boy Scouts of America.

Len Lorenson, 903 S. School St., obtained the largest number of special memberships in the entire Northwest suburban area.

Lorenson was among 300 adult scouters active in the 1966 Sustaining Membership Enrollment Program of the council.

Lorenson's team worked in Park Ridge and Niles.

Enrollment Chairman Charles K. Esler, Barrington, presided at an appreciation dinner last week hosted by the Teletype Corp. of Skokie.

Esler said that the efforts of the volunteers would pay off in service to the 14,000 boys who are currently registered in Boy Scout programs in the Northwest council.

Bob Atcher, Mayor of Schaumburg and TV personality, was on the program, providing entertainment. Actor Christopher Cross, of New York City, served as master of ceremonies.

Esler announced that the sustaining membership drive has produced $40,000 of the $70,000 necessary to meet the demands and commitments of one of the fastest growing Boy Scout councils in the nation.

It's Going to Be Willow High School

Pick Name For 6th High School

"Willow High School, Rah, rah, rah."

That may be a cheer for Dist. 214 students who will attend the district's sixth high school.

Monday the board of education voted to name the school Willow High, but the only one who cheered was Board President Hal Armstrong because a name finally was selected.

Superintendent Harold Slichenmyer told the board that the Board of Trustees of Arlington Heights had agreed to have the street name of Thomas or Willow coincide with the high school name if either was selected. The street is called Thomas west of Rand Rd. and Willow east of Rand. The sixth school site is east of Rand on Willow.

In a recent student poll on a name for the new school John F. Kennedy drew the most votes.

"I WOULD suggest Kennedy on the basis of the poll but I will honor the request of the village of Rolling Meadows," said Dr. Frank Smith, chairman of the committee to name the school.

The district has purchased a site in Rolling Meadows and a request had been made to name that school for the late President.

Smith made a motion for Herbert Clark Hoover High School. Smith and Richard Bachhaber voted yes, Hal Armstrong and Earl Thompson voted no and Arthur Aronson passed. The motion failed.

"We have a Willow Rd. and we have other schools named for their geographical locations. I think we should do the same here and Willow is a nice sounding name," said Thompson, who made the motioafor Willow High School.

THOMPSON, Armstrong and Aronson voted yes. Dr. Smith changed his vote from no to yes after the roll was called and the motion passed. Board members Mrs. Leah Cummins and William Griffith were absent.

The board has been trying for several weeks to select a name. Winston Spencer Churchill and Herbert Hoover failed to be approved at previous meetings.

When Extra Pounds Sneak Up on You

BY JERILYN WATSON

The voice at the other end of the line sounded embarrassed, but the distress came through, too.

"I can't figure it out," said the caller. "I haven't been eating any more than I ever do.

"But this morning, my scales said I gained five pounds. I couldn't believe it, so I went next door to Mary's house and weighed myself there," she said.

"The total said a little less than mine, but it still showed five pounds more than I used to weigh." Then she stopped talking, waiting for us to come up with a quick solution.

"HOW OLD are you?" we inquired.

Surprised, she hesitated a second before replying: "27."

"Do you have any children?" we asked.

Yes, she said, she had two youngsters, aged 5 and 3.

"Do they keep you as busy as they did when they were smaller?"

She thought about it for a moment, then replied that she wasn't on the run as much as she was a year or so ago.

IT SEEMED to us that the caller was experiencing a common occurence, but she obviously felt alone in dumpy misery.

A doctor whom we consulted for advice said many women who never have had a weight problem seem to gain after age 25 if they continue to follow their previous eating habits.

"At a certain age, which varies from person to person, the caloric intake which previously maintained weight can become enough to put on weight," the doctor said. "Many women, without realizing it, decrease their activity once their children are out of the full-time-care stage."

THE DOCTOR'S opinion sounded grim, we thought. What does a woman do when she reaches the less active stage? Diet for the rest of her life?

"No, she doesn't diet forever," replied the doctor, a trifle impatient. "She can diet carefully to lose the pounds she has gained, and after that, she can be careful not to put them back on."

The physican finished on a whimsical note.

All this still sounded pretty grim to us. Imagine, never eating a hot fudge sundae without feeling guilty...

BACK ON the phone with the distressed mother, we imparted the doctor's wisdom. She took it much better than we did.

"Well, I suppose it's just another indication that good looks don't come easy to a lot of women," she said. "I look terrible if I don't take care of my hair, too. It's a good deal of bother, but necessary.

"Well," she said, with resignation. "What do I do now? Start on grapefruit and cottage cheese and eggs?" she asked.

WITHOUT waiting for a reply, she supplied herself with a sensible answer. She thought maybe she's go to her doctor for a checkup, which she hadn't done for a while, and see what suggestions he could make about a diet suitable for her.

"I'll let you know how this turns out," she said.

That was five weeks ago.

Yesterday, I met the caller at a local dress shop. She looked smashing.

"IT TOOK me all this time to lose the weight," she said. "My doctor said if I lost over an extended period, I wouldn't be likely to gain it back on one weekend's eating binge."

"I didn't mind the diet, either," she continued.

"All I did was to stop eating between meals and give up desserts completely. I never realized how much I was snitching," she said.

"I haven't felt this energetic in years," the woman said, a big smile on her now slender face.

Then she excused herself to examine the dresses on the size 10 rack.

TOPS Leader Attends Meeting

Mrs. Lori Rix, leader of the Prospective Waist Away TOPS club of Mount Prospect, recently attended a leaders meeting held at the Sheraton Chicago Hotel.

On the agenda were workshops dealing with the subject of corrective clothing, grooming, exercise, four food groups and how to reach potential weight and keep it.

Dr. Angelo Creticos, of the University of Illinois College of Medicine; Sheldon Steinberg, director of health education of the National Dairy Council, and Wallace Ann Wesley, assistant director of the department of health and education of the AMA, were guest speakers.

Deny Water To AH Firm

Denial of a request from an Arlington Heights firm to use Mount Prospect water was recommended last night by the public works committee of the village board.

The committee voted 2-0 to recommend that the village board deny the request of Affiliated Realty Services Inc. for Mount Prospect water service at property located at the southwest corner of Central Av. and Busse Rd.

The company, which plans a small shopping center development in the area, stated that the closest Arlington Hts. water connection was 1,500 feet from their property.

Voting to deny the request were Trustees Parker Ekren and Robert Colfer. The third member of the public works committee, Trustee Robert Teichert, was absent from last night's committee meeting.

Ekren, chairman of the committee, pointed out that the property in question at one time could have annexed to Mount Prospect, however, chose Arlington Heights because of what he called a better zoning arrangement.

Nordin Joins Semi-Pro 11

Bob Nordine of Arlington Heights is expected to be one of the candidates for a starting halfback position on the Lake County Rifles semi-pro football team in the Central States League this fall.

Nordin, a graduate of Arlington High School, was an all-state halfback for the Cardinals and played four years as a running back at the University of Dubuque.

The Rifles, who open their season against Canton, Ill., Aug. 13, will play their home games at Weiss Field, Waukegan. The team's pre-season training camp opens July 12.

Four Girls At Music For Youth Camp

Four Prospect area high school girls are taking part in the 10th annual Music for Youth Camp at Northern Illinois University.

There are 128 high school musicians from Illinois, Indiana, Missouri and Texas attending the two-week summer workshop, which ends July 1.

The girls are: Nancy Bornhoeft, 503 S. Hilusi, Mt. Prospect; Gail Knoblock, 204 N. Elmhurst, Mt. Prospect; Nadine Zarat, 604 W. Lonnquist; and Cathin Furch, 109 Brook Road.

Way Paved For New Sidewalks

Wayne Little, chairman of School Dist. 59's sidewalk committee, had several concrete proposal Tuesday.

He hopes to meet his Sept. 1 target date for installing the needed sidewalks.

Little promised the board continuing reports on proposed sidewalks in the following areas:

—North side of Dempster St. between Route 83 and Beau.

—East side of Route 83 between Miller and Dempster.

—South side of Dempster between Beau and existing sidewalks.

Leonard G. Garasha, director of transportation for Dist. 59, told the board that when these sidewalks in the Dempster Junior High School area are completed, "there's a possibility of saving at least one bus." At $39 a day, this could mean a saving of nearly $7,200 a year.

Buildings and Grounds Director J. C. Clemans said that a sidewalk from Dempster Junior High's parking lot to Linneman Rd. had already been excavated in a co-operative venture with Mount Prospect Park District. Stone will be put there later this week.

Board member Dick Hess was given responsibility for checking progress on negotiations to put in 200' of sidewalk along the south side of Cordial Lane in Des Plaines.

Elephant to Lead July 4 Parade

BY BRUCE CUTLER

The leader in Mount Prospect's July 4 parade is going to be an elephant — a bottle-fed baby elephant six months old, 30 inches high, and weighing 200 pounds.

Representing the Mount Prospect Combined Appeal, Sybil, the elephant, as "The Symbol of Safety" is one of about 20 entrants in the parade

Seven bands, a troop of marchers, at least three antique autos, two clowns and a host of floats will parade down Emerson from Gregory at 2 p.m. Monday to Lions Park.

According to Earl L. Meeske, Chamber of Commerce parade chairman, one of the biggest headaches he has found is getting bands for the parade, since school bands usually do not perform in the summertime.

Yet for the first time, the Prospect High School Band will be in Mount Prospect's parade. So will the Mount Prospect Elementary School Band.

Other bands include the Mount Prospect Drum and Bugle Band, St. Raymond's Band and the Rolling Meadows Community Band.

From Chicago the chamber has arranged for the Shamo Rovers Irish Pipes and the Wah Mei Chinese Band to join the parade.

Meeske said the chamber will spend about $2,000 for the bands as its donation to the holiday celebration in Mount Prospect.

Among the cash contributors to assist in financing the parade, Meeske listed the Ice Cream Cart, Alpha Engineering, Illinois Range, Weber Marketing, Martinizing Cleaners, Northwest Stationers, Golfhurst Civic Assn., the Mount Prospect Woman's Club, Northwest Meadows Assn., Wille Liquors and J7 Specialities.

Entrants will compete for top prizes among the floats. George E. Whittenberg, William Mott and Mrs. Victor Bittner will be the judges.

Among those signed up thus far for floats is the Mount Prospect-Prospect Heights Human Relations Council, which will dress up four young girls on a float bearing the slogan "Liberty For All."

The Mount Prospect Lions Club will also have a patriotic float, as will the Randhurst Merchants Assn., which has scheduled a float on the theme of the "Green Berets," adorned with girls.

Keefers and Van Driel drugstores will combine their efforts to provide Mount Prospect parade watchers with a model of the Santa Maria and Pilgrims and Indians — jointly representing Christopher Columbus and the celebrated Mayflower.

Jack's Men's Shop will have a float depicting the Liberty Bell. Great Lakes Naval Station is providing a marching unit of 80 men.

Prospect Post 1337 of the V.F.W. will be represented by a marching color guard.

The three antique cars will carry the banners of the Mount Prospect Center of Infant Welfare, the Mount Prospect State Bank and George L. Busse & Co.

Busse Florists and the Mount Prospect Girl Scouts will also have floats.

The $30,000 added Misty Isle Handicap highlights a big week for three-year-olds Saturday, in the Arlington Park Jockey Club's phase of the 103-day co-ordinated Arlington-Washington Park meeting.

Clifford Lusky's Justakiss heads a list of the nation's top sophomore fillies entered in the Misty Isle event to be run at a mile and one-sixteenth on the infield grass.

AN OLD ARLINGTON favorite, Justakiss posted wins in the Majorette and Mademoiselle Stakes at the local track last year and added a victory in the Bewitch at Keeneland. A five-time winner as a two-year old, the sophomore daughter of Irish Lancer and Leg House chalked up victories in the Ashland and Oaks Prep Stakes this year and is fresh from a six-length win in the Cleopatra.

Justakiss will be ridden by Johnny Sellers, the leading jockey in the recently-completed Balmoral Jockey Club Phase of the spring-summer meeting.

Other probable starters in the Misty Isle are Cologne, Swinging Mood, Maidni Diam, Neat N' Sweet, and False Fashion.

COLOGNE, who has shown a fondness for grass, was runner-up to Neat 'N Sweet in the Cinderella Handicap. A four-time winner last year, she will be ridden by Mickey Solomone. Neat 'N Sweet posted one victory last year, winning the Duranza Stakes.

Swinging Mood was second to Justakiss in her first stakes race this year. An injury sidelined the rapidly-improving filly earlier in the season, but she seems to have regained top form.

NAIDNI DIAM has four straight third place finished to her credit, while False Fashion has claimed two allowance wins this spring.

Also on tap for three-year-olds and over is the $25,000 added Meadowland Handicap, a sprint test at 5 1/2 furlongs. An early favorite for the Meadowland is eight-year-old Uncle Percy, winner of the opening day Clang Handicap.

Grid Honors Available For 1966 Collegians

The race for all-American football honors looks wide open this year.

Departing by graduation were 18 members of the 22-man 1965 United Press International All-American teams.

Quarterback Bob Griese of Purdue is the lone survivor of the first offensive team. The only players returning to Collegiate grid action from the first defensive team are tackle Lloyd Phillips of Arkansas, end Charley Smith of Michigan State, and halfback George Webster of Michigan State.

Ford Dealer Gets Award For Achievement

Roselle Ford, at 333 E. Irving Park Rd., Roselle, has been selected to receive Ford Motor Company's distinguished achievement award.

The award is presented "in recognition of progressive management ... modern sales and service facilities ... sound merchandising practices ... high quality standards ... and continuing interest in rendering superior service to Ford owners."

Battles of Manassas

The first Battle of Manassas, or Bull Run as it has been called, was fought on July 21, 1861; the second battle was fought on Aug. 29-30, 1862. Both battles ended in Confederate victory.

Boys Are Different

As the Frenchman said, "Vive la difference!"

Yes, boys ARE different from girls. Any mother who has one of each will be quick to tell you.

Girls are sugar 'n' spice and everything nice, while boys are crew cuts and Band-Aids and crumpled T-shirts parked under the bed.

Teachers and educators, though, have known for years that in school skills, boys tend to mature much later than girls. In reading, coordination, attention span, and general readiness to learn, the girls generally outrank the boys.

This summer, Forest View Elementary School is trying out a pilot program in its first grade readiness classes.

THE GIRLS group (no boys allowed) is emphasizing more feminine activities. They're working with embroidery, "playing the mother role," dancing out such records as "Alice in Wonderland."

Boys, instead, are working with wood and tools. Their classroom features trucks, trains, and planes. In art, they're making animal pictures (while the girls are doing flowers). Because they tend to be more self-conscious about acting in front of a group, they are drawing to music as part of their creative rhythm experiences. "Peter and the Wolf" currently is their favorite record.

Mrs. Alan M. Lawson leads the girls' group, and Miss Judy Bengston is in charge of the boys.

'67 School Calendar Reaffirmed

Teachers in Elementary School Dist. 59 are going to be teaching right through June 16 next year.

That's the date the board has approved as the final day of school. A revised calendar has been agreed upon by all area school districts.

Last month, Dave Bates of Dist. 59 Teachers' Council appeared before the board. He asked that teachers who had registered in summer schools beginning before Dist. 59 ended classes be allowed two days off without penalty, so that they could complete college registration and attend their first day of classes.

The board denied his request then, Monday, it repeated its belief that the school calendar represents the official school dates for the district.

Variable Star

The star Mira is famous for its light changes. It expands and contracts every 330 days. This expansion and contraction causes the star's light to grow brighter, then dimmer.

Need For Scout Aides Noted

A Cub and Boy Scout Roundtable has been scheduled for July 5 by the North Star District of the Northwest Suburban Council.

At a commissioners staff meeting Tuesday, district officers set up a July schedule which includes training July 14 and a meeting July 19.

At present there are about 40 neighborhood commissioners in the North Star District, which serves some 70 units.

Officers concluded at the meeting that at least 10 new commissiners will be needed by September.

Wheeling Band To Defend Crown

The Wheeling High School Marching Band will attend the Aquatennial in Minneapolis July 15 to 17, it was disclosed today.

Ted Falen, new president of the Wheeling Instrumental League (Parent Band Boosters Club), said the band will defend the first place flag won last year.

Dean DePoy, band director, explained to parents in the club that there will be 125 students and color guards, 14 chaperones and a registered nurse making the trip north.

The trip's schedule will allow the troup to leave Wheeling High School at 7 a.m. on the 15th and arrive in Minneapolis at 4:30 p.m. that afternoon. A band jamboree will be held that night.

On Saturday, July 16, the band will participate in a TV show at the parade stadium and in the parade that afternoon.

"When the judging is over," DePoy said, "we hope to have another first place flag to bring back to Wheeling High School."

Accompanying the troup will be Doug Peterson, who will be assistant band master at Wheeling High School next year. Peterson is a graduate of Iowa State University, Ames, Iowa.

DePoy commented that "we should both like to thank all the parents in the Instrumental League who helped make this trip possible.

"We're sure it will be an enriching-experience for the youngsters," he said.

State Pays $251,438 To Schools

Reimbursements from the state totaling $251,438.01 have been received by Township High School Dist. 214.

Expenses for salaries, travel and equipment for several vocational training programs offered district students were reimbursed by state aid.

The diversified occupations, home economics, distributive occupations, business education and work orientation programs at Arlington, Forest View, Prospect and Wheeling High Schools qualified. The home economics and trade and industry sections in the adult education programs also received reimbursements.

Dist. 57 Fund

Increase Petty Cash

The petty cash fund for Dist. 57 schools has been increased from $1,200 to $2,000 a month.

The board of education voted to increase the "impress fund," as it is called in accounting terms, Monday.

THE FUND allows immediate payment, especially for recruitment costs, of items budgeted and approved by the board.

Board secretary and district business manager J. C. Busenhart told the board the increase was necessary because payments of bills in December, January, February and March this school year were held back due to lack of fund.

Excellence is one quality that is always in short supply

One doesn't have to be president to be eminently successful. Whatever your job is, chances are you view it about the same way we consider the job of building a home.

We make no effort at all to be America's fastest builder. Or the cheapest, and certainly we will never be the biggest. When a builder has a very high regard for excellence, he can't be any of those things, because each of those goals means compromise in one form or another.

For a very limited time, we still have 5 3/4% Conventional Financing available for homes in CAMBRIDGE.

There's one thing about success that results from being a little bit better. Such success is likely to last; since there's never enough excellence to satisfy the people who require it, the demand for it is exceptionally stable.

But you've found that out, just as we have. And that's why we think you'd like our homes. Live the casual, gracious CAMBRIDGE way, where you live every day of your life.

THESE ARE PENNY FLAME GAS-EQUIPPED HOMES.

Open New Model at Sunset Heights

The Glenn, an elegant split level, 8-room home with four large bedrooms and 2 1/2 baths. The two-car attached garage and basement give more than ample storage space. The model homes are in Sunset Heights, Mount Prospect, on Golf Rd. 1/2 mile west of Elmhurst Rd.

A new model home has been opened in the Sunset Heights development of Schavilje and Knuth, two fathers and two sons building team.

The Glenn, in the Sunset Heights West section in Mount Prospect, features an elegant foyer that leads to a step-up living room. Decorative wrought iron railing separates the living room from an elevated dining room. Both are covered by a high vaulted, cathedral-type ceiling to provide an atmosphere of airiness and dignity.

The U-shaped kitchen with built-in oven and range, formica-topped custom cabinets and a spacious dinette offers a full view of the family room and backyard.

The family room leads through a sliding glass wall to the patio and garden. It has a large closet and powder room so that the children can run in and out of the house without tracking mud on the carpets.

A basement and crawl space storage area are a few steps lower.

The quiet area, a few steps up, consists of a large master bedroom with three walk-in closets and a private compartmented ceramic tile vanity bath.

The Glenn is offered at $37,500. Other Bilevel, ranch and raised ranch models are offered from $31,900.

The model homes, on Golf Rd. (Rte. 58), 1/2 mile west of Elmhurst Rd. (Rte. 83), are open weekdays from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., and weekends from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m., or any time by appointment.

Short Money May Change Home Plans

Many American homeowners, whether on the buying or selling side of the market, are going to have to change some of their plans this summer due to the growing scarcity of mortgage money, the United States Savings and Loan League forecast today.

In its May issue of the monthly Trends Report, the nationwide savings and loan trade organization reported that while home builders have already felt the impact of tight mortgage money, mid-summer will see its first effect on the home-buying and home-selling public.

"The home owner will learn that the sale of the home from which he is moving has been slower than anticipated because the prospective buyer has to muster a bigger downpayment," the publication stated. "The family on the move will also find that at the other end of the line, the carpeting and furniture replacements for their new home may have to be delayed. The money intended for these purchases will be used for a bigger downpayment on the home into which they are moving."

THE PUBLICATION re- [illegible] aged about 28 per cent of sales price. It said that this is the kind of schedule that the American family had become accustomed to over the past several years.

"An ample flow of funds into financial institutions specializing in home mortgage lending made such downpayments part of the planning of the highly mobile American," it said.

"This summer mortage terms will be tougher as lenders, short of loanable funds, ration their resources."

Blue Exciting In Furnishings

The new color in upholstered furniture fabric is blue.

Manfred Steinfeld, chief executive officer of Duo-Bed Corporation, says that "blue in every shade and hue" will be seen on upholstered furniture and dual-sleep furniture pieces next season.

"Blue is one color that pleases nearly 80 per cent of all Americans," Steinfeld pointed out. "Furniture and bedding makers have discovered that there isn't any psychological adjustment problems in introducing blue fabrics."

He noted that light blue fits into the pastel popularity trend while royal, cobalt and midnight blues "are marking the trend back to the solid, strong colors of the past."

THE OLIVE tones, along with gold, completely dominate the home furnishings scene today. Olive is found in fabrics on contemporary, traditional and even Early American lines.

He expects olive to continue in popularity, followed by gold and then beige. But the new exciting color to look for, he predicted, is blue.

Ten years ago bold vibrant colors were in demand [illegible] very few consumers wanted pastels in their upholstery fabrics. Beige and off-whites also were popular a decade ago.

Early in the 1960s, Steinfeld said, there was a new interest in pastels and emphasis was based on new color combinations — such as olive and gold — as the "basic beiges" began to fade from the scene.

The executive, who also heads two other furniture firms, said that the home furnishings industry has done more for the acceptance of color than any other industry.

"There are not two colors in the spectrum that cannot be made to go together and it is the home furnishings industry," he pointed out, "which created this acceptance."

He also paid tribute to the homemaker for her willingness "to be bold, and to experiment, in decorating her home."

Countertops Desired

More countertop space is the kitchen improvement most sought by homeowners, says the Tile Council of America. The trade association of the nation's ceramic tile manufacturers says that even an extra foot of countertop goes a long way toward alleviating the problem of too little working space.

Longer-Lasting Fluorescent Lamps

Fluorescent lamps that last longer and give better light owe their improved performance in large part to a space-age version of Grandma's gas broiler.

Recently adopted by the electric lamp manufacturing industry is a high-speed automated "lehr" that heat-processes fluorescent tubing in two-to eight-foot lengths at speeds of more than 4,000 tubes an hour.

Scientifically controlled radiant-cup burners in the roof of the lehr "broil" the slim tubes evenly as the long glass cylinders are conveyed through the curing zone on rollers.

The radiant-warmth treatment does three jobs at once, engineers of the Selas Corporation of America explain. It dries and cures the fluorescent coating inside the glass tubes, it anneals the glass to make it tough, and it straightens any tubes that need it.

AIR IS forced through the tubes as they roll through the "broiler." This speeds the burning and removal of fumes given off by the still-wet fluorescent lining.

Normally each tube would tend to cool at the end, where the air comes in, and overheat along the rest of its length as the fumes inside catch fire. In the Selas process, heat from the radiant burners overhead is precisely patterned in such a way that it automatically compensates for these hot and cold spots, and each tube is heated uniformly.

Hardboard Resists Weather

Exterior hardboard panels framed with 2 by 4 wood posts or beams make a tough, weather-resistant privacy fence for the patio or backyard.

The panels are engineered to withstand hard abuse, and will not crack or splinter. For added attractiveness, paint the panels in contrasting colors and set potted plants along the wood frame.

Textured Walls Add To Decor

There's nothing so flat as a flat wall. But take texture, add it to a wall, and you've literally added a new dimension.

Color is one way to give a wall character. The use of accessories is another. But the modern — and permanent — way to invest a wall with dramatic interest is by giving it depth.

It is a simple matter to add texture to a wall. V-grooved and striated hardboard paneling, both vertical and horizontal, are two popular ways of doing this.

Among the newest trends in this direction are walls with burlap, wicker, basket weave and louver patterns.

Likes His Job, Wants to Lose It

That's what he told members of a steering committee to study a possible school-community co-operative work program for Dist. 214 students Monday afternoon.

Theodore is director of the district's Neighborhood Youth Corps Program and gave a report to the businessmen and school personnel on the committee.

Theodore said that as of June 10, 151 students had been identified as eligible for NYC participation. The federally-subsidized program is for students from 16 through 21 from low income families.

Currently there are approximately 50 students participating in the summer program at the five high schools and the administration center.

"WE WANT to see that these students complete their high school education," Theodore said. "We know that we have some potential dropouts. It is necessary also that they compete with their peer group. We are trying to put ourself out of business. Our goal is to go down to zero. Every NYC director in the U.S. is attempting to get students out of NYC and into jobs."

Jack Martin, assistant to the superintendent of Dist. 214 said, "The NYC program is not a vocational training program. It is primarily set up to serve an economic need so the students can earn some money to stay in school. On this program we are not teaching them a trade."

NYC counselor Don Schroeder added, "This is not a make-work situation either. These students are performing jobs that have to be done. We try to form work habits which is an important part of the program also."

Martin continued concerning the development and progress of the program:

"We aren't saying that NYC is the only way to do this job but it has been a successful way. We see problems if industry were to take these students too. When the program was first introduced there was the argument that there was no need for it in the district.

"Now the attitude has changed and we are trying to find out how we can help these students. In this project the school district deals directly with the federal government. The funds come from the same source as funds for programs that have been going on in the district for several years," said Martin.

HE TOLD the group that they were not being asked to find an answer about the NYC program but to make recommendations on how industry and schools can better serve the working needs of the school students.

Members of industry present questioned Theodore and the counselors about the ability of the students to assume jobs in industry and local business.

"Most of our students could handle jobs now but not all of them," said Theodore.

Transportation was a big issue he said in the NYC program. His current summer budget allows $600 for transportation and the teachers and counselors have to provide transportation for some of the students now.

During previous meetings school representatives explained other work programs in the district.

The group will meet July 25 to make recommendations that will be presented to the board of education. A possible suggestion on the continuance of the NYC program may come from the group.

School Aide Martin Gets A $600 Raise

Jack Martin, assistant to the superintendent of Township High School Dist. 214 has been voted a $600 salary increase by the board of education.

Martin's full time duties include personnel and public relations for the district at a current salary of $12,300.

The board changed the index for the job from 1.25 through 1.50 to 1.35 through 1.60. The index scales are based on teaching experience and educational backgrounds.

Martin, who has a master's degree, is earning 1.35 times the amount he would make as a teacher for the administrative position.

Pickpocket Gets 60 Days

A man caught picking pockets at Arlington Park race track Saturday will be deported from the country after he serves his jail sentence, according to police.

Police said Jáime Quiroz, 34, gave his address as New York, N. Y., when arrested by track security police. It was later determined that he was in the country illegally and immigration authorities were notified.

Quiroz was sentenced to 60 days in Cook County Jail Monday by Judge James Maher, Arlington Heights branch of the Circuit Court, on the pickpocket charge.

Flood Basin OKd On Jr. High Site

School Dist. 59 will allow a retention basin for storm water control to be built on its newest junior high school site.

Builder Neal Hunter, developer of Colonial Heights, and the school district will go 50-50 on construction costs. In addition, Hunter will give the district $1,000.

After the basin is completed, it will be dedicated to the village of Mount Prospect to fence and maintain. If, at any future time, the basin is not needed as part of the drainage system, title to the land will revert to Dist. 59.

Hunter appeared before school board members Monday to discuss the proposal. So did Mount Prospect trustee Robert Teichert, who told The Day he was there as an individual, and not in an official capacity.

Describing the recent storms, Hunter said. "We have had no flooding in Colonial Heights. We sent a man over to clean out the catch basins, and we drained the area in 20 minutes."

Teichert countered, "I was standing in two feet of water."

The Sanitary District, said Teichert, has decided there will be no more building unless there is a way to take care of the storm water.

School board member Joe Schefter questioned the retention basin location, asking, "At what point do you stop giving school land away?"

He later joined the board in unanimously approving the co-operative proposal.

The Official Marine Headquarters in Washington D.C. was completed in 1802 and has been continually occupied by Marines since that time.

Steve Makes Tinkering Pay Off

Steeled by the taste of victory, Steve Merril Hogy, a freshman at Forest View High School this fall, is looking for new fields to conquer.

Steve was named the Illinois winner in the first scholarship award competition conducted by The Toy Tinkers, a division of A. G. Spaulding & Co., Evanston.

He earned a certificate, letters of congratulations and an opportunity to compete in the company's national finals, which was won by a fellow Midwesterner.

GOVERNOR Otto Kerner, and U. S. Senators Dirksen and Douglas, sent warm congratulatory letters to Steve for his accomplishment.

Village President Daniel Congreve commented that he is "pleased Mount Prospect has youth of this caliber. This is representative of the most important part of our community, our youth," he said. "I send by personal and individual congratulations."

For taking top place among all Illinois participants in the competition, Steve won a personally-engraved plaque from the company.

He also picked up a junior engineer certificate of award, which praises his "creative imagination, ingenuity and skill."

STEVE'S entry was a lift machine, similar to those used in warehouses. It was built entirely from Tinker Toy materials—and it works.

He also has constructed a truck trailer, like the kind used in cross country hauling, which has a removeable loading device on the side.

Steve's father has his own trailer repair service company in Chicago where Steve would like to work, if he doesn't become a truck driver as he thinks he might like to be.

STEVE'S mother says he is handy with everything around the house, repairing electrical as well as mechanical items.

He says he is looking forward to taking a special course of work orientation in mechanics and industrial arts in high school this fall.

At present, he's still working around the house and in his basement workshop, where he is designing more elaborate Tinker Toy machine models.

Delegate To AIA Meeting

Fred A. Thulin Jr., Mt. Prospect architect, is a delegate from the Chicago chapter again this year to the national convention of the American Institute of Architects in Denver, Colo.

Last year Thulin, a senior staff member of U.S. Gypsum Research Laboratory, Des Plaines attended the combined AIA national convention and Pan-American Congress of Architects in Washington, D. C.

J. Kenneth Galbraith, economist and former U.S. ambassador to India, is scheduled to deliver the keynote address at the convention in Denver today.

THE SECOND Purves Memorial Lecture will be given by Harvard University President Nathan M. Pusey at the Air Froce Academy after lunch in the officers' club.

Thulin's duties at the convention will include attending the workshops and technical seminars as well as voting on the national officers and amendments introduced by the national organization.

Kiwis Host Students

The kiwi is a strange looking New Zealand bird that cannot fly.

The Kiwi is also an attractive former airline stewardess who--like her namesake is gronnded. There are quite a fnw of these in our area.

The students Richard Khalldi, Saudi Arabia; Phillip Davies, United Kingdom; Joji Shimanouchi, Japan; Lini Fahrman, United States; and Christine Jankowski, Switzerland; were guests of honor at a barbeque held at the Northbrook home of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Eastman.

Each of the students had received a "discover America" award from the airline, and Chicago was one of their cross-country stopovers. The students were also taken on a boat tour along Lake Michigan followed a luncheon with American Airlines representatives and kiwis.

THERE ARE 108 members in the Chicago Chapter--one of 52 in the United States, France and Germany. In May many members attended the biannual Kiwi Convention in Boston. The Chicago chapter won first prize for its scrapbook, prepared by Mrs. MacLeod, and, for their original nametags. The group also won second place for their skit entitled "Swinging Red Coats."

Kiwi meetings are held on the second Wednesday of the month in the homes of members. They are now making preparations for the July 23 Summer Luau Party. This will be followed by the November 3 Casino Party.

Kiwis have their serious side too. In the past five years the Chicago club has raised $15,000 for the Park Lawn School for the Mentally Retarded Children in Evergreen Park.

Any American Airlines stewardesses who might be interested in joining the flightless ranks of the Kiwis can call He- 7-1082 for details.

. . . And $300 Is Left Over

A job budgeted for $6,000 but never filled has allowed Dist. 57 to pick up deficits in three other accounts.

J. C. Busenhart, board of education secretary and district business manager, recommended to the board Monday that $5,700 be taken from the district's $6,000 audio-visual account.

The board allocated $2,600 to go for legal fees, $1,600 for recruitment and $1,500 for the district's gifted program.

The $6,000 was budgeted for a part time audio-visual materials director who was never hired.

Problem Solved, Then A Surprise

by JAN BONE

Does your wife complain she's nothing but a chauffeur for the kids? Must she constantly plan her day around pickups at pools, library, movies, and meetings?

If so, then she should meet Leonard G. Garasha, 619 N. Harvard, principal of Mount Prospect's Robert Frost School.

His job--to plan bus transportation for more than 1,200 summer school students.

Enrollment in School Dist. 59's classes didn't reach its unprecedented high until June 18, the weekend before school began. Though a majority of the 2,572 students would be walkers, bus schedules had to be planned to arrange economical pickup routes.

Although Dist. 59 receives state aid for its classes this summer, no transportation reinbursement is possible. Garasha was given a $ 5,000 budget--and stayed slightly under that figure.

his planning: several junior high lab classes, originally planned for Dempster, had to be rescheduled for Grove, necessitating a shuttle bus, and the distances between district areas from which children would be coming.

For example, some of Forest View Elementary School's summer students live east of the United Airlines complex on Algonquin Rd. Several of their classmates, however, live west of Arlington Heights beyond the Nike site near the Illinois Tollway.

Still others come from the Surrey Ridge and Airy Trace sections of Arlington Heights.

GARASHA'S solution? To use the schools as pickup centers wherever possible. Students would walk to their usual school, and be bussed when necessary, to their summer classes.

Along Arlington Heights and Algonquin Rds., central locations were chosen for children to gather, awaiting bus pickup.

All buses carried large colored squares in their front windows. Matching colored tags were mailed to children, who've been wearing them for identification.

THOUGH the first day was hectic, problems had been pretty well smoothed out by Garasha and Davidsmeyer Bus Service before the end of the week.

One situation they hadn't planned came up, though.

Three extra children turned up Tuesday at Forest View Elementary School, "End of the Line," said Garasha, who called their parents to retrieve the boys.

They were en route to YMCA day camp, but followed the other kids onto the school bus. Were they surprised!

Appeals Board Rejects 4 Pleas

Four requests to the Board of Appeals Friday were denied.

John T. Jarsich, Deerfield, owner of property on the northeast corner of Busse and Algonquin, asked to build a gas station there.

Mrs. June Junokas, 613 N. Wills, sought to lengthen a 15 ft. Swimming pool to 18 ft.

Louis E. Caron wanted to place a six-foot basketweave fence at the rear of 306 S. We-Go.

Raymond Calabrese, 911 S. Louis, appealed a building department order requiring removal of "keep off the grass," "beware of dog," and "careful, high step" signs.

Target of Vandals

Chuck Campbell, 13, (left) points to the boards he says vandals removed from a tree house at the corner of S. We-Go and Central. With him is Dan Ruble, 13, and Chuck Volk, 11 hidden by the leaves at right. The tree house is in a dangerous condition, the boys say, because older boys wreck it.

3 Risk Illness In Prank

Police are searching for three Chicago youths who entered a laboratory at Northwest Community Hospital last night and opened several specimen bottles containing bacteria.

Police said the three were waiting for friends who were being treated for injuries received in an auto accident in Lake County. While they were waiting they entered the lab, opened bottles and wrote on walls.

Carl Jorgensen, a lab technician at the hospital, said the bacteria from the bottles were highly contagious and caused dehydration and diarrhea.

Police said the friends of the trio would not disclose their identities to them. Lt. Irvin MacDougall said the boys should return to the hospital to be freed of the germs.

"They will be pretty sick boys," he said, "and so will anyone with whom they come in contact."

New Building Ordinance For Homes Mapped

BY JACK A. VANDERMYN

Mount Prospect has taken the first step toward adopting a comprehensive building ordinance covering the construction of single family residences.

At a meeting of the village building committee last night, authorization was given to Manager John Mongan to prepare a completely revised building ordinance dealing with single family homes.

Mongan, along with acting building commissioner Peter Retten, presented an outline of a 40-page building ordinance to replace the current two-and-a-third page code now on the village books.

Mongan and Retten said that the ordinance they recommend will eliminate ambiguous statements and conflicts in the present building code.

Trustee Robert Colfer, chairman of the building committee, said that a second ordinance, calling for the control of all other types of building, would be submitted in the near future.

Colfer called on the building committee, composed of Trustees Parker Ekren and Frank Bergen, to consider the single family home ordinance first so that the machinery of passing what he labeled vitally needed controls could be put into motion.

Mongan said that the building code recommended by himself and Retten was based on suburban standard building codes in effect in 75 surrounding municipalities, including Arlington Heights.

RETTEN said that the proposed code was workable and based on performance, not ideals. He said that the new code, if adopted by the village board, would enable the building department to insure top quality residential building to future Mount Prospect residents.

Mongan said that the main changes in the proposed codes over the present, rather skimpy set of regulations are:

--Insulation is required.

--All interior and exterior studding must be with 2 by 4 lumber.

--Temperature limits on pouring concrete are spelled out and a five-day curing period for foundations is mandatory.

--Larger floor areas for rooms are mandatory.

--Only three-bedroom single family residences are permitted.

--Vapor barriers are required on all construction.

--Pre - fabricated chimneys are only permitted on one-story homes and then only with the inspection and approval of the building commissioner.

RETTEN said that there were many other areas that were covered in the proposed ordinances for step-by-step insurance of top quality construction.

Trustees on hand at last night's meeting read through the code and approved 3-0 its drawing in ordinance form for submission for first reading to the village board at its July 5 meeting.

Prior to that time, Mongan was asked to copy the rough draft of the code and make those copies available to the village trustees for their pre-meeting inspection.

Receives Appointment

Dr. William A. Lewis, 904 S. Elmhurst Rd., Mount Prospect, was appointed a committee chairman of the Pan American Board of Education at a recent meeting of the group on the Chicago Campus of Northwestern University.

Dr. Lewis is a member of the Education Department the Illinois Institute of Technology.

Golf Outing

Alexius Historical Tea Sunday

The St. Alexius Hospital Auxiliary will conduct a historial tea from 1 to 4 p.m. Sunday, July 3 in the Cardinal Stritch Room of the hospital.

Photos tracing the history of the Alexian Brothers Hospital in Chicago from its founding in 1866 will be displayed. Also to be shown are a religious habit similar to those formerly worn by the Alexian Brothers and newspaper stories and photots dealing with the growth of St. Alexius.

Ground for the hospital, located at 800 W. Biesterfield, Elk Grove, was broken in December, 1963. The 225-bed hospital was dedicated this month by the Most Rev. Cletus F. O'Donnell, auxiliary bishops of the Chicago archdiocese.

Modern medical equipment will be contrasted with equipment used in 19th century hospitals.

Planning the tea are Mrs. Donald Froehlke, Auxiliary public relations chairman; Mrs. George Cassara, Auxiliary delegate to the Elk Grove Tencennial Committee, and Mrs. Josiah Smith, hospitality chairman.

Tri-Sigma Installs Officers

Miss Judy Washington of Mount Prospect is the new corresponding secretary of the Northwest Suburban Chapter of Sigma Sigma Sigma.

Mrs. Russel Sack is the new president; Mrs. Charles Beck, recording secretary, and Mrs. Richard Koopman, treasurer. All are from Arlington Heights.

On August 20, the chapter will initiate the new year with their annual summer men's night which features a steak fry.

Library Group Seeks Books

A book drive is underway under the sponsorship of the Mount Prospect Friends of the Library, a service organization dedicated to aiding the library.

Used books, both hard and paper back, are being collected for the organization's annual book sale, on Aug. 27.

BOOKS, not magazines, may be deposited at the following locations for donation to the sale: Mount Prospect Library, 14 E. Busse, or the homes of G.I. Liebenow, 131 S. Kenilworth; Thomas Claater, 304 N. Dale; T.F. Grady, 401 Na-Ta-Wa, or J.S. French, 623 S. George.

Proceeds from the annual book sale are used to promote programs of interest to the entire community through the Mount Prospect public library.

Secretaries Workshop

Six Dist. 57 administrative secretaries attended a state-sponsored managerial services workshop in DeKalb this weekend.

Dorothy Patton, secretary to the superintendent, Ann Minkoff, secretary to the psychologist, Myrtle Spaulding, secretary to the business manager, and Anita Robertshaw, secretary to the assistant superintendent for instruction, participated in the day-long sessions.

Virginia Henneberry, who operates the district's accounting machine, and Dorothy O'Neil, secretary at Fairview School, also attended the conference, which discussed the secretary's role in education, public relations and ungraded schools.

Regulate Outdoor Pools

Acting building superintendent Peter Retten has warned Mount Prospect residents that all swimming pools must comply with a municipal ordinance.

He said many people during the hot summer months purchase portable swimming, or wading, pools without checking the village's requirements on them.

Youth Accused

Judge Simon S. Porter signed an arrest warrant in Mount Prospect court Thursday for an 18 - year - old from Palatine charged by police with deceptive practice of cashing a bogus check as a downpayment on $1,500 worth of jewelry at Frank'n Jewelers in Randhurst last Friday.

Chicago Firm to Build New Plant

A new $385,000 manufacturing facility for continuous casting of nonferrous metals will be built by the Masten Corp. at 1117 E. Algonquin Rd., Carl Hilton, president, announced.

Hilton said construction of the 20,000 sq. ft. plant, which will supplement Masten's present facilities in Chicago, will begin in August. Completion is expected in December. The new plant will employ 85 people.

The single-story, steel frame and masonry building will contain modern equipment for the continuous casting of bronze bars and tubes.

Future plans for the Arlington Heights plant include expansion to enable consolidation of all manufacturing at the location here. The Masten sales offices and warehouse will remain at 3555 W. Addison, Chicago.

Seek $'s For Survey

The Metropolitan Sanitary Dist. of Chicago will be asked to share a $12,000 storm water sewer survey by Consoer, Townsend and Associates with the village of Mount Prospect.

Recommendation that the sanitary district be asked to participate financially in the survey was made Monday by the public works committee of the village board.

Consoer and Townsend, the village's consulting engineering firm, estimated that the cost of surveying the village's storm and sanitary sewer systems to determine how to eliminate flooding, would cost $12,000.

Trustee Parker Ekran, chairman of the public works committee, questioned the legality of the $12,000 expenditure since much of the sanitary sewer system in the area to be surveyed belongs to the sanitary district.

Village Attorney Robert Moore informed Ekren that the expenditure was legal.

Ekren called for sanitary district approval of the survey and participation in its cost.

Pharmacists Elects Jack Keefer

Keefer, whose pharmacy is at 10 Northwest Hwy., has served on the association's publications two years.

The Illinois Pharmaceutical Assn. is a professional society representing pharmacists of the state practicing in communities, hospitals and industries, or teaching and administrating colleges of pharmacy.

Its basic objective is to protect and advance public health through the acceptances of modern and approved pharmaceutical practices.

ROBERT P. BITTER, of 1433 W. St. James Pl., Arlington Heights, special agent in Des Plaines for the Dan. A. Kaufman Co., General Agency of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co., was a $1,000,000 producer for the company during 1965-66. He will be honored at the annual meeting in Milwaukee, July 24-25.

Takes Part In Language Institute

Sister M. Fredina, S.C.C., language teacher at St. Alphonsus School, Prospect Heights, is participating in an NDEA Institute this summer.

Sister Fredina and 47 teachers from 15 states are studying new techniques in language instruction at Oakland University, Rochester, Mich.

The institute is supported by a grant from the United States office of education.

3,793 To Enter School

There will be 3,793 students entering high school in Dist. 214 in the fall, according to a survey.

Public grade schools this year graduated 2,761 pupils and parochial school graduated 1,032.

The largest number of students will come from Arlington Heights Dist. 25 with 792 graduates. From other public schools: Palatine Dist. 15, 265; Wheeling Dist. 21, 319; Prospect Heights Dist. 23, 134; River Trails Dist. 26, 170; Mount Prospect Dist. 57, 431 and Elk Grove Dist. 59, 650.

GRADUATES from parochial schools number: St. Alphonsus Liguori, Prospect Heights, 77; St. Paul Lutheran, Mount Prospect, 60; St. Joseph the Worker, Wheeling, 50; St. James Catholic, Arlington Heights, 175; St. Peter Lutheran, Arlington Heights, 68; St. John Lutheran, Mount Prospect, 7.

St. Mary's, Buffalo Grove, 67; Our Lady of the Wayside, Arlington Heights, 160; St. Raymond's Catholic, Mount Prospect, 129; St. Colette Catholic, Rolling Meadows, 76; St. Emily Catholic, Des Plaines, 93; Queen of the Rosary, Elk Grove Village, 70.

St. Zachary Catholic School in Des Plaines has not yet had a graduating class.

In 1950 the Dist. 214 survey indicated 293 students entering high school and in 1961 there were 2,090 students.

Total enrollment in the grade schools within the high school district was 42,586 this year, 27,686 in 1961 and 3,042 in 1950. Arlington Heights Dist. 25 continues to be the largest grade school district.

White Sox Offer First Teen Night

Chicagoland's teen - agers will be guests of the Chicago White Sox July 1 at the club's first Teen Night program of the 1966 season.

An on-the-field dance contest, personal appearances of recording stars, a disc jockey autograph party, and a pre-game show at home plate are among the features planned by the Sox.

The White Sox will offer a special ticket price to teens, with box seat tickets selling for $2.50 and reserved seats $1.40. General admission tickets will be 75¢.

The White Sox will play the Boston Red Sox following the Teen Night program at 8 p.m.

DISCUSSING plans for the forthcoming general election campaign at a meeting held for suburban Democratic committeemen are Oliver C. Dilks of Palatine Township, Cook County Assessor P. J. Cullerton, James Stavros of Wheeling Township and Arthur J. Haggenjos of Barrington Township. The meeting was held at the Bismarck Hotel in Chicago.

Dear Mr. Henry:

We at Right Girl, Mr. Henry, want to thank you and your staff for the many courtesies you have extended to us in the past.

The first quarter of 1966 saw Right Girl Temporary Service, Inc. exceed all previous sales figures for your area.

The ARLINGTON DAY played a major part in our growth because of the fine results we obtained in this period in recruiting temporary and part-time office workers through your classified ads.

Our Miss Jane Nelson who supervises the Right Girl office located at 3200 Dempster (across from Luthern General Hospital) extends a welcome to all women in the area to come in and discuss the many interesting opportunities available through part-time and temporary work.

College students and teachers who are seeking vacation and summer work are most welcome.

Sincerely yours,

CALL Right Girl FOR A BRIGHT

Mr. John T. Boyd. President of Right Girl Temporary Service is well aware of the results that the classified columns of Day Publication offer. As a result of Right Girls use of the classified columns of the northwest suburbs DAILY newspapers, Arlington Day & Prospect Day record sales were enjoyed for the first part of 1966.

This further points out the important roll that a daily newspaper provides a businessman as well as all the people in this great growing area from Parkridge west to Barrington.

The staff photographer of Day Publication found it rather difficult to catch the manager of Right Girls Des Plaines office manager, Miss Jane Nelson when she wasn't busy. He finally had to settle for a picture of her conducting business as usual. This suburban office of Right Girl is located across from the Lutheran General Hospital at 3200 Dempster on the east side of Des Plaines.

Plan to Depress Tracks Turned Down

The Arlington Heights Plan Commission last night declined approval of a proposal to eventually depress the Chicago & North Western Railway tracks through the village.

The proposal was part of the Master Thoroughfare Plan for the village prepared by Tec-Search and Associates.

A second concept of the plan in connection with the development of the downtown business district was approved by the commission. This is the "loop" system of traffic flow, or the "core concept" to facilitate traffic flow around the downtown area.

In rejecting the proposed depression of the railroad tracks, commission member Charles Catlin said he felt the plan was not feasible.

"From an engineering standpoint, such a project would be unfeasible," he said. "Also, it has been evidenced that such a project would lack any economic advantage to the downtown business district or to the village in general."

The estimated costs of the depression of the tracks run between $30 million and $50 million.

Catlin moved that alternatives to the depression of the railroad be considered.

"I move that the commission recommend at this time an underpass of the railroad tracks and Northwest Hwy. be constructed at Arlington Hgts. Rd. as part of an alternate solution with consideration given to additional underpasses including a connection of Sigwalt and Kensington," he said.

The motion was carried by the commission.

Tec - Search representative Don Peto explained that the "retail core" referred to in the report was an area bounded by Vail, Eastman, Evergreen and Sigwalt.

He said the area would be designed mainly for pedestrian traffic, with parking arranged and pedestrian walkways placed so as to discourage but not prohibit auto traffic.

Peto said the result would be an area not unlike a large shopping center, where shoppers would walk from store to store rather than drive.

"Certainly, we cannot expect to have the downtown area compete with Randhurst and other large developments, but we can, by this method, make a convenient community shopping area and also attract business useages not presently contained in the area," he said.

He added that if the area can be shaped into a concentrated, cohesive unit, greater commercial development will occur.

In the Tec-Search report on the Master Thoroughfare Plan, the depression of the railroad is a major portion of the development of the downtown business district. Commission members voiced concern on how much of the plan could be salvaged if the tracks remain at grade level.

Peto said that when the plan was designed, it was understood that, even if the depression were approved, it may never become a reality.

"With a few relatively minor alterations," he said, "I would estimate that the plan is 95 per cent salvagable if the tracks are not depressed."

Plan Commission Chairman Harold Carlson stressed at the hearing that plans approved or disapproved at these meetings on the Master Thoroughfare Plan are not always of immediate concern.

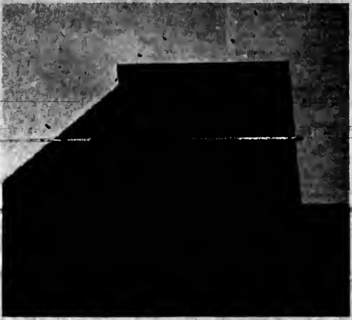
"This plan is a guideline for the future," he explained. "We wish to provide and preserve space for development in the next 10, 15 or even 20 years."

There is, however, another aspect of more immediate nature in the plans, he said.

"We must get going on the revitalization of the downtown business district. Each day we delay, local taxpayers are penalized by tax monies lost to other areas."

The Plan Commission will meet in July to conduct further discussion on the Plan.

Bees Attack Home



Thwarted in their attempt to invade the Bojan home at 1355 S. Dunton bees regroup their forces outside the Bojan chimney. The exterminator, expected today, promised to cut short the campaign.

Busy Visitors Create An Eviction Problem

The bee is a social insect-- a little too social for the William Bojan family at 1355 S. Dunton.

Tuesday a swarm -- countless thousands -- tried to move into the Bajan home and a small scale war has been on ever since.

The bees came down the chimney and tried to take over the Bojan family room.

"They were covering everything -- the drapes and floor were black," Mrs. Maureen Bojan said.

"The miracle has been that so far no one has been stung."

Mrs. Bojan said she first sprayed the room with bug spray.

"That killed about 200, but the rest stayed in the chimney. To get them out we started a fire."

The fire has been burning since Tuesday.

"There's nothing like having a fire going in 90-degree weather," Mrs. Bojan said, "but it's the only way we can keep them out." The Bojans have hung a blanket across the doorway to the family room to cut it off from the rest of the house.

Mrs. Bojan said that Tuesday night so many bees swarmed around the front of the house: "We couldn't use the front door."

"I've had to keep the kids indoors," she said, "there are too many bees out there."

The bees have apparently taken up residence on the outside of the chimney.

"One exterminator told us they were building a nest," Mrs. Bojan explained.

Her husband said it had almost been impossible to get an exterminator who would take on the job of getting rid of the bees.

"No one around here would do it," he said. "As a last resort we got an exterminator in Glencoe. He's an expert on bees and wasps."

The Bojans expected the expert to begin the job today.

Day Papers Name Smith Ad Chief

Robert C. Smith has been promoted from classified advertising manager of Day Publications to the newly-created position of general sales manager.

In his new capacity Smith will be in charge of all advertising in The Arlington Day, The Prospect Day and the weekly shopper, Market Day.

In announcing the appointment, K. S. Johnson, general manager of Day Publications, said, "Our papers have reached that point of acceptance where a co-ordinator for advertising has become necessary."

"Bob Smith," he said, "has a fine record of performance and experience. In the short time our publications have been in existence his accomplishments as head of our classified ad department have been outstanding."

BEFORE coming to Day, Smith operated his own advertising service. Prior to that he was classified ad director of the Des Moines Register and Tribune. He served earlier in the same capacity with the Waukegan News - Sun.

ROBERT C. SMITH

Smith, 36, is a native of La Crosse, Wis., and attended La Crosse State Teachers College. He enlisted in the Army in 1947 and served for 18 months, most of that time on the staff of Gen. Douglas MacArthur in Tokyo as a technical sergeant.

He is a member of the Newspaper Advertising Executives Assn., the Mississippi Valley Classified Advertising Managers Assn. and other newspaper organizations.

Smith and his wife Marcilee live in Waukegan. They have two children, Robert, 14, and Cindy, 8.

Turn On Those Lights

Gov. Otto Kerner's official traffic safety coordination committee has urged Illinois motorists to turn on the headlights of their autos during daylight hours of the July 4 holiday period which officially begins at 6 p.m. Friday.

"The display of headlights during the daylight hours of the long holiday weekend will serve as a reminder to motorists to exercise extreme caution," Kerner said.

Decision On Cellar Delayed

A plea by Cellar owner Paul Sampson to have his teenage nightclub at Salem and Davis opened while a decision on the re-licensing of the establishment is being considered was rejected Wednesday by Arlington Heights Village Manager L. A. Hanson.

The Village Youth Council Tuesday recommended that the Cellar be re-opened, but Hanson said he wished to confer with Jack Siegel, attorney for the village, before he makes a final decision.

One of the main judgments he said he wished to make was the possibility of granting the spot an annual rather than the present weekly license.

Sampson said he would gladly re-open under the old licensing arrangement until the new request is considered, but Hanson said no.

"I want to consider this and several other problems all at once," he said.

Sampson said the delay is hurting him financially.

"I am going into my third week of non-operation" he said. "There are bills to be paid and this is not helping matters."

Hanson indicated it would be next Wednesday or Thursday before a decision would be made.

May Fines Total $4,177

Arlington Heights ranked third in fines collected during May in the north suburban 2nd Municipal District of the Circuit Court with $4,177. Skokie was first with $10,063.

The total collection for the district was $37,720 all of which will be returned to the municipalities.

Most of the fines were the result of traffic offenses.

The total collected in Arlington Heights so far in 1966 is $20,368.50.

Recognition

Cpl. Kenneth E. Rackow of Palatine will be one of eight state policemen receiving certificates of recognition this week for outstanding service from Gov. Otto Kerner. They will be honored at the seventh annual awards banquet sponsored by the State Police benevolent group tonight in Springfield.

Water Fine For Sandpiles, Not Much For Drinking

Arlington Vista youngsters benefited from the water problems that beset their parents Wednesday. They had pop to drink, couldn't take a bath, and - from the fire hydrants there flowed white sand just like the sand at Waikiki Beach in Hawaii -- ideal for a sand box.

Sand Still Plagues Vista Area

BY GEORGE HAMILTON

Residents of Arlington Vista thought their water problems would be over Wednesday. But . . .

The subdivision's only well had begun producing a fine white sand along with the water, creating havoc with faucets, valves, meters and water-using appliances.

So the Arlington Heights Public Works Department disconnected the well and tied the Arlington Vista water lines into the village mains.

The work was completed Wednesday afternoon, and a man in a public works department truck went from door to door telling everyone to "let the water run from all the faucets until it comes through clean."

BUT HE hadn't reckoned with the little screens that had been supplied with all the faucets in the homes. The sand began to collect against them and before long water was spraying in all directions.

Mrs. Ray Kielack, 1709 Rosehill, called The Day to report that water had run all over the bathroom floor and into the basement. "And the kitchen faucets won't turn off now. We just put new valve seats in them, too."

Mrs. Kielack was concerned about the effects of the sand upon her water softener, as were many of her neighbors. She called Village Manager L. A. Hanson, who promised to have someone come out "right away." A man did stop by about three hours later, to inform the Kielacks that another man would be out in "a day or two to check everything."

Apparently most of the casualties from the sand will be the water softeners, either from jammed valves or clogged resin beds. Many had to be disconnected when they became inoperative.

The public works department has kept busy disconnecting jammed water meters, but housewives who still had a water meter in operation were wondering Wednesday whether the village will ask them to pay for all the water it told them to run from the faucets.

W.N.W.C. Using New Antenna

The station's old 256-foot tower was a casualty of the tornado. Since the storm the station has been transmitting from the 75-foot stub of the tower.

The new tower rises 320 feet above the center. The station's transmitters are still located in its old offices at 2108 N. Arlington Heights Rd.

Wayne Smith, the station's Chief engineer and general manager, expects to move into new offices at the center October 1. The ground breaking will be in about ten days, he said.

THE STATION is the first company to move into the 350-acre industrial park. The station office will be south of Dundee Rd. at 120 W. University Dr.

According to Smith, the station has already received permission from the F.C.C. to increase its wattage from 1,000 to 3,000 when it moves into its new offices.

Kenroy, Inc., are developers of the site. The Rossetti Construction Co. and the Milburn Engineers have already begun construction on the improvements at the center.

Lawyer Found Not Guilty On Driving Charge

Nat T. Burfeind, 1130 N. Harvard, was fined for speeding on Central Rd. east of U.S. 14 last March.

Judge Robert Chapman Buckley, sitting in place of Judge Simon S. Porter, heard the case on its second continuance.

Attorney John Dooley of Rolling Meadows argued Burfeind's case.

Cash, Checks Taken

The theft of about $268 in cash and checks was reported Wednesday to Arlington Heights Police.

R. A. LaVernway, 314 W. Maude, said the money was in a grey metal box on a kitchen table of his home. He said the door was opened early this morning by his daughter and apparently the thief entered the kitchen through the unlocked door while the kitchen was empty.

Elk Grove Loans

Four loans, totalling $297,500 for the construction of four warehouse buildings in Elk Grove, have been arranged by the Heitman Mortgage Co.

Open All Summer

All divisions of the Circuit Court of Cook County will be in full operation throughout July and August for the first time in the history of the court.

Chief Judge John S. Boyle credited the air conditioning of the Civic Center which houses many of the courts for making possible the summer-long operation.

According to Judge Boyle, the court has reduced the personal injury backlog to the point that now 50 per cent of the cases are less than two years old and 87 per cent less than four. Formerly the courts were more than five years behind in personal injury cases.

Police Warn: No Fireworks

Police have issued a warning on the use of fireworks in the village during the July 4 "firecracker season."

Police Chief L. W. Calderwood said persons caught buying, selling or possessing fireworks of any kind are liable to fines up to $500 or jail terms up to 90 days, or both.

"This is no laughing matter," he said. "It is a dangerous business and could very easily result in serious injury or the loss of an eye."

Calderwood said the ban includes such so-called "safe" items as flares, smokers and sparklers.

The traffic in fireworks has increased in the area as the holiday weekend approaches. Detectives said so far they have confiscated more than 1,000 small firecrackers and more than 500 of the larger, more powerful M-80 variety.

"I just want to make it clear right now," Calderwood said, "that it will go especially hard on persons caught selling these items. We won't tolerate traffic of this sort in the village."

Obituaries

Mrs. Borchardt died in the Lutheran Home June 27. She is survived by a son William of Chicago.

80 Boy Scouts Looking For a Good Turn

These Scouts need used uniforms -- particularly scout shirts. They all live at Maryville Academy in Des Plaines and are either orphans or wards of the state.

"We need anything we can get in the way of scout paraphernalia," Scoutmaster John Miller said.

"But in exclusion of all else, we need scout shirts most," he said. "We would like the shirts so the boys can begin to look like scouts."

He said a cleaner has volunteered to clean the shirts and a women's club would do any sewing needed.

"We would buy them ourselves," Miller said, "but we cannot afford so many shirts."

Miller, four assistant scoutmasters and 10 high school juniors from St. Viator's started Troop 238 at Maryville in March. They have all taken a pledge to work with the troop for at least two years.

"This way we can give the scouts a feeling of continuity," explains Miller. "They've had enough of seeing new faces every week."

Miller, who lives at 120 N. Kenilworth, Mt. Prospect, is an engineer for the Custodis Construction Co., Chicago. He hopes to expand the troop during the next year to include the almost 150 boys at Maryville who are in the Scout age range, 11-14.

"To do this we need more leaders," he said. "We'd be willing to train anyone who is willing to help. They needn't have been Scouts."

The troop has already received some scout gear and $300, but much more is needed.

"Much of the money went to registering the boys," Miller said.

What has been the effect of scouting on these boys?

"We can tell the change and so can the nuns (the sisters of Charity of Providence supervise the halls and teach classes at Maryville)," Miller said. "One of the nuns told me one of our boys offered to clean up the dormitory -- out there this is unheard of."

So far the troop has been out on two hikes and one overnight. The Thursday evening meetings during the summer last an hour and a half. Miller hopes to have the school year meeting time of an hour also lengthened to an hour and a half.

Miller's assistant scoutmasters are Don Cyrier of 325 S. George, Mt. Prospect; Bob Cishek of 1820 Bonita, Mt. Prospect; Joe Crisanti of 580 Warkiki Dr., Des Plaines; and Don Wardell of 4839 W. Drummond Pl., Chicago.

From Mt. Prospect -- Steve Boll of 508 S. Pine, Joe Stanley of 713 S. Louis, Phil Jeuck of 605 S. See-Gwun, Tom Murray of 919 S. See-Gwun.

Why do they give up their time to help these boys?

Tom Zeinz explained it this way: "When Father Eck (Father John Eck, C.S.V., who taught all the youths Geometry) asked for volunteers to help, I jumped at the chance. I had been in scouting for four years and really enjoyed it. This way I could stay in."

Scoutmaster Miller explained: "I get out of it a pretty good sense of satisfaction helping these kids who don't have anyone."

"All we want is to help make good citizens of the boys," Miller added.

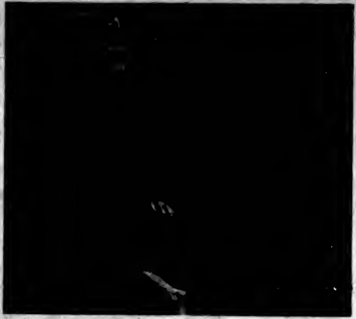
Anyone who has uniforms, scout equipment, or just wants to help out should call Miller at 392-0315, Cyrier at CL 9-2441, or Zeinz at CL 3-6321.

'Flying Machines' In Show

Area residents will have a chance to recapture the flavor of the youthful days of flight--the era of the barnstormers--July 9 and 10 at DuPage County Airport.

The Antique Airplane Association, in co-operation with William Donoghue, airport manager, is sponsoring the airshow. There will be stunt and percision flying, spot landings and comedy flying.

Antique airplanes, racers, home builts, sailplanes, and balloons will both fly and be on display. This is the Third Annual Airshow at the one-half mile West of Highway 59 on North Av., Route 64, near St. Charles. Admission for adults is $1.50, for children under 12, free.



Maybe the water was full of sand, but it was also real cool!

Sand in Water Clouding 'Vista'

LATE Wednesday the water department was assuring Arlington Vista residents that the water was safe to drink. If it was, it certainly didn't look appetizing. A Day reporter took a quart jar sample of the water back to the office. Four hours later, a quantity of sand, dirt and what appeared to be flakes of iron had settled out, but the water never did get completely clear.

Mrs. Frances McGrail, 1627 Rosehill, said "We're not drinking any of that. I guess I'll have to get a supply of pop for us."

IN THE McGrail basement, the disconnected water meter was on the floor, with a little pile of white sand around it. Nearby was the water softener, clogged with sand. Mrs. McGrail said "we started calling about this over a week ago, but the village kept telling us the water was all right, that something was wrong with the water softener."

For the youngsters of Arlington Vista, the crisis may have seemed like a good thing. Besides pop to drink instead of water, many got to cool off in the water flushed from fire hydrants. And as the white sand collected in the streets, the kids filled wagons and pails and took the sand home to back yard sandboxes.

Board Boosts Limit

Dist. 214 board of education has approved a recommendation that the administration make purchases up to $1,500 or less without preliminary authorization other than the provision of funds within a budget category.

The previous policy provided that purchases up to $200 could be made at the discretion of the administration without board approval.

The Village of Arlington Heights adopted an ordinance to amend the Municipal Code which deals with the powers and duties of the village manager, allowing him to make purchases up to $1,500 or less without preliminary authorization.

The administration feels that certain items are considered "basic" and "normal" to the operation and can be made without specific attention of the board.

59 Years Together . . . 'It's Been a Nice Life'

BY JERILYN WATSON

Today is an important one in the Arlington Heights home of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard S. Harmer.

For the Harmers, who live at 323 S. Walnut, it marks 57 years since they were united in marriage in Manistee, Mich.

Today three children, six grandchildren and two great grandchildren later, they're happy about the whole thing.

"It's been a nice life," said Bessie Harmer, a school teacher for 59 years. "Now I think we'll try to be a little quieter."

She hesitated a moment. "But we're really not very quiet -- we go out all the time."

HARMER, a retired hydraulic and electrical engineer, is a Mason. Mrs. Harmer, who substitute taught in public schools for 12 of the 14 years the couple has lived in Arlington Heights, is busy with the Eli Skinner Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution and the Eastern Star.

The couple helped organize the Over-Fifty Club in Arlington Heights and attend the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in the village.

The Harmers will celebrate their anniversary at a bridge party Saturday in their home.

"WE'RE HOPING that our granddaughter in Elk Grove can come," said Mrs. Harmer. "But she has a new baby, and you know how it is with having a new baby."

The other members of the Harmer brood are scattered throughout the country, Mrs. Harmer said.

"It's just like my husband and me," she said. "Because of his work, we lived in many states and in Canada.

"When we first came to Arlington, people used to ask us where we were from," she recalled. "I'd have to reply 'everywhere.'"

Approve Bids For Milk, Bread

Bids for milk and dairy products, bread and fuel oil for Dist. 214 were approved by the Board of Education Monday night.

The Borden Co. will supply white and chocolate milk, half and half, whipped cream and cottage cheese. Other bidders were Northwest Suburban Dairy, Heldin Dairy and Sunflower Milk.

Silvercup Bakers, bidding lower than Burny Bros. or National Baking Co., will supply the bread products for the school year.

The Suburban Oil Co., lowest among 12 bidders, will supply fuel oil.

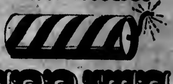
HOW WILL YOU



CELEBRATE THE 4TH?

See a parade...
or perhaps a fireworks display?
A backyard barbecue?
How ever you celebrate we hope it will be a glorious 4th.

We think lots of folks will be picnicking.
We've anticipated their needs.
Our shelves are stocked with everything to make any picnic perfect.

Here's the best part:
No matter what you buy,
no matter who makes it, if A&P sells it, A&P guarantees it.

We guarantee everything... except the weather.
We're sorry about that–but we'll do this:
With you, we'll wish for a perfect day.
Lots of us will be picnicking too!

Fourth in a Series

Section 13, Will It Help Cook County?

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fourth article in a five part series discussing the proposed changes to the Illinois revenue article which will be presented to the voters in "Blue Ballot" form at the Nov. 8 general election.)

BY JACK A. VANDERMYN

While Cook County is a part of the state of Illinois, it has historically operated under regulations different than the other 101 counties of the state.

The area of taxation, Cook County is one instance. Section 13 of the proposed amendment to Illinois' ancient revenue article seeks to make legal a practice of de facto (in reality) classification of personal property that has long gone unquestioned.

If the revenue article is adopted by the voters at the polls in November, it will give Cook County the right to levy taxes on real estate based on classification of that real estate rather than uniformly as is now the constitutional provision.

In Cook County different types of property are assessed at widely different rates of fair market value. These taxation ranges are from approximately 37 per cent for single family dwellings to 75 per cent for industrial and commercial properties.

In reality, this is a method of assessment that attempts to turn a property tax into an income tax by levying a higher rate on income producing property.

The language of the present revenue article, written in 1848 and adopted into the constitution in 1870, leaves little doubt as to the illegality of the system as now operated in Cook County.

PRIOR TO 1961, no one seemed concerned about Cook County's refusal to obey the law and observe the intent of the Illinois Constitution.

The system as practiced in the county provided the needed revenue, gave the home owner a tax break, and courts of law turned their blind side to the violations, if indeed such violations could be proven.

Then, in 1961, the railroads protested that their property was being assessed higher than residential property, in violation with the intent of the taxation law.

The courts agreed and millions of dollars in tax refunds were awarded to the railroads. This matter is still in court on appeal.

TAX EXPERTS believe that the court rulings being handed down now mean that there will have to be a change in the revenue article, exempting Cook County from taxing real property uniformly, or chaos in the county will result.

If these court rulings are applied in Cook County, here are the alternatives. If housing taxes are to remain at the same low level, taxes on business and commercial property would have to be reduced, causing a tremendous loss of tax revenue to the county.

The other alternative, of course, would be to raise residential tax assessments to the level of business and commercial property. This, however, is not practical politically.

By legalizing current practices, section 13 of the revenue article amendment seeks to avoid any drastic readjustments in populous Cook County.

AGREE WITH the current practice of classification of property in Cook County or not, most experts realize that to change the current practice is neither a practical nor political possibility.

Opponents to section 13 do not quarrel with the intent of allowing Cook County to classify property. They believe it does not contain the legal machinery to accomplish those goals.

Opponents say that section 13 fails to clarify property classification and does not establish any general framework for a future classification system.

It would be strictly the responsibility of the county assessor to prove that a de facto system does in fact exist and to establish future classifications.

Since the section does not outline any general categories of real property, classes could be limitless in number.

Some opponents of the article go as far as second guessing the Illinois Supreme Court by labeling the provisions of Section 13 so ambiguous that it would be invalidated by the state's highest judicial body.

In the past, second guessing the supreme court has been a hazardous, at best, pastime.

BOTH opponents and proponents agree that it would be political suicide for the Cook County governing authorities to follow the present constitutional provisions, despite the fact that more and more industries are following the railroads lead by taking these matters to court for settlement.

They agree that some legislation to clarify the present system is mandatory. They do not agree that the proposed revenue article amendment provides these changes to the satisfaction of all concerned.

In the final analysis, the citizens of the state of Illinois will make this judgment. In tomorrow's final article in this series, the amendments will be briefly summarized and pro and con statements being widely circulated throughout the state will be discussed.

Vantage Point

... by Jack Vandermyn

Let the politicians go their way and we will be happy to go ours.

Just let the politicians leave us alone and we will be happy.

Politics and professional business do not mix.

These are all too familiar platitudes about politics and business, parroted by businessmen who do not realize just how critical political participation is to their way of life.

The Illinois State Chamber of Commerce — and for that matter many local chambers of commerce — have long recognized the need for businessmen to participate in politics.

After all, politics and government are among the biggest of businesses in the nation. Sound business practices at the government level mean in the long run a sounder national economy and better tax climate for businessmen to prosper.

The state chamber sponsored a seminar in Chicago on Tuesday during which several business and political leaders discussed ways and means to increase business participation and interest in government.

Speakers from throughout the nation representing the cream of the business and political committee were on the program.

Heading the program were Jesse M. Unruh, speaker of the assembly of the state of California and Illinois' speaker of the house, John Touhy.

Keynoting the conference from the business community were Edwin Hyde, president, Miller & Rhodes, Inc., Richmond, Va. and Dwight Scott, director of government relations for the National Biscuit Co., New York, N. Y.

SCOTT'S address probably held most interest for the businessman in small to medium size communities. He told about problems confronted by business and industry in Richmond because of an archaic form of municipal government that spent more time fighting internal political battles than directing the municipality.

Scott told of the formation of a group called, "Richmond Forward." This group was financed by the leading business and industries of Richmond and attracted a membership of 6,000.

The group's first project was to elect city councilmen who projected business and industry goals compatible with the best overall interests of the community.

This in itself is a difficult task because what is best for the citizens is not always best for business, especially in the area of zoning and municipal planning.

And if "Richmond Forward" was going to be successful, it had to appeal to a broad base of the voters, not just to those in the key roles of the business and industrial community.

IN 1964, "Richmond Forward" fielded a slate of nine candidates for city council seats and was successful in electing six.

This success, remember, came in the organization's first organized campaign, against a political establishment of the municipality that had long been in absolute power.

It is interesting to note that of the six candidates elected by the group, one was a woman, one a Negro, one an attorney and three business leaders in finance and manufacturing.

IN THE last election, seven of the nine "Richmond Forward" candidates were elected, assuring the group of continuity in office — a vital phase of good government operation.

Perhaps the most impressive thing "Richmond Forward" accomplished was attracting qualified candidates to serve in public office.

Hyde said it was doubtful that many of the organization's candidates would have sought office at the municipal level without the support of "Richmond Forward."

In Arlington Heights, the Caucus Party serves much the same purpose of "Richmond Forward," encouraging candidates of high caliber to seek municipal office with a broad base of community support.

CERTAINLY, we encourage citizen participation in politics at all levels. A concerned business and professional community assures good municipal government.

We are asked many times whether we find it boring spending so much time covering municipal affairs. Our answer is always the same. At no point is government closer or of more concern to the people than at the municipal level.

Our career, mainly covering small governing bodies in municipalities has been very satisfying. Boring? Never. The one thing about this type of reporting is that you never know what is going to happen next.

Telephone Co. Expansion Announced

A major expansion and service improvement program for Illinois Bell Telephone Company in the Arlington Heights - Mt. Prospect-Rolling Meadows area was announced today by local manager Ed Hardy.

A two-year program, including construction of a two-story and basement brick addition to the telephone building at 106 West Eastman St., will provide new equipment and office space to handle the ever-increasing telephone needs of the Arlington Heights area. The entire project over the next several years, including building construction, alterations, dial equipment and associated items will cost about $2,000,000, Hardy said.

Designed to cover the rear portion of the present building, the addition will extend the office 40 feet along Vail Street. It will include 13,680 square feet of floor space. The exterior will be limestone and brick to match the existing building.

The first floor of the building addition will house dial equipment, as well as part of the business office, Hardy reported. The second floor will provide space for expansion of operating departments and additions of operator and information service positions as needed, he said.

To keep up with the surging growth of the Arlington Heights area, new dial equipment with a capacity of 7,500 additional telephone lines will be put in operation. This fall, 4,000 new lines will be opened, and 3,500 more lines will become available late next year, Hardy said.

THE FIRST visible sign of the improvement program is an 8-by-26-foot trailer that recently arrived from Peoria and is temporarily parked on a specially erected platform in the parkway beside Vail Street just north of Eastman.

The trailer houses two diesel generators, essential to assure uninterrupted telephone service during a power failure, Hardy explained. The two generators each capable of producing 250 kilowatts of electric power, will replace two 100-kilowatt generators presently located in the basement of the office, he said.

"A telephone system operates on battery power," the manager explained. "Normally the batteries are constantly being recharged by commercially supplied power. But during a power failure, generators are needed to keep the batteries charged."

"When tornadoes knocked out power lines in Arlington Heights on June 9, our emergency generators swung into operation, but all the power they could produce was needed to keep the community's present telephone system in operation," Hardy noted.

"With the continuous growth in demand for phone service in the area, we realized last fall we would need even more generator capacity and decided to order the new, larger generators.

"The new generators furnish 500,000 watts of power-- enough electricity to operate 8,300 sixty-watt light bulbs. These generators will not only provide continuous telephone service, but also lights and ventilating equipment to provide safe and comfortable conditions for the people working in the telephone building," Hardy noted, adding, "the trailer and generators together weigh about 13 1/2 tons.

The new generators will be connected within about two weeks, Hardy said, and the smaller ones will be moved to Illinois Bell's Downers Grove office.

"The new generators can't be put inside until the building addition is constructed. When the new quarters are ready some time next year, we'll move the generators into the building. Then the trailer will be removed, and the parkway will be restored to its original condition," Hardy said.

"After the generators are connected they will be tested one hour each week to make sure they're always in working order. They are muffled, so the noise level is low. But we'll make sure the testing is done at a time when it won't disturb neighbors," he added.

CONSTRUCTION of the building addition will begin in August with occupancy expected next spring, Hardy said.

To accomodate information service users, four new information positions will be installed even before the office addition is completed, Hardy said. "We want to be able to continue providing the speedy, efficient service we're used to giving," he said.

Illinois Bell also has leased the second floor of the building at 116 West Eastman St., adjacent to the office, Hardy said. When the leased space has been renovated and a passageway between the two buildings had been constructed, some of the business operations will be moved there, he continued.

Illinois Bell moved into the present Arlington Heights office in 1952, Hardy noted, and the spectacular climb of telephone service in the area required the building to be enlarged in 1955 and again in 1959. Currently 300 persons work in the building.

A new generator waits for installation in the telephone company building, 106 W. Eastman, Arlington Heights. This generator and another just like it will supply emergency electrical power for the Arlington Heights - Mount Prospect - Rolling Meadows area.

You're not the only one wondering how come Bobby Kennedy gets so much good publicity!"

CARE's History

On May 11, 1946, at the port of Le Havre, France, a little package stamped with the initials "CARE" arrived containing food for victims of World War II.

It marked the beginning of an outpouring of people-to-people assistance unmatched by any privately sponsored organization in history.

In the 20 years since then, CARE has delivered more than $798 million worth of supplies in 64 million packages to the needy in 64 different countries, plus countless special shipments.

Public contributions have accounted for $211.5 million of that total; the balance is the value of U.S. government donations of farm surpluses.

Though food still represents 90 per cent of CARE's shipments -- it will feed 40 million people in 36 countries in 1966 -- its Self-Help and MEDICO programs are attempting to enable the world's impoverished to ultimately feed and support themselves by improving their health, education and work skills. For example:

- In Latin America, 96 rural schools for 10,000 children have been or are being built with CARE construction materials.
- CARE-MEDICO doctors and nurses are treating 600,000 people a year and giving medical training to local people in hospitals in 10 countries.
- Plows, hoes and other farm tools have filled 90,000 CARE packages sent to 637,000 farmers.
- CARE has delivered enough woodworking tool kits to train and equip 161,000 men and boys to earn their living as carpenters.

Headquartered in New York, CARE offers 70 "standard" packages which donors can purchase and have sent abroad in their name -- from $1 food parcels or students's school kits to $115 machines for making construction blocks.

Letters to the Editor

'Don't Take Cellar Away'

Editor:

This is a copy of a letter I sent to Mr. Leonard A. Hanson, village manager:

Recently articles concerning the Cellar have appeared in the Arlington Day. I have lived in Arlington Heights for five years, during my so-called "teen period." Until the opening of the Cellar, this town was considered "dead" by the teen-age crowd. In New Jersey, where I lived before moving to Arlington Heights, recreation centers were provided for the young people by the city. These places were mainly dance clubs since dancing is what the majority of the teenagers enjoy today. No such place had been provided by the Village of Arlington Heights until the opening of the Cellar (a privately owned club) a few years ago.

To me, the Cellar is the greatest place Arlington Heights has ever known. It provides the chance to meet new people from different areas, and a meeting place for Arlington Heights teens. By closing the Cellar, you would be destroying what you are trying to achieve. Your main interest, I believe, is to stop fights and other malicious activity that are supposedly connected with the Cellar. If the Cellar is permanently closed, it will take away the only teen-age activity in this town. Many teens will be wandering the streets and find trouble because there would not be any place for them to go.

If you think you have trouble now, wait until the teens start roaming around Arlington Heights! Wouldn't you rather have the teens meet in a supervised place? The Cellar means a great deal to us, and if you still feel that it's attracting a riotous crowd, why don't you use the remedy given to you before. Why not issue I.D. cards which would be presented at the door to area teens, and, if a person arouses trouble his I.D. card would be taken from him, and he would not be allowed to return.

The Cellar is the best and only thing that has happened to Arlington Heights concerning teenagers. Please don't take it away from us.

You're Slip's Showing; It's Supposed To

Word from the couturiers has leaked: with a few exceptions, it'll be short skirts again in the fall.

If the word is true, we're still stuck with the problem of what to do about underpinnings.

Hosiery and lingerie manufacturers have met the challenge of the hiked hemline in several ways.

As skirts stay up, what's coming down in the fancy trimming. The newest panty girdles have lace ruffles at the cuffs--and the lace is meant to be seen.

Not interested in buying what you consider to be fad lingerie? Okay, sew a few little ruffles on panty girdles left from the long skirt era.

You'll know you're "in" if a friend says: "Hey, your lingerie is showing!"

FOR THE woman who can't stand ruffles, there are panty girdle and stocking combinations -- all-in-ones as well as two-parters -- on which extra long hose snaps under a short panty leg.

The young slip of a thing who needs little figure control is twice lucky. Cantrece nylon panty hose and tights that have built-in "cling" to eliminate sagging will be just for her.

Even traditional hosiery is meeting the challenge of the knack-knee look. Welts are becoming shorter or acquiring lace decoration and other refinements, the theory being that what must show should at least be pretty.

EVEN THE fancy garters of the 1920's are back -- with pussy cat bows.

Caution: It's far wiser for the woman over voting age to resist the temptation to uncover.

If the fact that knees are news puts you into the act, remember that what you put on your legs must co-ordinate with what you put on your back.

When you change the length of your skirt, you change the proportions of everything about your costume. Adjustments must be made to account for this.

To achieve a nonstop look, color co-ordinate stockings, shoes and dress.

HERE'S a point that ought to be taken to heart by young things who like short skirts and high-fashion underpinnings: donate your high heels to the fashion museum.

The success of the short-skirted look, essentially a very young one, depends on standing arrow straight -- but closer to the ground -- in low, substantial heels.

The degree to which we are up-beat, high-style clothing must depend on age and figure.

There's an excellent test of the appropriateness of mod clothing for Miss or Mrs. You.

If you're unmarried, ask your brother, father or fiance how they like an outfit. If you're a wife and your husband has shown good taste about women's clothing, take him along to the dress shop.

He may squirm, but you'll get an honest verdict about how you look in current fashions.

This member of the young set has discovered that sheer textured knee - highs give the proper proportion for a short skirt.

The nonstop look of panty hose (above) is one solution to the problem of what to wear with short - short skirts. The stockings below have short welts, are made of Cantrece nylon.

Hot and Cross?

Spray Away Summer Misery

BY JERILYN WATSON
Woman's Editor

The next time you feel hot, grubby and cross -- the classic symptoms of summer heat nerves -- splash in the shower and then splash on summer scents.

The woman who knows how to wear perfume and other fragrances will feel more cool and feminine than her non-scent-wearing sister.

There's a trick to mastering perfume use, though. A pro is the gal who knows how to wear perfume and how to choose scents most appropriate for hot, muggy days. She also saves money by not buying out-of-season fragrances, those that become overpowering as the temperature climbs.

SOME perfumes are suitable for all seasons, such as blends of roses and jasmine.

Most attuned to the current season, though, are colognes, toilet waters and spray powders that cool as they cling. When dabbed or sprayed on the back of the neck, wrists, behind the knees and inside the elbows, they can make a woman feel cooler as the alcohol evaporates.

TO GET the most from your fragrance during the summer:

*COOL IT -- by storing colognes and toilet water in the refrigerator.

*FLUFF IT -- powder away heat misery. A fragrant bath powder used after a shower or tub bath helps absorb moisture and makes it easier to slip into undergarments with less perspiration - producing wriggling.

*REPEAT IT -- when retiring at night, keep a spray cologne at your bedside. If your home isn't air conditioned, you'll find a dash of cologne at the hairline or back of the neck can help you relax on a hot evening.

Volunteers Get Awards

St. Peter Dorcas Aid Luncheon

A book review of "This Half of the Apple is Mine" was given by an Evanston woman at a recent salad bar luncheon, sponsored by the Dorcas Aid of St. Peter Lutheran Church.

The book, written by Joyce K. Lebold, was reviewed by Mrs. C. William Applegate.

A Mount Prospect woman received the doorprize at the luncheon, which was attended by 200 area women. Mrs. Earl Pahnke, 211 Stratton, was awarded a centerpiece.

Mrs. Henry Leark, Dorcas Aid president, expressed thanks to all who attended and helped with the luncheon.

MISS LYNCH

Laura Lynch Engaged

Mr. and Mrs. William B. Lynch, 719 S. Ridge, Arlington Heights, announce the engagement of their daughter Laura Lee to William Raasch of St. Petersburg, Fla.

Raasch is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman H. Raasch, 209 N. Dryden, Arlington Heights. He is a chemistry major at St. Petersburg College in Florida.

MISS LYNCH attended the University of Kentucky, where she was a member of Kappa Delta Sorority, and the American Academy of Dramatic Arts in New York, N.Y.

After their Aug. 6 wedding in Arlington Heights, the couple will live in Tallahassee, Fla., where they both plan to attend Florida State College.

Music Student Awards

An Elk Grove piano and voice teacher recently awarded prizes to three of her private students for outstanding performances during the year.

The winners, piano students of Mrs. James B. Roberts, received the awards at a formal recital held recently in the Randhurst Town Hall.

SHARON Meier received a bracelet as the year's outstanding student. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred William Meier, 1237 S. State, Arlington Heights.

Two Elk Grove piano students tied for first - place award among Mrs. Roberts' 33 pupils. They are Janet Hamilton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard K. Hamilton, and Rita Pritchard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger F. Pritchard Sr. Both were awarded plaques.

Five Newcomers

Five babies were born recently in area hospitals to Arlington Heights families.

A daughter, Mary Loretta, was born June 18 in Holy Family Hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Elbow, 722 S. Dunton. The baby weighed 6 pounds 8 ounces and has a year-old brother. Grandmothers are Mrs. M. L. Elbow of Madison, Wis., and Mrs. N. J. Faller of Chicago.

A DAUGHTER was born June 15 in Northwest Community Hospital to Mr. and Mrs. James A. Fagerson, 3 N. Dryden. Jodi Ann Fagerson weighed in at 7 pounds 3-1/2 ounces. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. N. S. Fagerson, 628 N. Chestnut, Arlington Heights, and The Rev. and Mrs. G. M. Ekstrom of Wheeling Ill. Great grandparents are Mrs. E. V. Martens of Arlington Heights, Mr. and Mrs. J. Fagerson of Melbourne Beach, Fla. and Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Ekstrom of Sarasota, Fla.

DAVID Alan Prochaska was born June 16 in Northwest Community Hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Prochaska, 1010 N. Wilshire. He weighed 8 pounds 13 1/2 ounces and has a 2-year-old brother, Andrew, and a 4 year-old sister, Laura. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. George J. Straus and Mr. and Mrs. Edward T. Prochaska, all of Arlington Heights.

A 7 POUND 11 ounce son was born June 17 in Northwest Community Hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Richard L. Horndasch, 506 E. Cherry. The baby, Todd Stephen Horndasch, has two brothers -- Ricky, 7 and Tommy, 5 and a 3 1/2 year-old sister, Jill. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. John E. Cheely of Northbrook and Mr. and Mrs. George Horndasch of Chicago.

A DAUGHTER was born June 26 in Northwest Community Hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Jack Conway, 515 Algonquin. The baby, Kimberly Jo, weighed 7 pounds 6 ounces. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Leimann of Pittsford, N.Y. and Mrs. Margaret Conway of Louisville, Ky. Mrs. Elsie Springborn of Chicago is the great grandmother.

DOCTOR SAYS

Dumping Syndrome

Those who suffer from the dumping syndrome can learn to control the attacks by using a judicious diet low in carbohydrates, avoiding cold fluids and taking methysergide or cyproheptadine. These measures rarely fail but when they do, certain operative procedures may be required to correct the trouble.

Q—My husband has had a duodenal ulcer for 20 years. Recently he lost a lot of tarry blood in his stool and became very weak. The doctor said his ulcer was bleeding. How could he tell without taking X rays?

A — Although there are other causes of blood in the stool, a massive hemorrhage is almost always from a bleeding ulcer, especially if the blood has been exposed to the digestive juices and is tarry rather than bright red. Your husband's long history of ulcer was another clue.

X rays would have shown nothing unless he drank a mixture of barium sulfate and water. In an acute emergency, this would have added to his ordeal and would have furnished little information. When he has had time to regain his strength, his doctor may want to X ray his stomach.

One of the most unpleasant results of the removal of a large part of the stomach is a condition called the dumping syndrome. Some persons with a surgically diminished stomach within an hour or less after eating feel suddenly weak, have a drenching sweat and are dizzy and nauseated. This is because the food in their stomachs is precipitously dumped into the upper small intestine (jejunum) too rapidly.

Second Loss Drops Legion From Lead

BY GARY YEAST

It took only two games - on two consecutive nights - for Arlington Heights to lose its grip on first place in the American Legion baseball standings.

Glenview got an early lead last night over the Big Blue and held off a sixth inning rally to preserve a 4-3 victory at the Glenbrook South High School diamond.

THE LOSS DROPS the local nine to second place with a 6-2 record, one game behind Mount Prospect and Northbrook who are tied for first with 7-1 records.

If Coach Lloyd Meyer's legionaires have any hopes an a share of the league title, they will have to turn back Northbrook tomorrow night at Recreation Park at 6 p.m.

MEYER'S CREW almost pulled last night's game out in the sixth when, trailing, 4-0, they rallied for three runs on four hits. The rally was inspired by Coach Meyer's pep talk before the top of the sixth.

Leadoff man John (Honey Bear) Freidl and John Loughman singled their way to base and Jerry Donahue followed with a triple driving in both boys.

MARK NEWMAN continued the drive with a single after two outs, but Glenview's Greg Croft pitched his way out of the jam by striking out Thad Woodard.

Croft's performance was certainly better than the scorebook indicated. His fast ball whiffed ten legionaires while walking only one. After getting out in front of the batters, Croft used a change up to get the Big Blue off balance. Meyer commented after the game that Croft is a fine pitcher.

GLENVIEW SCORED twice in the first and third. Croft helped his cause in the first with a two run homer. Freidl walked leadoff man Bryan Boyce. After retiring the next two batters, he gave a fast ball to Croft which was hit past the out-stretched glove of right fielder Jim Jorgenson.

The first run scored in the third was on a wild pitch after the batter reached base on an error. Boyce followed with a single and came home on a fly ball by Buzz Avery to center field.

FREIDL GAINED control after the third and kept the Glenview nine in check for the remainder of the game. Only one batter got on base during that span, when in the fifth Boyce got on with a single.

Meyer pointed out after the contest that "You can't play give away baseball and win." He referred to a number of careless mistakes his legionaires made in the early innings.

Meyer will give Jerry Donahue another chance against Northbrook in Friday night's make-up encounter. Since Arlington will play Mount Prospect and Northbrook once more, the winner of Friday's game could go all the way.

Athlete of the Week

Dave Kingman Receives Day Weekly Sports Honor

Mt. Prospect's Dave Kingman has been named the Day Publications' Athlete of the Week for his performance with the Mt. Prospect American Legion baseball team.

THE LANKY righthanded pitcher twirled a pair of one-hitters last week, setting down Park Ridge Blue 4-1 Wednesday and stopping Park Ridge Red 2-1 in eight innings Sunday.

Kingman is now 4-0 in league competition. He has given up only five hits in his four starts and allowed only three runs. The Prospect High School senior was the top righthander on the Knight's varsity baseball team last spring with a 3-3 record. He also played first base when he wasn't on the mound and compiled the Blue's thirdhighest batting average with a .285 mark.

AT 6-5, KINGMAN is also regarded as one of Prospect's most promising varsity basketball candidates.

All athletes are eligible for our Athlete of the Week honor, and readers of the Day are invited to make nominations. Nominations must be in by 5 p.m. Monday, and they may be made anonymously.

THEY MAY be made be telephone, in person, or in writing to our Arlington office at 217 S. Arlington Heights Road. The telephone number is 255-7624.

The number of nominations for any candidate will not determine the selection which is made by the Day sports staff.

Increase Towel Service Charge

An increase in the charge to Dist. 214 students for towel service has been approved by the board of education.

A fee of $3.50 per student for towels will be effective in the fall. The previous charge of $3.25 would not be enough to cover the cost to the district.

Boys' All-Star Tilt Monday at Pioneer

All-star baseball games are scheduled Monday at Pioneer Park by the Arlington Heights Boys' Baseball Leagues.

The league's Senior Division will field an all-star team of players from the second- through sixth-place teams in a game against the first-place team at diamond number-one at 9 a.m.

THE AMERICAN Division All-Stars, representing the south side of town, will meet the National Division Stars, representing the north side, at 10 a.m. at diamond number-three.

The South side all-stars in the Varsity I Division will meet the North side all-stars at 11 a.m. on diamond number-four.

Each team in the divisions involved in all-star play will be represented by a player who will compete for a minimum of three innings.

LEAGUE OFFICIALS have reported that 84 games were postponed by poor weather during the early weeks of the season, causing a jam-up of make-up games and incomplete team standings.

First - half champions have been named in 12 of the league's 15 divisions, though, and the other three will be determined shortly.

THE VARSITY I and Varsity II season's won't be complete until Saturday, and the American Division still has three make-up tilts to complete.

The junior division teams, which complete their season's second half this weekend, are up-to-date in the first-half standings.

First-half champions are:

Division - Team		W	L
Senior	Indians	8	2
National	Cubs	7	3
North White Inter.	Triplets	6	1
South White Inter.	Barons	7	0
South Blue Inter.	Stars	8	0

Local Netter Bows in Finals

Bill Von Boeckmann, Arlington's junior tennis standout, was defeated Wednesday in the final match of Chicago Tennis Center Tourney's 16 and under matches.

His opponent, River Forest's Al Dunton, defeated Von Boeckmann 6-2, 6-2 in the final match.

Both Von Boeckmann and Dunton will travel to the National Boy's Tourney at Kalamazoo, Michigan, on July 31-Aug. 5.

Arlington Park Swim Team Drops Meet to Northbrook

Northbrook spoiled the Arlington Heights Park District swimming debut last night by dunking the local tankers 283-226.

The visiting Brookers bowed to their hosts in the 15-and-under, and 11-12 categories, but cleaned up in the 13-14 and 8-and-under competition. Arlington's girls outscored their rivals in the 9-10 grouping, but the boys failed in that department.

DAN COLLINS was the big noise for Arlington's 15-and-over boys, as he took a first in the 200-yard freestyle event and swam on the winning freestyle relay. Joe Herrity won the 100-yard butterfly and swam on the medly relay quartet. John Erickson contributed to that relay effort and won the individual medley.

Patty Wallerman and Barb Raasch dominated the 15-and-over girls. Patty won the butterfly and backstroke and joined the winning freestyle relay effort. Barb was first in the individual medley and breaststroke and contributed to both relay wins.

Arlington was unable to win a single first in the 13-14 range, and only Don Maguire could manage a second.

SCOTT BALOW captured first in the 11-12 individual medley and backstroke, while Ed Laue was second to Balow in the individual medley and first in the butterfly. Both swam on the victorious freestyle relay team.

Marsha Kalpus was Arlington's high point winner in the girls' 11-12 class, copping blue ribbons in the backstroke, individual medley and freestyle and swimming on the freestyle relay group. Kathy Dalton won the individual medley and the backstroke.

ONE OF THE most lopsided setbacks of the night was suffered by the 9-10 boys, where no one could bring home a first. The girls, led by Sandy Gabler had much better luck in that category. Sandy swam away from the field in the backstroke, butterfly, breaststroke, and freestyle.

Three seconds were the best the eight-and-under boys and girls could muster between them.

Barb Raasch won the 15-and-over girls' butterfly and backstroke events in last night's Arlington Park District swimming meet with Northbrook. Her efforts weren't enough though to save the local tankers from an opening night loss.

Bengals Topple Hawk Nine 6-1

John Merger was Johnny on the spot for the Arlington Heights Boys' Baseball Senior League Bengals yesterday.

Merger went two-for-two at the plate and was the winning pitcher as the Bengals hung a 6-1 setback on the Hawks. Merger collaborated with starter Rick Trahan and Chuck Anger on a four-hitter, while his mates rapped out 10 safeties at the expense of loser Gary McDougall. Trahan also came up with two hits, and Anger succeeded in his one turn at bat. The Bengals' Paul Douglas collected three hits in four trips.

IN VARSITY I action, the Redlegs stopped the Knights 8-5 behind the mound efforts of Dave Landstedt. Greg Everhart was charged with the loss, while Jack Kleisner belted a home run in a fruitless cause.

The Senators evened their second-half slate at 2-2 in the Major League with an 11-8 conquest of the White Sox. Winning pitcher Brad Koerner gave up eight hits, including a home run to Rick Clemans and doubles to Jeff Katz and Pete Ginivan.

The North Blue Intermediate Dragons chalked up their first victory of the second half against four losses with an 8-6 conquest of the Colonels. Jim Dragesku topped Troy Slinkard in the mound department.

In other intermediate tilts, the Ravens slugged the Dons 10-5, the Triplets pounded the Celtics 12-3, and the Solons topped the Bearcats 7-3.

MIKE HOOVER sparked the Ravens' win with a home run, and Jim Beverett contributed a triple. Jeff Seiler was the winning pitcher.

Ray Thorsen's circuit clout was the big blow for the Triplets, while triples came off the bats of Dave Aage and Terry McDonald.

PAT POWERS gave up only one hit last night to pace the North Blue Junior Blues to 19-1 romp over the Larks. Powers aided his own cause with a triple off losing pitcher Tim Loch.

The only other junior game saw the Bees whip the Robins 9-6. Larry Peifer claimed the win, striking out nine and walking five, and Andy Chase absorbed the defeat.

Defer Decision On 214 Insurance

Student accident insurance for the 1966-67 school year in Dist. 214 will be approved at the July 11 board meeting.

The board was expected last Monday to approve a company to handle the insurance. Board member and Arlington Heights insurance agent William Griffith, who was absent Monday, requested Supt. Herold Slichenmyer to ask the board to postpone any decision until he can be present.

The board tabled the item until the next meeting and told insurance representatives that no other bids will be considered.

Aetna, Home, Wesso and Guarantee Trust submitted plans for consideration.

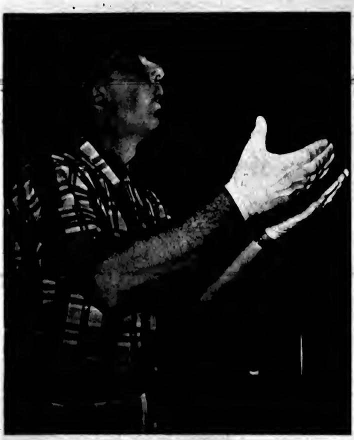
It's Always A Whale of a Sale

Sherry Swart (left), 8 of 431 S. Evanston, tries a little sales resistance on her sister Pamela, 11, who displays her wares of curler bags, stilts and wastebaskets. Pamela was one of the girls sponsoring a "garage sale" on items they made during the year. The neighborhood sale was held at 504 W. Evanston in the garage of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Swanson. The girls planned to set tables on the lawn but the rain forced them to more comfortable quarters.

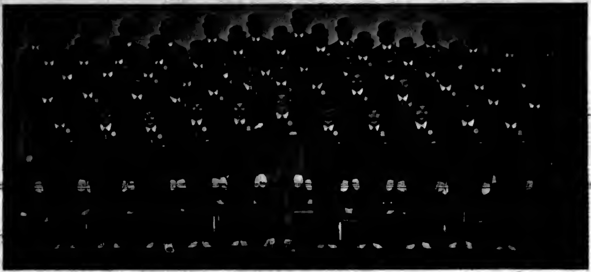
Bubble gum was one of the most popular items at the sale table of Linda Rung (seated), 13, of 440 S. Evanston. Giving the product a test are (from left to right) Jan Brickwood, 420 S. Dale; Judy Thomson, 441 S. Evanston; Gary Rung and Donna Risko of 2504 S. Grove. Three girls sponsored the sale that netted $13 yesterday. The girls made most of the items and sold them to their neighborhood friends.

Kim Andrup, (left) 13, of 528 S. Evanston tries to interest Cathie, 4, and Kenneth 6, Hlavacek of 435 S. Evanston in buying another item but they seem pleased with the plastic pigs their mother bought. Kim was one of the sponsors of the "garage sale" yesterday.

Warming Up For The Big Sing



Once more with gusto Earl Auge pleads as he puts the Arlingtones through rehearsal paces. The group will compete in the SPEBSQSA's 28th Annual Convention and Contest in McCormick Place. Auge of 801 N. Pine, is director of the district winners, the Arlingtones.



The Arlingtones will appear in formal attire for competition at McCormick Place July 9.

The Arlington Heights Chapter will be one of 20 hosting Chicagoland chapters at the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America's 28th Annual Convention and Contests. The event will be held July 5 through 9 in McCormick Place in Chicago.

The Arlingtones, a men's chorus from the chapter, will represent the Illinois District and will sing in the chorus competition Saturday, July 9. Competition will be among 15 choruses, each the winner of their district chorus contest.

The Arlingtones won the Illinois District chorus championship for the third consecutive year last October in Bloomington. In 1964 the Arlingtones placed sixth in San Antonio and in 1965 they placed seventh in Boston, both international contests.

The choirs will be under the direction of Earl Auge, 801 N. Pine., director of music at Niles Township High School East. The Arlingtones will have 45 men on stage. Competition includes two past champions, the Thoroughbred Chorus from Louisville and the Chordsmen from San Antonio.

"LOOKING at the World Through Rose Colored Glasses" is the first of two songs the Arlingtones will sing. Their second song is "Mighty Like a Rose."

Each chorus or quartet must sing two songs. Total singing time must be 240 seconds but not more than 360 seconds. Judges score contestants in five categories: voice expression, harmony, accuracy, balance and blend and arrangement and stage presence.

Competition for quartets will begin Thursday, July 7 with quarter finals in the afternoon and evening for 45 quartets. Friday night the top 20 will sing in the semi-finals. Saturday night the champions from the top ten in the finals will be picked.

Chapter President Ken Stevens of 738 N. Belmont, said the chorus will begin its busy week Sunday, July 3. At the Palmer House, headquarters hotel, they will sing as part of a massed chorus of Chicagoland barbershoppers to welcome International President Reedie Wright from Los Angeles. The combined chorus will be directed by Earl Auge of the Arlington Heights Chapter.

ON JULY 6 the Arlingtones and the West Towns Chorus of Lombard will sing with the Assn. of International Champions Show at the Aire Crown Theatre in McCormick Place. The show will feature eight past champion quartets including the Mid States Four and reigning champions, the Four Renegades, both from the Chicago area. Tickets are still available at McCormick Place for this show and for closed circuit television performances of all contests.

Several members of the local chapter will serve on convention committees and as hosts. Work already has been done by Steen Johnson, 706 N. Wilshire, special projects committee chairman and his committee: Art Tonnesen of Mount Prospect; Vern Bertrand of Wheeling and Jack Musich, Stan Myers, John Hickox and Don Frantz all of Arlington Heights. Publicity chairman is Fred Tullar, 422 S. Vail.

THE SPEBSQSA was founded in 1938 in Tulsa, Okla. The stated purpose is "to perpetuate the old American institution, the barbershop quartet and to promote and encourage vocal harmony and good fellowship among its members throughout the world and to encourage and promote the education of the public in music appreciation of barbershop quartet and chorus singing."

The society currently has more than 30,000 members in every state of the US and in most Canadian Provinces.

The society promotes local, district and international contests for quartets and choruses.

The Arlington Heights Chapter was chartered in 1950 and has more than 75 members. Interested men singers may attend the regular rehearsals held each Monday at 8 p.m. at the Knights of Columbus Hall, 15 N. Hickory.

Sheriff's 'Flying Squad Car'

Sheriff Richard B. Ogilvie (with hand mike) together with Major James McGuire of the Cook County Sheriff's Police (in car) direct operations of the department's new helicopter patrol unit which will operate in the suburban area of Cook County during the summer weekends.

The copter -- first of its kind to operate in the entire midwest -- will act as an operational vehicle in support of ground operations. Unlike the traffic copter which has been in operation for three years -- the "flying squad car" will answer "in-progress" assault, burglary and robbery calls, in addition to general patrol of the county's many forest preserves, quarries, and highways.

Day by Day

You Never Know . . .

By Catherine O'Donnell

The man of the house had worked the night shift for a couple of weeks. He slept right through the accepted noises of a busy household that included four small children.

He just couldn't stay asleep, though, when the noon sun hit the closed drapes. He was bothered so much that he went to the store and purchased a pair of black blinders.

Blinders, in case you haven't made an overseas flight lately or slept on the lower floors of a New York City hotel, are masks without slits for the eyes.

It was wonderful, thought Dad, daytime looked like nighttime. His three year old son made a tippy toe visit into the bedroom to look at his pooped papa. He let out a scream that roused the neighbors from their afternoon siestas.

"Ma," he roared. "Batman's sleeping in Daddy's bed."

An Idea

E.C. Alft, Executive Director of the Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce, has hit the nail on the head.

His comments on referendums in the July issue of the Chamber's Triangle News deserve attention.

He agrees that referendums are essential but he sees no need to make them emergencies that require special elections. He thinks they should be incorporated in the general election once a year.

He explained to Day by Day that such procedure would save time and money and give the taxpayers a chance for selection. One polling place per precinct and one referendum ballot once a year are definitely becoming a necessity in a growing community that still requires so many more taxes.

He blames lack of voter turnout on the fact that people only come out to vote for something they want. He said that too many don't bother voting because they feel they haven't a chance as a minority.

He cited the last referendum vote in which 8,000 voters out of a potential 75,000 to 80,000 voted to pass a $7 million plus issue.

This once a year referendum ballot would be a great project for the League of Women Voters and our elected representatives.

Won't-OO?

The local teens are already readying yells for the new high school which has been named after a tree. Two boys dropped by to say that the new "in" phrase is "Will-oo or won't-oo".

Foster Children

Dan and Mary Healy have just returned from a vacation in Nashville, Tenn. They were accompanied by their four children and two foster children.

The eight drove there shortly after an item appealing for foster parents appeared in The Day. They think that perhaps someone tried to call them while they were gone.

They're at home now for the summer at 821 N. Haddow and anxious for potential foster parents to come and meet their two darling four year old foster children. They can be reached at Cl 3-7272.

Lazy Days

They played bridge, lolled in slow moving boats, left their golf clubs at home, visited a 200 year old windmill in Holland, sipped cool drinks while watching and listening to the colorful dancing waters on the other side of the river, missed the rained-out neighborhood dance and made the whole trip sound so wonderfully relaxing that z-z-z-z-z-z-z-z-z-z-z-z.

MARK SCHWANK, 12, (left) and Nick DiGiorgio, 11, (right) had never met before this picture was taken, but it was friendship from the start. Mark's bicycle was stolen from Pioneer Park Monday. Tuesday Nick found the bike and turned it in to police. Police said Mark could consider himself lucky, because for the past several weeks the department has been handling an average of 15 stolen bike complaints a day. Most of the bikes never find their way back to their owners. Mark, a carrier for the DAY, won the bicycle several months ago for selling 27 subscriptions to the paper. His comment after the recovery: "I guess that would have been a lot of work down the drain."

214 Approves New Mailing List

Acting on a recommendation by E.C. Alft, executive director of the Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce, the Dist. 214 board of education has reviewed its policy of mailing its agenda to organizations.

At the June 13 meeting Alft requested that the Chamber of Commerce be put on the mailing list. The board suggested that the administration prepare a list of organizations to receive the agenda.

At the Monday meeting the board approved a mailing list to include village boards of trustees, park boards, chambers of commerce, elementary boards of education, dist. 214 high schools Teacher-Parent Conference and Boosters' clubs and the League of Women Voters.

THE AGENDA will be mailed to a specific individual who will be responsible for getting the information to other members of the organization.

"Interested citizens are welcome to come to administration center any time to get a copy of the agenda," said Board President Hal Armstrong.

The Slichenmyer Administration Center is located at 799 W. Kensington Rd., Mount Prospect.

You're Invited To St. Jame's Barbecue

Dick White, new president of the Holy Name Society of St. James Catholic Church, barely had time to get used to swinging the gavel before he and the other officers plunged into plans for the society's annual family barbecue.

The barbecue will be held from 4:00 p. m. until 10:30 p.m., Saturday, July 23 in the St. James School parking lot, 841 N. Arlington Heights Rd., with food, beverages and games for all ages.

Others elected to office are Frank Spychala, spiritual vice president; Art Christenson, social vice president; Ray Check, membership vice president; Jerry Janik, treasurer; Bill Bolash, recording secretary, and Jim McDonald, corresponding secretary.

Custom closet boasts a number of storage features—all of them achieved through the addition of a network of shelving and the application of moth-repellent red cedar closet lining. There's room for storage of household woolens and a hanger bar arrangement that accommodates garments of varying lengths. Floor is uncluttered thanks to the row of five storage compartments which divide the closet into "his" and "her" sections.

Convenience In Your Closets

Considering the unimaginative design of most home closets, it is no wonder they literally spawn clutter and disorganization.

A hanger bar and a shelf extending from one wall to the other more often than not represent the full extent of their "built - in" conveniences. Sometimes they're even lighted.

To restore order out of closet chaos doesn't take a great deal of time, talent and money. A little imagination perhaps and a weekend of do-it-yourself carpentry by the home handyman can achieve the desired results.

THE CUSTOM cedar closet shown in the accompanying picture illustrates what can be done. Through the installation of a series of shelves and uprights, full use of all available space is realized. Moth-repellency is added by lining the closet with aromatic red cedar.

Note the double hanger bar arrangement on the right and the clever use of shelving to provide storage for bedding and blankets. The full-length shelf at the top provides storage space for luggage and other large and infrequently used articles.

The shelf network was built with 1 inch x 6 inches cedar lumber. Using three boards in union provides shelves with a depth of 18 inches.

The row of 12 inches x 18 inches storage compartments in the center can be used for off-the-floor storage of shoes or, because the closet is cedar-lined, for storing household woolens.

THE CLOSET reclamation project requires the removal first of all old moldings, brackets and hooks. In other words, strip the closet to the bare walls.

Cedar lining is installed next. This material comes in prepackaged bundles, in boards up to 8 feet long, and usually 4 inches wide. The cedar lining is tongue-and-grooved, a feature which greatly simplifies installation. The pieces are nailed directly to the wall, with no other backing required.

The cedar lining is applied to the wall horizontally, working from the floor up. It's a good idea to fit the pieces together on the floor first, a couple rows at a time, then raise them into position for nailing.

IN constructing the shelf network, the 1 inch x 6 inches cedar lumber can be used as wall cleats and cross-members for the tall uprights. It also supports the three hanger bars.

This closet has more space to work with than most closets. However, many of the same ideas can be adapted to a small closet.

The point is, a closet needn't be just a "space" with four walls and a door. It can be tailored to suit the storage needs of your family.

Site Rezoned for Apts. Over Village Protest

County OKs Area South Of Town

The Cook County Board has voted to rezone for apartment buildings 32 acres of land in an unincorporated area south of Arlington Heights over the protest of the village.

The property is owned by Joanna Gosch, and is between Central and Kirchoff Rds. about 150 feet west of Kennicott.

The Day learned, Thursday that the county board approved the rezoning request on the recommendation of the Cooh County Board of Appeals and also the county board's public service committee.

James Gaughn, deputy clerk of the County Board, said the board's vote will become official in the next day or so, when the minutes of the last meeting are published.

GAUGHN said the vote count was not yet available, but it was enough to override the objections of Arlington Heights. When a village adjacent to an unicorporated area objects to a rezoning petition, the county board must pass the measure with the approval of at least three-fourths of the commissioners.

Village Manager L. A. Hanson said the next move by the village has not been determined, but will be discussed at the next board meeting, July 5.

The petition for rezoning was filed April 15 by Tec Associates which plans a $12 million development of 708 apartment units on the 32-acre site.

The request was for rezoning from R-4 (single-family) to R-6 (multi-family).

ACCORDING to the origiaal petition, Tec Associates wants to put up six buildings; four 4-story and two 7-story. There will be 356 one-bedroom, 304 two-bedroom and 48 three-bedroom apartments.

Also in the plans are two swimming pools and a three-and-a-half acre lake.

Patrolman William SaLee investigates the accident at Dunton and Fremont where two small boys and a teen-age girl were slightly injured when their car (right) plowed into the rear of the station wagon and sideswiped a tree.

Medicare Plan Starts Today

Today is the first day of the Medicare program.

Persons 65 or over who are hospitalized in the Arlington Heights-Mount Prospect area can be assured that Northwest Community, in Arlington Heights, Holy Family in Des Plaines and St. Alexius Hospital in Elh Grove Village are participating in the program.

For Arlington Heights residents who require home visits the outlooh is not so bright.

"NO ONE has been able to tell us how we would recover the cost involved if the village were to become an authorized agency," said Village Manager L. A. Hanson.

"Right now the village is at a standstill. We have no plans. We have been informed about the program but no one could give us satisfactory answers about reimbursement. A questionnaire we received from Cook County seemed to indicate that they could handle it for us," Hanson said.

The Cook County Department of Public Health would be responsible for service to the Mount Prospect residents since the village does not have a public health nurse.

The 1960 village census indicated that five per cent of the total population was 65 or over. Arlington Heights Public Health Nurse, Mrs. Maria Co-

The Bees Are Gone

The swarm of bees that had been camping on the roof of the Bojan house, 1355 S. Dunton, met a quiet end yesterday.

A bee and wasp expert from Glencoe killed the hoard with bug spray. William Bojan said it was well worth the $35 he had to pay to get rid of the insects.

Tuesday the swarm came down the Bojan chimney -- then the bees numbered countless thousands. The Bojans killed many and drove the rest up the chimney, but the bees refused to leave. A fire was kept burning in the fireplace to keep the bees from re-entering.

Bojan said it was a lot cooler in the house yesterday after they put the fire out.

Pets were on parade at Hasbrook Park yesterday. Children who entered the special event received candy bars and winners in special categories received ribbons. The award for the "smartest" pet went to "Gretel" a Weimaraner, who received affectionate hugs from Cindy, 5, Robert, 9 and Ricky, 3. They are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kendall, 716 W. Thomas. (More pictures on page 2.)

2 Children, Girl Hurt In Crash

Two children and a teen-age girl were slightly injured yesterday evening when the driver of the car in which they were riding swerved to avoid a car pulling into her path at Fremont and Dunton.

The car -- driven by Miss Jaya Butler, 18, of 1907 Burke Dr. -- smashed into the rear of a parked foreign station wagon, then sideswiped a tree.

THE TWO children were riding in the back seat. Mark McGovern, 2, of 1907 Burke Dr., bruised his forehead. His brother Gregory, 3, suffered a cut on the right cheek.

Miss Elizabeth Stack, 17, of 4846 W. Jackson Blvd., Chicago, was riding in the front seat. She received a bump on the head and an injured elbow.

All were taken by ambulance to Northwest Community Hospital, treated and released.

THE DRIVER of the second car, Miss Martha Frey, 56, of 550 N. Walnut, an English teacher at Arlington High, was ticketed for failure to yield the right of way after stopping at a stop sign. She is scheduled to appear Aug. 10 in Traffic Court.

The damaged station wagon belongs to Ronald Ribe, of 16 W. Canterbury Dr., the son-in-law of Police Chief L. W. Calderwood.

Paving Of Streets Studied

The Board of Local Improvements and the Village Manager met Thursday night with the Board of Directors of the Lutheran Home to discuss the improvement of streets bounding the home's property.

The home is located on 80 acres of land bounded by Oakton, Kennicott, Thomas and Ridge. Of these, only Oakton is presently completely paved where it touches the property.

The village intends to pave Thomas, Kennicott and Ridge. There is no right of way, however, provided for the streets. The purpose of the meeting, according to Village Manager L.A. Hanson, was an "exchange of ideas on how we can get the projects done to our mutual benefit."

Basically, the village will need a dedication of 40 feet of right of way along both Thomas and Kennicott, and 33 feet along Ridge in order to proceed with the projects.

He quoted an estimated total cost on the three projects at $140,000 if it is done by private contract and $160,000 if the village has to resort to special assessment.

BOLI suggested the following arrangements for financing the three projects:

--The Thomas Street project will cost about $40,000. If the home will dedicate the needed land and pay $23,000, the village will assume the remainder of the cost.

--The Kennicott project will cost an estimated $65,000. If the home will dedicate the land and pay $40,000, the village will pay the remainder.

--The project to pave Ridge will cost about $40,000. If the home will dedicate and pay $23,000, the village will pay the rest.

Hanson reminded the meeting that the projects referred to were for the paving of only the half of the streets where they bordered on the home property.

The cost of the projects does

A Mystery Tenant Living in Tally Ho?

Locked every Friday, the door to a Tally Ho apartment building is open again every Monday. Is there a mystery resident at Tally Ho? Is that his card table inside the door?

Cleaning equipment, used to keep three rooms in a Tally Ho apartment clean. At least the mystery tenant is neat!

BY GEORGE HAMILTON

Is there a mystery resident in the abandoned Tally Ho apartments in Mount Prospect? There could be.

Every Friday the Mount Prospect Fire Department checks the empty buildings at Busse and Rt. 83. When the firemen leave, the doors are closed and locked.

A Day reporter who passes there daily has noticed that the doors are open again every Monday.

Upon exploring the inside of the apartment, the reporter has noticed that three rooms in one apartment have always been locked. The doors were equipped with a secret latch by the builders so that parents could get into a room if a child should lock the door from the inside.

Thursday the Day reporter unlatched the locks to see what was inside those three rooms. Unlike the rest of the building, they have clean, unbroken windows and the floors appear to have been swept clean recently.

Sliding open a door of a closet, the reporter made a surprising discovery.

There in the closet was a step-stool, two brooms, a bottle of window cleaner -- nearly empty -- and a cloth that had been hung on the clothes-hanger rod, obviously to dry.

In contrast to the rest of the building, the cleanliness of the three rooms makes it appear that someone goes there frequently and has been there recently.

And curiously, at the bottom of the stairs, just inside the door, there is a card table.

On July 7 the village of Mount Prospect will appear in Cook County Circuit Court to ask for permission to tear down the buildings, which everyone thinks are uninhabited.

Does Tally Ho have a human tenant in addition to the birds that inhabit the place? Could he be a bird watcher? Will he come forth to protest the village's plan? Maybe we'll find out next week.

Boy on Bike Struck by Car

Wayne Burget, 14, of 1013 N. Race, was injured not seriously when he was struck by a car as he rode a bicycle near Oahton and Chicago Friday.

Burget suffered bruises to his arm and leg but did not require hospitalization.

The driver of the auto was not ticketed, police said.

Gripe Of The Day

My gripe is newspaper boys that deliver The Day by throwing it at the back door without tying it with a rubber band so that the wind can scatter it through the neighborhood. I dare you to print this.

Everything's Wonderful

Sand-in-Water Crisis is Licked

"It's wonderful: they're fixing "everything," said a pleased Arlington Vista housewife.

On this happy note the area's sand - in - the - water crisis seemed to be at an end today.

The fence behind the William Gasser house, at 1713 Lilac Tr., was repaired and the seven foot high mound of dirt was gone from the Gasser backyard. Workmen had knocked down the fence and dug up the yard to shut down the Arlington Vista well which had started pumping sand into many homes in the subdivision.

"The man said they had to send all the way to Chicago to match that stockade fence," declared a happy Mrs. Jeannine Gasser, "and tomorrow he said he would send out a landscaper to replace my shrubs."

Gene E. Willroth, director of public works, promised: "Tomorrow I'm going to send plumbers door-to-door through the subdivision to make any repairs caused by the sand."

The reaction of most of the area residents has been the same as Mrs. Gasser's.

Mrs. Virginia Thomas, of 1928 Cherry Hill Rd., expressed fears that she would not be able to prove the damage to her kitchen ceiling had been caused by the sand.

"I'm no plumber," she said, "but all I know is we hadn't had any trouble until the sand got into the water."

Willroth has promised to send one of the plumbers to the Thomas home today to de-

Sprinkling Curb In Force Again

From noon Wednesday to noon Thursday the village used a record 7,850,000 gallons of water -- and Director of Public Works Gene E. Willroth warned that starting today the ordinance allowing sprinkling only on alternate days would be strictly enforced.

"If people would only comply with the ordinance, we could cut that figure by a million gallons a day," Willroth said.

The ordinance requires that lawns be sprinkled only on odd or even days of the month depending on whether a home address is odd or even. Those with even number addresses sprinkle on even days and those with odd numbers on odd number days.

Willroth explained the reasons for record water usage:

--More people are moving into the village every day, most into new homes and they are trying to start new lawns. New lawns require more water.

--Arlington Vista, due to the shut down of its well, is using 180,000 gallons of water from the main village supply.

Willroth said the Arlington Vista well would be shut down two weeks, maybe longer. In the meantime the subdivision will get its water — some 180,000 gallons a day — from the main village water supply.

"We'll have to go down 640 feet to the pump bowl and clean out the sand," Willroth explained. The water is pumped from the well's pump bowl to the surface. This is where Willroth believes the sand walls of the well caved in.

"You never know how long one of these jobs will take," he said.

During the work Palatine Frontage Rd. from Maple to Buffalo Grove Rd. will be closed to all traffic. The barricades and detour signs were set up yesterday.

burn indicates that some problems might arise.

"WE ARE ready to go with the program but the first step is to become certified. It is hard to anticipate how many calls we will get until the program gets underway," she said.

Mrs. Coburn said that about 65 to 70 per cent of her home nursing patients are 65 or over.

In order to administer the program as a certified agency the village would have to hire additional personnel.

Mrs. Coburn is the only public health nurse for the village and currently is working without the aid of a secretary or sanitarian. The village has been trying to hire a sanitarian who would help to check the public places of business but has not been successful.

An additional health worker would have to be employed if home-health visits by nurses or other health workers.

Two Fires On Railroad Right-of-Way

Two fire calls were answered by the Arlington Heights Fire Department Thursday.

A welder's cutting torch was blamed for a blaze that damaged wooden planking on a signal tower of the Chicago and North Western Ry. Damage was reported as minor at the tower, which is located at 1400 W. Northwest Hwy.

A second alarm on railroad property also kept firemen busy. Grass and railroad ties were burning at Davis and Arthur, causing a great amount of smoke. Cause of the fire was not determined.

not include the installation of storm sewers which would have to be put in on Ridge and Kennicott.

Rev. John M. Kempf, administrator of the home, told BOLI that there were monetary problems to be met by his group.

"We face great problems of funds," he said. "We can't just dig gold out of our property and pay you for the paving."

Hanson said, if the Thomas Street project were to be started on schedule, funds must be deposited by the Lutheran group within 40 days. He said it was the objective of the village to have that part of the paving completed this year.

Rev. W. James Krueger, president of the board of directors of the home, said it would be impossible for that group to act in time to make this objective possible.

"I'm afraid we must ask that you postpone the target date," he said. "We will have to call a special meeting of the Lutheran Home and Service for the Aged, the corporation which governs the home, and this can't be done until late September."

BOLI member Russell Colvin said he felt it would be better if the target date were postponed.

"If we rush things and still don't have the street paved by Oct. 15, we will not be eligible for state motor fuel tax monies," he said. "I feel it would be better to take our time, let the Lutheran Home group discuss the matter, and proceed in the spring."

BOLI agreed and Rev. Krueger said the matter would be taken up at a meeting in September. Hanson suggested that a representative of the village be present at the meeting to answer any questions on the projects.

Hanson said the postponement of the Thomas Street project would in no way affect the target dates on the other two streets.

"We want to finish the paving of Kennicott in 1967 also," he said, "and Ridge as soon after that as possible."

Truck Hits Squad Car In Lot

John H. Crabbe of Des Plaines received three tickets yesterday after he allegedly struck a squad car in a parking lot, then left the scene.

Patrolman Jerry Inch said his squad was parked in the McDonald's lot near Wilkie and Northwest Hwy. When he returned to the car witnesses told him of the accident and gave a description of the truck Crabbe was driving.

Crabbe was picked up shortly afterward at Arlington Park Race Track where he admitted striking the squad. He was cited for leaving the scene of an accident, damage to public property, and driving on a restricted license.

A Siamese cat named "Tina" won the prize for being the "oldest" animal in the pet parade yesterday, at Hasbrook Park. "Tina," 11 1/2 is held by her owner Maureen Dieter, 5 of 1611 N. Ridge. The parade was one of the special events in the Arlington Heights Park District summer program.

Youths Curb Car Break Window

James Dale Jr. of Roselle told police that two youths forced his car to the curb at Goebert and Seegers and broke a window.

Dale said neither he nor a passenger in the auto, Darrell Zemba of Elk Grove Village, knew the vandals or could give any reason for the attack.

Watch Out For Bogus Checks

The chamber has been advised by the police department that checks of Congress Builders, formerly of 420 S. Waterman, Arlington Heights, drawn on the First National Bank of Skokie, should be scrutinized carefully.

The checks are made payable to Margaret Choronzy (1124 Tyrell, Park Ridge) and signed by various people. Seemingly the passer of the checks will present a driver's license and social security card of Mrs. Choronzy, who recently lost both of these identification cards.

Still Studying

By Catherine O'Donnell

The neatly printed sign attached to the maroon convertible parked in the Arlington Market lot announced to all interested observers—STUDEND DRIVER.

ZOOM-M-M

Something new has been added to the same parking lot during the past week. It is a brand new sparkling motorcycle by Zuzuki, the proud possession of Lennie Harriman. Lennie dispenses humor and cheer at the Walgreen Drug Store.

The motorcycle has long been a gleam in Lennie's eye. Last week, he bought it, he said, for transportation to the store from his home on Campbell street in Rolling Meadows. He still doesn't own a black leather jacket and motorcycle boots but he's shopping around for a crash helmet.

The two teens, Jan and Billy, who work in Elmer Fritz' restaurant in the Market, are thrilled and so are the twelve year old twins, Jack and Jill.

Lenny doesn't take the "bike" out on rainy days because he's probably the best dressed motorcycle rider around here and he doesn't want to get wet. He points with pride to the fact that he gets 100 miles on a gallon of gas.

Rumble Seat.

Proud owner of another type of vehicle is builder Bob Iversen of Euclid avenue.

For years, Bob has casually looked around for an ancient car that he would work on as a hobby even though he had many opportunities to buy ones already restored to mint condition. He also wanted the kind that his family would enjoy riding in.

Finally, he discovered one in the garage of a friend in Des Plaines, who was moving. It's a 1931 Model A Ford Coupe with a rumble seat. When he got it, he could go fifteen miles an hour and now, after much horse-trading in automotive parts, it can reach the terrifying speed of 35 miles per hour.

Bob has to exercise great control not to open 'er up in the school zones. He could get a ticket for speeding.

A fascinating thing to Bob's wife, Marie, is that the car, which is a relaxing hobby for Bob, has been more than a conversation piece. Strangers come to the door with advice or offers to buy.

Jim Zimmerman of N. Haddow, brought over an old catalogue of parts and there have been offers for Bob to join several old car clubs. The six Iversen children love going for a ride in the "new" car although they all want to ride in the rumble seat.

California

Copied right out of the July issue of United Air Lines Mainliner Magazine are the following grade school youngsters' definitions of a vacation:

"A vacation is to go some place without having to."

"A vacationeer is a many-purposed word for many people-types."

"How did people have vacations before travel was invented? I wrecked my brain before I finely discovered that I distinctly do not know."

"A vacation is break where you take it easy et cetera for awhile."

The last, while not included in the magazine story was the comment of thirteen year old Tommy Cashion of S. Windsor, who has just returned from a flying visit to San Francisco and Los Angeles.

He loved TWA on the way out and he loved American Air lines on the way back and he loved United's Tiki Room at Disneyland. In fact, Tommy is bubbling over with tales of all the fun things he did.

"The best", he said, "was the bobsled ride down the Matterhorn at Disneyland."

Tom is the son of the Thomas Cashions.

Bouncing Along In School

BY JAN BONE

Life is full of ups and downs for 579 summer school students!

They're trampolining, tumbling, and working out on the parallel bars as part of a unique physical skills program.

Summer School Director Alan M. Lawson told The Day that enrollment for the Dist. 59 gymnastics course topped that for remedial and enrichment courses in reading and mathematics.

More than 1/5 of the children come from parochial schools, where physical education is not part of the curriculum.

Typical class is that run by Miss Elease Harris, gym teacher at Robert Frost and Forest View Elementary Schools in Mount Prospect.

She's been concentrating on strengthening arm and leg muscles through daily calisthenics and other planned activities.

"Most of them haven't used the trampoline or parallel bars before," Miss Harris said, "because these are traditionally junior high equipment."

VOLLEY ball, too, was a new game for many. Some of the children still don't have enough arm strength to get the ball over the net consistently — but they enjoy the sport.

Soccer and square dancing are good for leg muscles. In fact, Miss Harris expects most of the children to be considerably stronger by July 15, when summer school ends.

Just a bouncing boy is Vincent Lopez, 2903 S. Arlington Heights Rd. Vince is one of 579 children enrolled in physical skills under Dist. 59's summer school program. His teacher at Forest View Elementary School is Miss Elease Harris, a graduate of North Central College in Naperville.

One game she's anxious to try has children clapping long bamboo poles together as others jump in and out. Object — better coordination.

Plans for Forest View's physical skills program had to be abruptly changed after the June 9 tornado, which peeled off about 50' of gymnasium roof. Miss Harris and Miss Nancy Norberg, who assists her this summer, had to shift classes to the old multi-purpose room, and were unable to use much of the specialized equipment they had planned to work with.

Next week, they're hoping to borrow the balance beam from the junior high school, and start a new set of coordination exercises.

List License Revocations

The driver's license of Fred E. Bade, 3328 Ellen Dr., has been revoked by Secretary of State Paul Powell. Bade was convicted of driving while intoxicated.

Five other Arlington Heights drivers had driving privileges suspended by Powell's office for conviction of three violations. They are:

Richard J. Brodnan, 407 N. Wilkie; Robert W. Conroy, 1747 N. Wilshire; Erich G. Lerchenfeld, 442 S. Patton; Kurt D. Markshausen, 115 E. Thomas, and Karen L. Sauerland, 432 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

Four probationary permits were issued to drivers in the village. The drivers are:

Walter G. Eissler, 1943 N. Shenandoah; Erich G. Lerchenfeld, 442 S. Patton; Andrew [illegible] and James E. Stevens, 1333 N. Illinois.

Norbert Bruns Gets Promotion

NORBERT A. BRUNS has been promoted to district manager of Anocut Engineering Company's eastern region effective July 1. The promotion was announced by Lynn A. Far East 'Tour' on Slides

A capsule slide tour of two free world Chinese settlements, Hong Kong and Taiwan, was presented for the League of Women Voters by Dr. and Mrs. W.E. Behm of Des Plaines last week.

Dr. Behm, a Congregational minister who recently celebrated his 25th anniversary as a clergyman, told the league members about a 1960 tour he and his wife made of the Far East. The study tour was organized by the Council of Christian Social Action of the Congregational Church.

Dr. Behm's talk was the first of a series planned by the league for a two-year study of U.S. relations with Red China. Mrs. John Muller of 642 W. Central is study chairman.

Members of the Palatine and Des Plaines League of Women Voters, who are participating in the national study, attended the meeting.

In Summary; Pros and Cons of Revenue Article

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fifth and final article in a series discussing the proposed revenue article amendments which will be submitted to the voters on a "Blue Ballot" Nov. 8.

BY JACK A. VANDERMYN

It is unfortunate that something as vital as revisions of the state's archaic revenue article has run into such controversy.

Both proponents and opponents of the amendments agree that something must be done -- and be done soon -- to streamline the state's revenue system.

Should the proposed amendments be defeated in November, a new series of amendments can not be presented until 1970.

In summary, there are seven sections of the revenue article, written in 1848 and adopted in the state's constitution in 1870, up for revision by the voters.

Section one permits tangible and intangible personal property classifications and authorizes the state legislature to abolish taxation on any or all of the classifications. Section one also authorizes the legislature to levy a use, privilege or franchise tax on boats, aircraft, autos, etc.

Section two authorizes the legislature to levy occupation, sales, use, inheritance, privilege and franchise taxes. It provides that the taxes shall be uniform and treats persons and corporations equally. It provides for a three per cent or less graduated income tax if personal property taxes are abolished and calls for a one per cent refund of the income tax to the municipalities.

Sections three, nine and 10 are straight-forward and non-controversial and are designed to update the old sections to correspond with the language of the proposed changes.

Section 12 equalizes bond limits for areas with single school districts, allowing them to sell bonds to 10 per cent of their assessed valuation compared to the previous ceiling of five per cent. The five per cent limit would continue to apply to each district within an area where multi-districts exist.

Section 13 legalizes Cook County's present de facto (in reality) system of classification of real property which assesses commercial and industrial property on a higher scale than residential property.

ONE SERIOUS criticism of the amendment deals with what opponents label ambiguities in language. They doubt the legality of the present graduated inheritance tax if section two is passed. Most observers feel that the present method of taxing inheritance is equitable and believe the courts would not approve any changes.

There is also criticism in wording of the required one per cent rebate from any income tax to municipalities. Opponents feel that it should be clearly defined that the legislature must return one per cent to the municipalities.

Proponents of the article state that it is impossible to imagine the legislature being stingy with returns of money to their home districts in light of the fact that they must run from those districts to retain their seats in the house.

MOST COMMON arguments for section one are:

--Personal property items that are impossible to assess would be excluded from taxation.

--Taxation of stocks and bonds along with other income producing property would be possible.

--Proper collections of personal property taxes could net the state $100,000,000 in additional revenue.

COMMON aruments against section one are:

--Personal property taxes are difficult to collect and the new classifications would only compound collection problems.

--It is unfair to exempt intangible personal property held in trust or used by Illinois-based firms out of the state.

SECTION two is called the most controversial of the amendments. Here are typical arguments presented in favor of its adoption:

--Enables the state to at least levy a true sales tax rather than an unfair occupation tax.

--Allows for the adoption by the legislature of a state income tax.

--Would provide sufficient funds for the state's modern day needs.

--Compensates local municipalities through a one per cent rebate of income taxes for funds lost from personal property tax collections.

--Puts more of the state's tax burden on income rather than personal and real property.

-- Provides constitutional limits to income tax rates.

THOSE opposing section two do so because:

--The uniform clause prohibits sales tax exemptions of necessity items such as food and drugs.

--Is too restrictive on the legislature.

--Treats persons and corporations alike.

--The non-graduated income tax provisions are not just.

--The proposed one per cent rebate to local governments could not be legislated.

CONCERNING section 12, the most often heard argument in its favor is that the new bonding power will encourage v a r t i c a l consolidation of school districts.

Proponents believe that the bond limits should be raised higher than the 10 per cent called for in the amendment.

Those favoring section 13 do so because they feel it will allow the present Cook County system of tax assessment to continue. They fear that the courts are going to make the county bring residential assessments up to the levels of commercial and industrial assessments.

Opponents of the present article state that the wording in section 13 is unclear and could cause just the opposite effect with the courts invalidating the section.

It is a difficult thing in Illinois to pass a constitutional amendment. Two-thirds of the voters participating in the blue ballot must vote in the affirmative for it to become law.

One thing that must be made perfectly clear is that the voters, through support of the constitutional amendment, are not levying any new taxes on themselves. They are giving the state legislature broadened guide lines and authorization to levy new taxes -- and to cancel unpopular old ones.

It's Loaded!

Vantage Point

... by Jack Vandermyn

As the years progress, it seems that column writers are prone to state, "...this year, observances of the Fourth of July are especially significant because."

Then, in 2,500 words or less the columnist goes on to report why this particular year presents more and more in the way of crisis confronting the nation.

On Monday, in Arlington Heights, in Prospect Heights and in Mount Prospect, the bells of freedom that first sounded in 1776 will peal out America's determination to remain the land of the free and home of the brave.

Despite the encroachments of the federal government on our system of individual liberty, America is the only truly free nation in the world.

That it is the home of the brave is vividly demonstrated every day in Viet Nam as American soldiers shed their blood to preserve our way of life in an as yet undeclared but deadly war.

Perhaps it is significant that President Lyndon B. Johnson made the decision to bomb military targets in the Hanoi area of North Viet Nam so close to the Fourth of July.

Perhaps some of the spirit of survival instilled in this nation by revolutionary soldiers in 1776 has prevailed the White House today.

VIET NAM has become very close to the Northwest suburban area. We have our heroes -- our Ross Petersons ... our Rick Harbours and countless others who are still in the fight.

We go about our daily chores secure in the knowledge that the war is far away and not disturbing our staid, suburban way of life, yet concerned enough to react to the day-by-day reports from the war zone.

Perhaps at no time in our nation's history have we dealt with so many inconsistencies. Our economy is booming ... our soldiers are dying.

We preach freedom of speech and expression at home...90 miles off our shore Communist Cuba and Fidel Castro make a mockery out of ideals we cherish.

We celebrate the Fourth of July by parading and picnicking and ringing bells and making speeches ... and millions remain in slavery behind the iron and bamboo curtains.

BUT CELEBRATE, we will and rightly so. In [illegible] Prospect, thousands will line the streets of the village for the 2 p.m. parade.

In Prospect Heights a beauty queen will be crowned and the community will take part in a parade and other general observances of America's greatest holiday.

In Arlington Heights, observances will be limited to tolling of church bells and individual family celebrations. Traditionally, the big parade in Arlington Heights is on Memorial Day and Mount Prospect steals the thunder on the Fourth of July.

REGARDLESS of how we celebrate or where we celebrate, the Fourth of July is something special in America. It is a day to go to baseball games, eat popcorn, drink cold beer, take a holiday from work, be with the family, work in the garden...

For some of our soldiers in Viet Nam, it will be a day to die.

We hope that during Monday's festivities, each American will set aside a few moments to be thankful for our great nation.

BASICALLY, the Fourth of July has two meanings to most Americans. It is a time to thank God for those men who made our freedom possible -- and a day to re-affirm our dedication to cherish that freedom for future generations.

Trite? Already said? Perhaps...but this year the observances of the Fourth of July are especially significant. They are especially significant this year, just as they were last year and just as they will be next year.

They are especially significant because for 190 years we have been a free nation.

They are especially significant because we will and again reaffirm our dedication and determination to remain free.

Computerized Traffic

Motorists in Toronto, Canada, are enjoying a preview of a system which will eventually come to all big cities.

Conscious that the economic loss from traffic tie-ups and accidents was costing the metropolitan area some $111 million annually, and realizing that there was one vehicle for every 20 feet of paved road in the city, with the ratio shrinking, Toronto decided to do something about it.

It brought in a Univac 1107 electronic computer to control traffic. This fast-acting brain has the capacity to examine and analyze as many as 1,000 intersections in one second. In the one-thousandth of a second which it devotes to each intersection, the computer:

- Reads the volume and speed of traffic as reported by 2,000 detection devices scattered along the streets.
- Calculates the density of traffic flow by dividing the number of vehicles by the time to detect them.
- Reads the traffic signal and notes how long it has been red or green.
- Computes the correct length of time the signal should remain green in a certain direction.
- Compares this computed time with the time the signal has already been green. If the two items are equal, it sends a signal to change the light. If the actual "green" time is less than the computed "green" time, it goes on to examine the next intersection, returning to this one a second later.
- Finally, when the computer orders a signal change, it checks to see if the change actually takes place. If not, it repeats the order. If the light still doesn't change, the computer notifies a human operator and turns the problem over to him.

Because of the computer, says one writer, it is as if Toronto had added an extra lane to each of the city's four-lane streets--without turning a shovelful of dirt.

Forgotten Someone?

Pink Lady Can Solve Your Gift Problem

BY JERILYN WATSON
Woman's Editor

Tomorrow is Aunt Minnie's birthday, and you've forgotten to buy a present.

The couple next door is celebrating an anniversary tonight, and you didn't know about it until 10 minutes ago.

Or Julie is in the hospital to part with her tonsils, and you'd like to get her some little thing.

If any of these situations fit you right now, there's a gift shop close to home that ought to save you time and money.

It's the Pink Lady at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights. Stocked by an able volunteer buyer and manager who has excellent — and wide — taste, the shop is a likely site for a small buying spree. Proceeds help the hospital's Woman's Auxiliary meet its financial pledge to the institution.

The buyer is Nellie (Mrs. James) Mason, who probably had you in mind when she selected items for sale in the shop.

"I try to think about everybody," Mrs. Mason said. "Many different people use the shop — volunteer workers at the hospital, patients, visitors, members of the professional staff and the clerical and housekeeping departments, and just plain shoppers.

"So I try to stock things for all kinds of purses and tastes," she said.

A QUICK tour of the Pink Lady reveals this variety of items and prices. For sale are, to mention a few items, candles, cigarettes, stuffed animals, silver, jewelry, figurines, bookends, Swedish glass objects, cards, ashtrays, lighters, magazines, and shifts and dusters.

Behind the counter are attractive women neatly dressed in the cherry jumpers of hospital volunteers. In an age of rush, rush, rush, they're friendly, anxious to help you make a selection.

DURING my visit, volunteers Mrs. Fred Hodgdon and Mrs. Robert Hamor greeted me immediately, asked if they could help and then retreated tactfully while I looked around.

It seemed to me the shifts [illegible] were darling and they had petite price tags. I wasn't alone in that opinion, either. While I was in the Pink Lady, at least six women marched directly over to look at the gaily decorated shifts.

Second in popularity that day seemed to be a display of Swedish tinted glass — sugar and creamer sets and the like. I forgot about business and picked out a set in a delicate green.

Having seen the same set in a department store for considerably more money, I felt a little guilty when I said I wanted to buy it.

"[illegible] want people to come to the shop, and are glad to make prices attractive," explained my volunteer saleslady.

THE FINAL considerate touch was the wrapping of my purchase, which, for its price, might have been dumped into a paper sack in many a store.

One of the volunteers retreated into another room. When she returned, my sugar and creamer were carefully packed, so they couldn't rattle, in a pretty box that told where I purchased them. On top was an elaborate, frilly pink ribbon bow.

Fete Patricia Smith With Buffet Supper

Miss Patricia Smith of Arlington Heights was guest of honor recently at a buffet supper given by Mrs. Joseph Svoboda in the Svoboda home at 713 S. Walnut.

Miss Smith, a recent graduate of St. Mary's College of the University of Notre Dame, will be married August 26 to Richard Ragone of Yalesville, Conn.

Twenty-five guests from Barrington, Mount Prospect, Des Plaines, Palatine, Arlington Heights, Milwaukee, Rockford and Cary, attended the event.

Parents of the bride-to-be are Mr. and Mrs. Philip A. Smith, 833 S. Beverly.

BABY OIL SMOOTHS LEGS

The new waterproof leg make-up to simulate a tan presents, a cleaning problem. Cosmetologists suggest using a baby oil to help remove the make-up. This also leaves legs soft and smooth.

Matching drapery and wallpaper samples set a mood of the traditional English period in this room. About 75 matching fabrics are available in the United Wallpaper Company's Cameo collection, recently introduced in the Chicago area.

Greater 'Warmth' For Wall

Mod styles are "out" and traditional styles "in" with the young married set — at least when it comes to home furnishings.

Many young marrieds and teenagers questioned about their preference, said they feel that modern furnishings with which most of them grew up are too "sterile." They said they believe traditional styles would lend greater warmth to their own households.

Furnishings reflecting the traditional styling of 18th and 19th century Spain and England currently are enjoying a burst of popularity.

EARLY American furnishings are especially popular with the practical young couples who have or are planning families. The selling point is sturdy construction and relatively low cost. The young people interviewed feel that hard rock maple and pine will best withstand the buffets of the growing years.

A Chicago wallpaper company has come up with an aid for traditional-minded young marrieds and older persons.

The United Wallpaper Co. recently introduced its Cameo Collection of wallpapers, each of which has its own matching, co-ordinated or related fabric sample.

The company offers a selection of 75 fabrics, including antique satin, nubby tweed, jacquard brocade, and twill and screen-printed matching fabrics on polished or glazed cottons. All the patterns are vinyl coated for washing and sell for $3.85 to $4.10 per yard.

Design patterns, most of which are small in scale, feature novelties, florals, damasks, brocades, ornamentals, geometrics, kitchens, Americana, provincials, scenic juveniles and raised and ink-embossed figured textures.

A final point for the busy home decorator is that the matching wallpaper-fabric collection eliminates the necessity of taking wallcovering or material swatches to find the right match.

DECALS FOR TOES

Would you believe . . . decals for your toes? Make the beach scene with toes a la posies that can be worn while swimming, dancing. A variety of wildly different designs come in a box. One decal for each toe — mix or match depending on your mood.

Vacation Bible School

Vacation Bible school classes will be held at St. Peter Lutheran Church July 18 through July 29 for children 3 years old through junior high school level.

Classes will be held from 9 to 11:30 a.m. Monday through Friday. Art projects, devotions, Bible study and music will be centered around the theme "My Savior and I." A program will be presented by the classes at the close of the two-week session.

Supervisors include Mrs. Beverly Rascher, nursery school; Mrs. Helen Bolte, kindergarten; Mrs. Myrtle Scharringhausen, primary grades; Mrs. Alberta Deu, junior grades, and Mrs. Ruth Vogeler, junior high.

DOCTOR SAYS

Breast Removal

W. G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Q—I had my left breast removed because of suspicious cells. The surgeon said there was no evidence of cancer. Of what disease am I a victim?

A—If the suspicious tissues of the removed breast were examined microscopically by a competent pathologist and no evidence of cancer was found you are a victim of a policy of better safe than sorry, but not of cancer.

Q—I am 14 and my breasts are very large. Is there anything I can do to reduce them?

A—Some people are never satisfied. An operation to remove some of the breast tissue could be done but is not advisable. Taking male hormones might prevent any farther development of your breasts but they would probably also stiffen your beard. Better let well enough alone.

Q—I am 16. Last month I started to have a slight yellow discharge from my breasts. What would cause this and what should I do?

A—This may disappear spontaneously but if it persists for 2 or 3 months it may be an indication of a tumor of the pituitary. If this is the case, X-ray treatments directed at this gland provide the surest cure.

Q—I have a tennis elbow which hurts when I lift anything. How can I get rid of it?

A—This is a form of bursitis and judging by the letters I get there must be an epidemic of this disease. Moderate movement is necessary to prevent stiffening of the joint. Hot applications, diathermy or ultrasound treatments and a short course of cortisone should help you if the condition has not become chronic.

Browns Trip Hawks 8-4 In Senior Tilt

The Browns picked up their first victory of the Arlington Heights Boys' Baseball Senior League second-half slate yesterday by tripping the Hawks 8-4.

Wayne Miller twirled a trim three-hitter to top Chris DeBow in the mound department. Jim Baumgardner was three-for-three at the plate for the winners.

THE PELICANS caught up with the Redwings in the Varsity I standings last night, topping them 7-5. Both clubs are now 2-5. Paul Green went five innings to gain credit for the win, and Wally Strait took the loss.

In Varsity II action, the Orioles outslugged the Eagles 10-8, as Rick Fudgit paced the winners with a double and a triple. Bob Williams hurled three innings of relief to get the win, the Orioles' fifth in seven tries.

KEN MARTIN and Steve Kuebler clubbed the Braves into submission in the Major National League, as their Dodger teammates romped 18-8. Martin went four-for-four at the plate including a home run, and Kuebler swated a grand slam homer. Martin was also the winning pitcher, giving up eight hits and striking out eight.

In Major American League play, the Tigers advanced to a 3-1 record with an 11-9 conquest of the Athletics. Joe Luhan dealt the A's their second loss against two wins.

THE HORNETS ran their undefeated streak to five in the [illegible] Intermediate League by stopping the Angels 13-3. Ed Helleson was nicked for 10 scattered hits but hung on to get the victory. Jim Donato drove four Hornet runs across with a home run and a triple.

Lopsided scores were the order of the day in all other intermediate clashes. The Saints walloped the Pioneers 11-4, while the Colts rolled over the Mounties 17-10, and the Terriers topped the Ramblers 10-3. Paul Ast helped George Kman gain the victory for the Saints with a home run, and Brad Schmidt clubbed a double and a bases-loaded circuit clout for Jim Dumka and the Colts. Jim Miller also had a home run and a double for the winners in that contest.

BRUCE HEITBRINK, slashed a four-bagger for the Terriers, and Dennis Miresse matched it for the losing Ramblers. Pete Cavers fanned nine en route to the victory.

Two South White Junior League games were played last night with the Bulldogs beating the Stags 12-5, and Jets dropping the Wrens 9-4. Don Bledsoe was the big noise for the Bulldogs pitching a four-hitter for the victory. Bledsoe also contributed a home run and two triples to his own cause.

BARRY BRINN got the victory for the Jets. He gave up only one hit, a home run to the Wrens' Sporleder. Brinn fanned 10 and walked three.

Darwin Townsend went all the way for the Atoms as they defeated the Jays 13-7 in the South White Junior league. Townsend got a triple and a double for the winners, while Jim Paynter, Dennis Gaare and Mike Skarzynski all chipped in with doubles.

GARY MacNAMARA fashioned a one hit 10-0 shutout for the Rockets over the Badgers. MacNamara whiffed 10 and walked four.

The Gems nipped the Beavers 8-7 in a six-inning South Blue squeaker. Jim Extrom was the winning pitcher, and Bruce Johnson the loser. Bill Hochstettler's three-run doulbe was the big Gem blow. Randy Hellinger hammered a home run for the losing Beavers.

In the only other game played, the Apaches outlasted the Rebels 10-8. Stan Lollar was the starter and winner, fanning nine and yielding only two hits.

Take Easy Swing To Escape Rough

BY CHUCK PEDERSEN
Golf Pro
Midlane Farms C.C.

If you watched the National Open on television you saw how many times the pros had to [illegible] out of a high rough.

WHEN YOU GET into the rough you are more likely to make a successful recovery if you take an easy swing. The tendency of the average golfer is to overpower the ball, resulting in a swing that is too hard and too fast. He is likely to take the club head back on the inside with a fast backswing, causing the shot to go astray.

You will find one of the easiest ways to handle a shot when your ball is laying in two to six inches of grass is to take the club back in a far more upright position than usual. Try to strike the ball with the shaft of the club as vertical as possible.

REMEMBER TO OPEN the club face so that it is almost square at the point of impact. This will cut down on the chances of grass wrapping around the club, and it will help the ball gain height more quickly.

THE GRASS will remove the spin from the shot, so aim slightly to the left. Then use a slow backswing, and be sure to follow all the way through. You will be surprised how easily you can pop the ball out of the rough.

Remember that you will have to sacrifice some distance with a shot from the rough. You will have more success with a shorter iron than you would use if you were the same number of yards from the green in the fairway.

Big 10 Grid Race Looks Wide Open

If the Big Ten football race runs true to form this year, defending champion Michigan State can look for no better than a tie for fourth place.

BASED ON the league's 19-year record the Spartans should finish with a 4-3 conference record and a 6-3-1 overall slate. And Illinois should take home all the marbles with a 6-1 Big Ten mark and 8-1-1 overall season.

An analysis of the Western Conference and season records of the league's Rose Bowl representatives shows that the Big Ten champion and Rose Bowl visitor has averaged a fourth place tie in the season following the trip to Pasadena. In 19 years, the defending champs have won 59 per cent of their conference games, averaging roughly a 4-3 season.

SINCE 1946, only Michigan and Ohio State have repeated as champions. Michigan did it in 1947 and 1948, and the Buckeyes turned the trick in 1954 and 1955. Only Minnesota has made back-to-back appearances in the Rose Bowl. The Gophers made successive trips in 1954 and 1955 in a non-contractual arrangement. Conference rules prohibit return appearances in consecutive seasons.

ILLINOIS' NOMINATION as this year's statistically likely champion is based on league records that show the fifth-place finisher is most likely to take the title in the next season.

Big Ten champions have averaged a 54 percent winning mark in their pre-title year, or a 4-3 league record. They average a 6-4 overall season in the year directly preceding their title campaign.

The Illini fit the bill perfectly. Their 4-3 conference slate was good for fifth place, and they had a 2-1 exhibition record in 1965.

Cornhuskers Favored In Big Eight Grid Poll

Nebraska's defending champion Cornhuskers rated as the overwhelming favorite to repeat in the Big Eight football scramble this season in a poll of 100 Midwest sports writers and broadcasters.

THE BIG RED, which suffered its only loss last year in a post-season bowl encounter with Alabama, was named on 89 first place ballots. No one picked Nebraska lower than third.

Colorado was second in the voting. The Buffaloes received only six first place votes but were given a slight edge for second place over Missouri. Oklahoma followed Missouri in the poll.

The second division finds Iowa State, Oklahoma State, Kansas, and Kansas State picked to finish in that order.

THE NEBRASKANS also seem to be a safe bet for national ranking. Coach Bob Devaney's crew will have 34 lettermen back from last year's squad, including six offensive and eight defensive starters. Nebraska will be shooting for its fourth straight Big Eight crown. Nebraska has compiled a 38-6 record since the 1963 season.

The forecasters also predicted a big year for quarterbacks in the Big Eight. Nebraska's Bob Churchich, Iowa State's Tim Van Galder, and Bob Skahan of Kansas were all considered All-American candidates by the writers and broadcasters.

Prospect Legion Nine Nips Dundee in Wild Exhibition

BY DALE HOFMANN

You might say Mt. Prospect's American Legion baseball team rallied for two runs in the bottom of the seventh inning last night to trip Dundee 5-4 in an exhibition contest at Prospect High School. You might say that.

BECAUSE THE Prospectors did meet Dundee and they did outscore the visitors 5-4. But the Dundee nine was really only a Dundee seven, and the local squad had to provide a right fielder and a catcher for their antagonists.

Manager Mark Thorne used four pitchers in the contest and cleared his bench staffing both teams.

Dundee dented Prospect pitching for four hits, one of them coming off the bat of Prospect pitcher-turned Dundee right fielder Mike Salata, and another from Prospect Coach Nick Tuttle.

THOUGH TUTTLE appears to be well past his prime, he also stole a base for the visitors, as did Salata, who chipped in with two walks in his other trips to the plate.

Jim Gums, making his first appearance on the mound this summer and perhaps in his career, got credit for the win after facing five batters in the seventh inning.

DAVE KINGMAN started for Mt. Prospect and went three innings, striking out five and allowing one run and two hits. He gave way to Tom Manderscheid who pitched two scoreless frames before being relieved by infielder Paul Peterson.

Peterson was nicked for three runs on one hit, two walks and two hit batsmen.

Dundee starter Bill Watrous seemed to take the proceedings seriously even if no one else did. The southpaw held Mt. Prospect to two hits until the sixth when the Big Blue remembered how to hit change-ups and soft curves.

THEY GOT THREE of their runs in that frame and two more in the seventh to pull out the victory that was theirs by forfeit anyway.

Peterson got things started in the sixth by reaching on an error, and J. D. Thorne followed with a walk. The rally was almost nipped in the bud though when Manderscheid lined into a double play.

BUT LUNDSTEDT kept things alive with a lame popup that went for a single when no one got near it. Kingman, who was the hitting hero of last night's act if comedies have heroes, then drove both runners in with a triple.

Gallagher followed with a single to score Kingman and make the score 4-3 Mt. Prospect.

BOB ROBINSON launched the final uprising in the seventh when he raced all the way to third on a fumbled fly ball to left field. John Phillips then rapped a single to knot the score, and Thorne followed with a walk. Kingman pulled the curtain with a solid shot to left.

The game gets serious again tonight when Thorne's crew meets Morton Grove at 6 p.m. in a league match at Prospect High School. J. D. Thorne will start on the hill.

Sunday the Prospectors travel to Palatine for another conference game at 6:15 p.m. Kingman is slated for the starting assignment.

Local Netmen Get Invitations

Jim Esser and Bill Von Boeckmann of Arlington Heights have been invited to try out for the Junior Davis Cup tennis team sponsored by the Chicago District Tennis Association.

The two Arlington High School net stars were to try out for the team this morning at Lincoln Park in Chicago. Alan Carvell and Grant Golden are the team coaches.

Last year the Chicago team posted a 28-2 record in intercity Junior Davis Cup competition.

Esser and Von Boeckmann have been invited to tryout on the basis of their fine records in high school and summer exhibition competition.

A Day Profile

A Life of Service to Community and Church

BY MAXINE TYRA

As commencement speaker at Buena Vista College, Storm Lake, Ia., Nicholas M. Lattof titled his address "Achieving the Abundant Life."

"The fundamental truth of love should be the foundation on which we strive to build a new society. It is encouraging that we find more and more leaders in business and industry giving generously of their time and talent for the church and community activities," he told the graduates June 5.

Lattof has served his church and community with such abundant zeal that it makes it impossible to draw a line between layman and community leader.

He was born of missionary parents in Turkey and was graduated from George Williams College of Chicago in 1928 with a BAS degree in YMCA administration. In that same year he received a Ph.B. degree from the University of Chicago in social sciences.

While he was attending school, he heard a missionary speak of the YMCA organization work in Jerusalem. He decided he would join that man after graduation and was appointed by the International Committee of the YMCA's of North America to serve as their secretary in Jerusalem.

He worked in the area now known as Israel and Jordan and received much help in fund raising from a Chevrolet dealer who was a member of the board of directors.

"My contact with the Chevrolet dealership in Jerusalem was all I knew about the automobile business. When something went wrong with my car, I gave the key to the German chief engineer we had on the staff. He had it repaired and paid the bill," he said.

WHEN HE returned to the U. S. in 1936, he applied for a Chevrolet franchise.

"What makes you think you can come from the YMCA, without any automobile experience, and make a good Chevrolet dealer for us?" asked the zone manager.

Lattof replied that he had raised more money from Jews and Moslems for a Christian organization than any secretary before him had done. He got the franchise in Arlington Heights. He opened his first office on State Rd. and Miner St. with one mechanic, one part-time salesman and an office girl.

Today the dealership has the reputation of being one of the best in the country. In April the Northwest Hwy. offices and showrooms were dedicated in their 30th anniversary year. The organization now employs nearly 100 employees.

When he came to Arlington Heights he revived the old Business Men's Assn., changed the name to the Chamber of Commerce, wrote the first constitution and by-laws and served as secretary for several years.

He organized and served as the first president of the Community Fund and served on the Northwest Suburban Executive Council of the Boy Scouts and on the national board.

He was president of the elementary school board of Arlington Heights for seven years, and was chairman of a committee of 65 leaders of the communities served by the high school district to advise the board of education on the building program.

The Northwest Suburban YMCA lists him as one of their fund raisers and board members.

MANY community leaders say that without Nicholas Lattof Northwest Community Hospital would be a dream rather than a reality. He was general chairman for the hospital drive and served as first president of the board of directors. Under his leadership the initial $1,500,000 building program was started and the current $4,000,000 expansion program is now nearing completion.

He brought local leaders into the campaign with him and directed the drive with such determination and force that several communities can share pride in his accomplishments.

"Mr. Northwest Community Hospital" has more than earned his title. Even that he acknowledges with a sincere humility.

BASICALLY a family centered man, Lattof and his wife Olga take pride in the accomplishments of their children.

His daughter Mrs. Irene Newcomb of Mount Prospect was graduated from Stanford University and [illegible] post-graduate work in personnel and management at Radcliff. His son Warren, was graduated from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in engineering and industrial management and is working with him as a dealer in Arlington Heights.

His youngest daughter Dorothy was graduated from Northwestern University and plans to become an account executive at Merril Lynch stockbrokers.

The Lattofs have five grandchildren of whom they are equally proud.

In his paneled office he fondly points to a painting of a Vienna opera house.

"This is where my wife said "yes" 30 years ago," he said.

He recently acquired the painting from Schneller Furniture Co. and was sentimentally pleased when he saw it.

THE fountainhead of all Lattof's work in the community comes from his work as a Presbyterian layman. The church spirit and love of his neighbor that he saw in his father has made him an outstanding contributor to the lay movement.

At the June 11 commencement at Lake Forest College Lattof was awarded the degree of Doctor of Humane Letters for business man, community leader and Presbyter "par excellence."

"Your own church, the Presbytery of Chicago, and the General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church have all called upon you for significant leadership and you have responded with heart-warming enthusiasm. Your personal dedication and generosity have been irresistibly contagious, and you have been a veritable Pied Piper, attracting men and money in droves to the support of Church and community. At a time when the layman is playing an increasingly important role in the life of all the churches, we, as a Presbyteries College, take great pride in recognizing a ruling elder of matchless devotion and commitment," said college president William Graham Cole in conferring the degree.

IN HIS community Lattof served as chairman [illegible] Board of Trustees of the First Presybterian Church of Arlington Heithts and headed the building committee and the fund drive a new sanctuary. He was a member of the Board of Trustees of George Williams College in Chicago and the Presbyterian Home in Evanston.

As a member of the board of Directors of McCormick Theological Seminary in Chicago he was active in the $10,000,000 fund raising drive for the expansion of the seminary.

As a member of the Capital Needs Commission of the General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church he helped plan a $50,000,000 national campaign and helped organize the Chicago Presbytery drive for $5,000,000.

He was a major fund raiser for the Southminister United Presbyterian Church in Arlington Heights.

"Christian Stewardship is the best way I know to achieve the abundant life. By Christian Stewardship, I mean we should consider all we are or have as belonging to God and be willing to live accordingly. This life of stewardship is nothing less than a total devotion of Christ. Every task, every useful occupation, has divine significance. No matter what our job may be we hold in trust and are accountable to God for our material possessions, our time and our talents and abilities. This concept of Christian stewardship implies a partnership with Christ," Lattof said in the Buena Vista Commencement address.

He has made his life a pattern of the missionary zeal for Christian service. He does practice what he preaches.

President Johnson's July Fourth Message

President Lyndon B. Johnson issued the following Fourth of July Message in Washington today:

On this anniversary of our nation's birthday, most of us are enjoying a holiday from work and the cares of the world.

But even while we celebrate Independence Day, there is no real holiday from responsibility.

We must go on with the work of building peace, enlarging our prosperity, guarding against inflation and recession.

They are being carried on today by Americans just like you all across this country and across the world.

I appeal to you today to join these guardians of democracy.

I ask you to invest a few dollars each month in the front lines of battle for a stronger America and a safer world.

Put a small part of your prosperity into U.S. Savings Bonds. The $25 bonds cost $18.75, but they are more than a bargain; they are a wise investment. The new higher interest rate means that the bonds that you buy and own earn more money. They are easier to acquire and manage than most other investments you can have.

You can buy them automatically just by signing up for the Payroll Savings Plan where you work. Buy a bond every month and help to guarantee the security of your country.

If only half of the 70 million employed Americans bought just one $25 Savings Bond a month for only one year or even an extra bond a month, they would meet most of the special cost of the struggle that we are making for peace in Vietnam this year.

So I ask you to think about that as you go about freely enjoying this holiday. Think about how much more meaningful your enjoyment would be if you could honestly say,

"I have pledged to do my share as an American. I will buy U.S. Savings Bonds on a regular monthly basis."

Roundup For The Day

By United Press International

N. Viet Oil Supplies Hit Again

SAIGON -- American warplanes hit the industrial heartland of North Viet Nam for the third straight day today. They blasted a major petroleum dump just 15 miles northwest of the port city of Haiphong. U.S. Navy jets attacked the oil dump which it was said contained about eight per cent of the Communist north's oil storage capacity. Pilots reported all bombs on target, and they streaked away leaving thick black smoke streaming from the oil depot. In a post-mortem on yesterday's raid in the Hanoi area, U.S. authorities disclosed that Communist defenders launched five surface-to-air missiles at the attacking American planes. The pilots saw one missile explode, but all missed their marks. Officials said the raid was highly successful, with a big oil storage area 44 miles northwest of Hanoi destroyed.

Bomb Accident Kills 5, Hurts 43

SAIGON -- In the air war against the Viet Cong, tragedy. U.S. officials disclosed that three Air Force jet fighters accidentally dumped their bomb loads on a South Vietnamese village while returning from a combat mission today. The mishap killed five civilians and wounded 43 others. The three F-100's were attempting to jettison their unused bombs over a designated jettison area about 15 miles north of the big Bien Hoa air base outside Saigon. The live bombs failed to release properly as the pilots pulled out of their runs, and the deadly cannisters fell on the unsuspecting South Vietnamese villagers below. Trucks and helicopters were used to rush medical aid to the victims.

Red China: U.S. Nearer to Grave'

LONDON -- Red China says the American air raids on the North Vietnamese cities of Hanoi and Haiphong have brought the so-called U.S. aggressors one step nearer to their graves. The official New China News agency cites purported American press reports to back up a charge that the United States informed the Soviet Union of the attacks before they were made.

Rivers Says Draft Changes Needed

WASHINGTON -- Chairman Mendel Rivers and top ranking members of his House Armed Services Committee are convinced that some changes should be made in the draft. The South Carolina Democrat says that the hearings the committee has held on the Selective Service System make it clear that changes are in order. But Rivers says he would rather not say what they will be until the committee has completed its review of the testimony.

Hog Spurns LBJ's Corn

DES MOINES, Iowa -- President Johnson tried his hand at hog-calling in Iowa yesterday, and he didn't do very well. While visiting a farm near Des Moines, the President tried to lure a porker with a handful of corn and the old cry of "sooey!" The hog turned around and walked the other way.

Rusk Says Reds 'Keep Hanging Up'

CANBERRA, Australia -- Secretary of State Rusk says the United States made peace appeals to Peking and Moscow and other Communist nations in May. He told newsmen in Canberra, the Communists rejected the appeals -- or -- as he put it -- "They kept hanging up the phone."

Royal Coaches May Go Modern

LONDON -- Queen Elizabeth is considering the installation of rubber tires on her ancient coaches. The metal wheels currently being used cut up the turf when the Queen is being driven to the annual Ascot Race.

Seek Bids For Repairs

Bids for painting and miscellaneous repairs to the U.S. Post Office in Gary, Ind., are being solicited by the Chicago Regional Office of General Services Admin.

The work includes exterior and interior painting, furnishing and installing venetian blinds, a new flagpole and new vinyl asbestos tile.

Sealed bids will be accepted until 2:00 p.m., July 27.

Bond Sale

Northern Illinois Gas Co. has announced that it plans to sell $20 million of 25-year first mortgage bonds by competitive bidding. Given satisfactory market conditions and necessary regulatory approvals, the bids are scheduled to be opened on Aug. 16.

Safety Award

The Palatine Midwest division of the Pure Oil Co. has received the National Safety Council's Certificate of Commendation for safety. The Certificate is issued for 200,000 to 1,000,000 safe manhours of operation.

TIMELY QUOTES

Building a strong America at home can't hurt the military posture of the country. Teaching children to read and write, putting food on the table of the poor, will help build the national strength.

Delegates To Lutheran Meeting

Six members of St. Paul Lutheran Church recently represented the church at the 39th convention of the Northern Illinois District of the Lutheran Church - Missouri Synod, held in DeKalb.

The Rev. E. A. Zeile, church pastor, and his assistant, the Rev. R. M. Redder, attended the convention with four delegates.

The delegates, all from Mount Prospect, were Victor Beckler, 214 S. William, Martin Haaz Sr., 10 S. Elm, Martin Haaz, Jr., 5 S. Elm and Gayle Manthei, 403 S. Busse.

"The Church in Tension" was the theme of the convention, which was attended by 1,000 delegates and youth representatives representing 235 parishes in northern Illinois.

Addition to the sanctuary and educational area of the Grace Evangelical Lutheran Church in Prospect Heights, which will accommodate 260 worshippers.

Grace Lutheran's New Addition

Ground was broken Sunday, June 26 for an addition to the sanctuary and educational area of the Grace Evangelical Lutheran Church in Prospect Hts.

The $160,000 structure should be completed by about June, 1967, according to the Rev. Albert Weidlich, church pastor.

The new sanctuary will seat approximately 260 worshipers. Also included in the addition are three classrooms, a crib room and a parlor with kitchenette and fireplace. Present driveway and parking areas will be enlarged and paved.

Pastor Wiedlich officiated at the ceremony, and Dr. Henry Horenson, a Mission Board member of the American Lutheran Church, gave an address. Edward E. MacKanan of 202 Berkshire, Mount Prospect, building committee chairman, and Lavern Kron of Des Plaines, building fund chairman, also participated.

Cooley and Borre and Associates of Park Ridge are architects for the project. General contractor is Eric Bergstrom and Son, Northbrook.

Camille Curry smilingly helps a young charge construct a paper toy. Camille is one of several girls who work with younger children at the school.

Author-Editor To Address Protestants

"Icons and Iconoclasts: a Protestant Rationale" will be the topic of a free public lecture Thursday, July 7 at Garrett Theological Seminary in Evanston.

The speaker will be Dr. Roger Ortmayer, professor of Christianity and the Arts at Perkins School of Theology of Southern Methodist University in Dallas, Tex. The program will begin at 8 p.m. in room 205 of Garrett, 2121 Sheridan, Evanston.

An innovator and pioneer in worship forms, Dr. Ortmayer has served as leader and consultant in building and study projects which have initiated the use of contemporary art. One of his hobbies is jazz.

With jazz, he created a setting of the orders of morning prayer -- the first such religious use of modern progressive jazz. The settings were televised nationally on NBC-TV.

THE AUTHOR of "Worship and the Arts" and editor of "Witness to the Campus," Dr. Ortmayer has written television and motion picture scripts including the prize-winning "The Sheepherder" and "The Word . . . Is."

The editor of the "Journal" of the Perkins School of Theology, a quarterly of theological and creative writing, Dr. Ortmayer served as editor of "motive" magazine from 1950 to 1958.

The theologian holds a baccalaureate from the Dakota Wesleyan University, a bachelor of divinity degree from Garrett and a divinity doctorate from MacMurray College in Jacksonville.

A FORMER trustee of the Dallas Museum of Fine Arts and the Dallas Art Assn., Dr. Ortmayer has traveled around the world collecting art objects.

He has made a special study of early Christian and Byzantine art in Turkey, Yugoslavia, Greece and Italy.
